NEATNESS IN EMPLOYEES ESSENTIAL

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for The American Real Estate Co.

THAT a considerable part of the reputation and success of a modern commercial building is dependent upon the calibre of the employees, is conceded by building managers and renting agents. This fact is true from the superintendent, down the line, to the scrub-woman. If the house staff is not up to the standard of efficiency, or if it is, as a whole, lacking in discipline, honesty, or ability, the building suffers consequently in reputation as well as by vacant offices and lofts, no matter how choice its location, nor how well it was designed and constructed.

Loss of Tenants.

Loss of good tenants has been directly traced to the fact that the employees of the building were not competent. A business man has not the time to complain constantly to the superintendent of neglected corners in his offices, loss of valuable papers, or incivility on the part of hall-men and elevator operators. If these things persist in happening, at the expiration of his lease, he moves. Tenants pay rent for service as well as for space and demand especially that the service be up to the standard.

As the responsibility for character and efficiency of the help, within the building, falls primarily upon the superintendent or the building manager, the owner should be sure, in addition to having the necessary knowledge of buildings and their upkeep, that he is also a good executive, with ability to handle those employed under him, and to maintain a rigid dicipline at all times.

Necessary Characteristics.

In employing other permanent help, for commercial buildings, there are certain characteristics which should be sought for as carefully as another employer would require in hiring an office man or filling other positions of responsibility. Reliability, temperance and honesty are the necessary requirements, as well as the ability to perform the allotted tasks in proper manner. These traits are obtainable in elevator operators, porters, scrub women, and other helpers in a building, and where made a requirement result in satisfied tenants and the increased prestige of the structure.

Team work among the employees of buildings of a commercial type is as necessary as upon a football field. The superintendent, engineer, hall-man and all others must work together in harmony or the best interests of the owner and tenants are not being served. Discord should not be tolerated for an instant and if trouble should arise between individuals or groups it is the duty of the superintendent or building manager to immediately investigate the cause of the trouble, make adjustments if possible, and if not, to discharge the instigators of the ill feeling. Discipline in a staff is necessary and should be maintained at all times. A superintendent or building manager need not be a martinet. He ought not to be; but it should be thoroughly understood by the employees under him that his word is the law, as far as they are concerned, that they are responsible only to him.

Discipline and Neatness.

Discipline and neatness go hand in hand, and it is at this point that many building managers or superintendents are sometimes lax. Porters are allowed oftimes to roam about a building looking like veritable hoboes when, in fact, they might be made inconspicuous by having a uniform working garb. Elevator operators when uniformed are often careless in their manner of wearing their apparel. A uniform is only a uniform when properly adjusted and worn. That means that the semi-military blouse usually worn by hall men and elevator operators, should be buttoned tightly up to the chin and not left partly open and exposing an assortment of variegated haberdashery. Cap, when provided, should be placed properly on the head, and not on one ear, or on the extreme back part of the head, or hung on a convenient projection on the side of the car.

The appearance of the hall and elevator men makes a decided impression on the tenant or prospective tenant and it is either good or bad, never neutral. Prospective tenants would never lease space in a building where help looks slovenly. They would naturally think that carelessness was sanctioned by the manager and that the same condition was maintained throughout the building.

Value of Courtesy.

Courtesy is another important point to be considered in the selection of employees in a commercial building. This applies especially to those who come in daily contact with tenants, such as hall men, elevator operators, head porters, etc. Lack of politeness on the part of any of these can do more damage to a building than insufficient steam heat, and is a defect which is harder to remedy, while a cheerful greeting by a hall man or elevator operators, courteous reply to a question carries a note of good fellowship and co-operation.

Employees who are courteous at all times and on the lookout for the comfort and conveniences of the tenants are not only doing the best thing for their employers, but oftentimes are unconsciously improving their own conditions and station in life. Of course, the question of help is only one phase of building management, but it is one that is frequently given too little thought and one in which great improvement may be made without expense to the management, but to the permanent advantage to the building.

NAMING BUILDINGS.

Success or Failure Often Hinges On a Suitable Appellation.

"What's in a name?" Ask the average manager of an apartment house, and, in most instances, he will reply, "Success or failure of the undertaking." This statement will hold true in the majority of cases, for a name can be either an asset or a liability, and is the magic word which might change a successful investment into a failure, or vice versa. A study of successful names of buildings in Manhattan is a study in commercial psychology, a journey into the idiosyncrasy of human nature.

But why a distinctly English name indicates and has a tendency to bring to a new apartment house success is a question that perplexes the average manager. An English name with the word "hall," "court" "arms," or "abbey" attached to it will, nine times out of ten, indicate more exclusiveness and will attract the more affluent, thus giving the property a better chance of being a money maker for the owner.

On the other hand what earthly chance for success would a million dollar apartment project on, say Riverside Drive, have with the plain, but sturdy name of Smith Arms, Brown Hall, or Jones Abbey, as against a similar habitation christened say Buckingham Court, Clarendon Arms, or Chichester Abbey? Smith Arms is pre-doomed to failure, while Yeurba Buena Court has a birthright which gives it much more chance for obtaining tenants.

A stroll through the upper West Side is like taking a saunter through London Town, or like a cross section of a modern society novel. English names predominate and it would seem as though this is the only nationality that offers dividends, through borrowed names. French and German names would probably be more plentiful but for the woeful tangle that the tenants fall into when pronouncing them before their friends.

There seems, however, to be a change in the air. In several of the large apartment house structures, notably in the Park avenue section, builders have refrained from giving their houses any names, and have merely designated them by the street numbers. This is, after all, the real practical way of dealing with the problem.

Naming Business Buildings.

In the matter of the naming of business buildings more logic is used, the titles being, in the main, derived from either some historical landmark in the vicinity, the name of a prominent corporation, or the simple use of the street number. An example of the first instance can be had from the St. Paul Building, which is near the historic St. Paul's Church; the second example, such buildings as the Singer or Woolworth, while the third, No. 26 Broadway, might be cited.

Cases have been known where the mere changing of a name has made a failure into a success. This requires advertising and patience, but persistence has won in the long run. A case in point is that of an uptown apartment house having an essentially American name. It was changed to one having an English tinge, and the unfounded rumor of an existant structural defect was stilled and the building filled up and became a paying investment. Another case was that of a building known by its street number, which never paid, although it was a good building and catered to the best clientele. When the name was changed to that of a great national reservation noted for its beauty the tide of patronage changed and it is today ranked among the big apartment house successes of the city.

Building Managers Meet.

At the annual meeting of the New York Building Managers' Association, held last Tuesday evening at Mouquin's, in Fulton street, the following officers were elected: B. E. Martin, president; F. S. Bancroft, vice-president; P. F. Jerome, secretary, and C. B. Best, treasurer.

The following members of the Executive Committee were elected for three years: R. P. Roberts, A. O. Wallis, W. H. Class, W. T. Ropes, J. C. Knight, M. D. Littlefield, J. C. Wolfe and W. S. Dennison. The continuing members are C. T. Coley, Corwin Black, A. C. Bang, J. C. Rennard, C. T. Atkinson, Harry Hall and W. R. Hooper.

Trick Laws.

(From the Evening Telegram.)

It will some day dawn on the people that they are paying an awful lot of money to legislators to make trick laws and judges of various grades to reverse one another's rulings with the result that the only person punished for anything is the innocent bystander, old ultimate consumer—the taxpayer.

ACCOUSTICS OF AUDITORIUMS.

Echoes and Reverberations Caused By Curved Walls and Domes.

The prevalence of echoes and reverberations makes hearing and understanding difficult for auditors and defeats, in some degree, the purpose of an auditorium. The completed portion of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine temporarily presents such a case. Each sound, instead of dying out, persists for some time, so that the preceding words blend with their successors and set up a mixture of sounds which produce a certain amount of confusion. Curved walls and ceilings are largely responsible for echoes because they concentrate the reflected sound. Large halls with domes are almost sure to have acoustical defects.

The auditorium of the University of Illinois presents another case. The building is shaped like a hemisphere. The walls were built perfectly plain, with no breaking up of large, smooth wall surfaces, and no furnishings except the seats and floor matting. If an observer stood on the platform and clapped his hands a veritable chaos of sound resulted. Echoes were heard from every direction and reverberations continued for a number of seconds. Speakers found their utterances thrown back at them and auditors experienced difficulty in understanding what was said. It seemed that the auditorium was doomed to be an acoustical horror.

Behavior of Sound Waves in a Room.

When a speaker addresses an audience, the sounds he utters proceed in ever widening spherical waves until they strike the boundaries of the room. Here the sound is partly reflected, partly transmitted, and the rest absorbed. The amounts of reflection, absorption and transmission depend on the character of the walls. A hard, smooth wall reflects most of the sound so that but little is transmitted or absorbed. In the case of a porous wall or a yielding wall, the absorption and transmission are greater, and the reflection is less. After striking a number of reflecting surfaces, the energy is used up and the sound dies out.

The cure for the trouble is brought about by the introduction of materials such as carpets, tapestries, and the like, which act as absorbers of sound and reduce the time of reverberation.

A few words should be written concerning the popular notion that wires and sounding boards are effective in curing faulty acoustics. Experiments and observations show that wires are of practically no benefit, and sounding boards can be used only in special cases. Wires stretched in a room scarcely affect the sound, since they present too small a surface to disturb the waves. They have much the same effect on sound waves that a fish line in the water has on water waves. Sounding boards or, more properly, reflecting boards, have value in special cases. Some experiments are described in the bulletin, where pronounced effects were obtained. The sounding board should be of special design to fit the conditions under which it is to be used.

An investigation of the acoustical properties of the auditorium was begun in 1908 and has continued for six years. It was decided at the outset not to use "cut and try" methods of cure, but to attack the problem systematically so that general principles could be found, if possible, that would apply not only to the case being investigated but to auditoriums in general. This plan of procedure delayed the solution of the problem since it became necessary to study the theory of sound and carry out laboratory investigations at the same time that the complex conditions in the auditorium were being considered. The manner in which the problem was studied and solved is described in Bulletin No. 73 of the Engineering Experiment Station of the University of Illinois. Prof. F. R. Watson, the author, spent one year of the six abroad studying the theory of acoustics and inspecting various auditoriums.

Methods Employed to Improve the Acoustics.

The provisional cure was brought about gradually by trying different devices suggested by the diagnosis. In one set of experiments sounding boards of various shapes and sizes were used. A flat board about five feet square placed at an incline over the position of the speaker produced little effect. A larger canvas surface, about 12 by 20 feet, was not much better. A parabolic reflector, however, gave a pronounced effect. This reflector was mounted over a pulpit at one end of the stage and served to intercept much of the sound that otherwise would have gone to the dome and produced echoes.

A thick carpet had been placed on the stage, heavy velour curtains 18 by 32 feet in area hung on the wall at the rear of the stage, a large canvas painting 400 square feet in area was installed, and the glass removed from the skylight in the ceiling, and curtains hung in the dome. The time of reverberation was reduced to 4.8 seconds. With an audience present this value was reduced still more, and when the hall was crowded at commencement time the reverberation was not troublesome.

It is proposed to replace the present unsightly curtains with materials which will conform to the architecural features of the auditorium and which will have a pleasing color scheme. At the same time, it will be necessary to hold the features which have improved the acoustics.

PRESIDENT MARKS TO BROKERS.

A Real Estate Smoker at Hahn's—A Legislative Program.

The New York City branch of the Real Estate Association of the State of New York held a smoker at Hahn's restaurant in the Park Row Building on Wednesday evening, at which Borough President Marks was the principal speaker. Mr. Marks stated that in his opinion the wave of governmental regulation and over-inspection had run its course and that the reaction had begun to set in.

He called attention to the plans now under way for consolidating the various inspection departments and bureaus engaged in supervising real estate in each borough and stated that without doubt this plan would be consummated.

In answer to a question, he said he did not anticipate opposition on the part of the Mayor or Comptroller, provided that the plan was endorsed by the real estate and civic bodies throughout the city.

Referring to the subway accident which prevented a great many members from reaching the meeting, he said:

"This accident makes me feel how foolish we are to put human beings underground and freight above the ground. That has the open air, and yet we carry millions of human beings in tubes beneath the surface of the earth. It is a curious anomaly."

Referring to the open markets, Mr. Marks contended that they were a benefit to the real estate interests, in that they increased the prosperity of the people, and real estate is dependent upon this prosperity. He said that if an effort were made to close these markets it would result in a serious riot and the city would be forced to reopen them. He stated that it was proposed to charge a fee of one dollar per week for stands in these markets and that on that basis the markets would yield a new revenue of at least $50,000 to the city. He congratulated the members of the State association on the progress made in New York City with a growth from less than twenty-five members to over one hundred and fifty in a little over two months and predicted that the association would have at least fifteen hundred members before the close of 1915 in New York City alone.

A. E. Holcomb, treasurer of the National Tax Association, reported on the matter of Taxation and called attention to the State Tax Conference which is to be held at Albany beginning January 19.

A new code of ethics prepared by the Ethics Committee was submitted for consideration and discussed.

J. M. Brody presented the report of the Building Laws Committee, of which Mortimer J. Fox is chairman, on the subject of the consolidation of the various bureaus and departments engaged in regulating and inspecting real estate. It was ordered that as soon as this report is printed it should be sent to all of the members of the association, especially those outside of New York City, in order to secure their assistance in obtaining the necessary legislation at Albany.

Legislation That Is Needed.

The president reported on behalf of the Legislative Committee that while this committee was not ready to take up any definite legislation at this time it was sending a communication to each member of the State Senate and Assembly explaining the work of the association and saying that there were three main things that would be taken up with the Legislature by the association, namely:

1. The mitigation of undue governmental regulation and interference with real estate and real estate owners.

2. The adoption of a model tax system for the State of New York—one which will be in advance of anything now in existence.

3. The placing of the real estate business upon a professional basis through the enactment, if necessary, of a law for the licensing of real estate brokers and dealers.

Alfred Hall, a real estate agent at Suffern, Rockland County, who came to the meeting with two new members from Rockland County, spoke of the deplorable lack of efficiency in assessing country property, and cited specific instances where such property was assessed for one-third or less of its actual cash value.

Julius Frank, the newly-elected Mayor of Ogdensburgh, New York, and a newly-elected member of the association, said the up-State members were willing and anxious to help wherever and whenever they could.

The next meeting of the association will be held February 11, and Comptroller Prendergast has accepted an invitation to speak on the city's finances as affecting real estate and the importance of a proper relationship between the city and its real estate men.

United Owners' Ball.

The annual entertainment and ball of the United Real Estate Owners' Association on Thursday evening of this week, at Terrace Garden, presented the usual scene of gayety which the members have become accustomed to expect on this one occasion of the year when the solid property owners of New York throw off their many cares, and with their wives and daughters indulge in one evening's devotion to the latest fashionable dances!

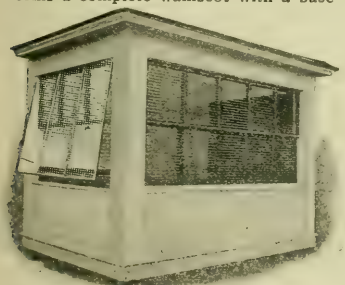
A vaudeville entertainment of much merit preceded the ball; the latter was continued until the early hours—in fact, the hours were not so very early when dancing actually ceased.

Borough Presidents Marks, Mathewson and McCormick, with many high city officials were present, including Hon. Cyrus Miller, Commissioner William H. Abbott and Frederick Liebich.

The decorations were a duplicate of those used at the recent Star-Spangled Banner celebration in Baltimore and have seldom been equalled in this city. Much credit is due to Messrs. William H. Mehlich and Charles W. Eidt for the successful arrangements and entertainment. The grand march was led by the president of the association, Mr. Stewart Browne and Mrs. Eisenhauer. Mr. Winifred Watson, the floor manager, gave a wonderful display of the latest dances. The disposal of the tickets and the financial management was ably attended to by Messrs. L. Victor Weil, Henry Bloch and Henry F. A. Wolf.

USEFUL APPLIANCES

Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration



Window Adds One More Room.

TO all intents and purposes another room can be added to a building already erected by the application of a single specially made window that is being introduced by the Wendelken Manufacturing Company, of Marietta, O. In other words, the installation of a glazed sash, blinds and screens in one casement so arranged as to drop into a packet behind the wainscoting when not in use, converts exposed porches into living rooms, dining rooms, or sleeping rooms, suitable for all seasons of the year.

The window as seen from the interior is shown in the first illustration and its appearance from the outside of the house is shown in the other. It consists of a substantially constructed framework having sliding spaces, pulleys and weights for four movable sash, two of which are glazed and two of which are all-metal shutters. This frame-work rests upon a rigid wall, the outer section of which fits flush with the face of the building or the porch rail, in any other material to conform with the architectural trim of the building. The inner face sets flush with inside walls of the room when the system is used as a permanent feature of the house construction. When used in connection with a porch or for detached out-of-doors sleeping rooms, this inner surface forms a complete wainscot with a baseboard at the bottom and with a window sill at the top.

The sill is fastened to the frame-work by means of hinges so that it can be lifted like the lid of a box to permit the sash to be raised from or lowered into the hollow chamber between the inner and outer walls and closing securely at all other times.

What is known as the tuck-away casement is made with only two slides instead of four, to be used where only the adjustable steel blinds are desired without the glazed sash, or, vice versa, where the glazed sash are to be used without the adjustable blinds.

Every screen is made in a unit frame covering the entire opening and is attached to the upper part of the casement by hinges so that it can be swung outward at any angle desired, giving unobstructed access to the windows for purposes of window washing, etc. The screen does not in any way interfere with the operation of the sash.

Unlike the ordinary sliding window the sash are so nicely balanced that they can be lifted or lowered to any desired position with practically no effort on the part of the operator.

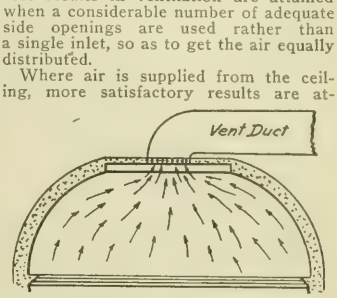
Being in themselves complete wall sections that require only to be placed in position and fastened together by any person familiar with the use of tools, they can easily be erected forming the entire outer walls of summer cottages, sleeping porches, sun-rooms, summer houses, garden tea-rooms and detached out-of-doors sleeping porches. When used for the latter purpose they are be set on properly built level floors and roofed in any manner that appeals to the taste of the owner.

Coal Clinkering.

ONE of the most troublesome features in the combustion of coal is due to the production of clinker, says the American Gas Light Journal. This influences the rate of combustion and the cost of maintenance, especially with automatic stokers. A coal may clinker so readily under certain conditions that it becomes unfit for use, irrespective of its fuel value. It is, therefore, of the greatest importance to know whether a coal will clinker under the conditions for which it is required.

It would appear therefore that there is no relation between the percentage of the various constituents of the ash and the fusing temperature. Hence a chemical analysis is of no value for arriving at a judgment as to the clinkering quality.

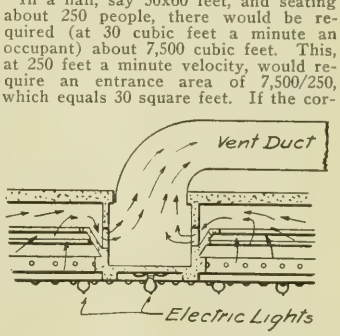
It has been common practice to place 1.5 per cent. of sulphur as a limit, and to penalize the seller as much as 4 cents per ton for every 0.25 per cent. of sulphur above 1.50 per cent. The injustice of this practice is evident, as it often happens that coals with a high sulphur content are extremely high in heat value, and do not clinker readily. Since the sulphur has no appreciable effect upon the metallic parts of the furnace, it need not be considered in the selection of a coal for steaming purposes. To arrive at the value of a coal for this purpose it is therefore just as essential to make the fusion test of the ash as it is to make the calorimetric determination. If these two determinations are made, an explanation is readily found as to why two coals of apparently like proximate analyses give entirely different evaporation when fired under like conditions.



Ceiling Ventilation.

HINTS for investors and builders interested in the construction of public assembly halls and theatres are contained in an article, by Harold L. Alt, in the American Carpenter and Builder. Incidentally it gives some practical ideas on how any room may be ventilated without draught.

The three accompanying illustrations show how this is accomplished in the modern buildings. The first shown is the old fashioned dome ceiling ventilator, which is giving place to the method shown in the second illustration, where the space in back of the moulding or cornice is profitably employed to bring fresh air into the room and to allow foul air to escape. The false beam ceiling type of ventilation shown in the third illustration is considered, by Mr. Alt, to be the most efficient of the three, because the air can be supplied not only around the sides but behind a cornice or plate rail.



The first type of ventilator is especially suitable for exhaust ventilation, as indicated in the drawing, says Mr. Alt, but for supplying fresh air, this single ceiling inlet is not nearly as good as a larger number of smaller inlets located in various portions of the dome or some of the slot inlets shown in the other drawings. This is because the best results in ventilation are attained when a considerable number of adequate side openings are used rather than a single inlet, so as to get the air equally distributed.

Where air is supplied from the ceiling, more satisfactory results are attained with a "ventilating cornice," as shown. This cornice is usually run around the four sides of the hall or auditorium, although oftentimes it is omitted across the wall above the stage. The air is fed into this cornice by a duct somewhat, as indicated. The air velocity is usually figured at 250 feet a minute through such an opening.

In a hall, say 50x60 feet, and seating about 250 people, there would be required (at 30 cubic feet a minute an occupant) about 7,500 cubic feet. This, at 250 feet a minute velocity, would require an entrance area of 7,500/250, which equals 30 square feet. If the cornice ran around the four sides of the hall it would be 50 plus 60 times 2, or 220 lineal feet long. The total area divided by the length gives the height, so 30/220 equals .13 feet height, or 1⅝ inches. Ordinarily the cornice probably would be run on three sides only, or would be obstructed for part of its length so as to give a total lineal footage of only about one-half of what we have assumed. In this case the height of the opening approximately would be doubled, or about 3 inches; this is almost the customary height that these openings are made.

Still better distribution is obtainable where the ceiling is partitioned off by false beams such as is indicated in the above. In this case the air can be supplied not only around the sides with a cornice and in the center along the beams, but the cornice may be omitted entirely and good distribution obtained from the ceiling beams alone. Of course the type of ceiling opening is largely dependent on the ceiling construction, it being manifestly impossible to use beam openings in a domed ceiling such as above, while the single outlet shown would hardly be decided upon where a flat beamed ceiling is used.

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

Group of Reinforced Concrete Factories and Warehouses in Brooklyn, During Decade, Has Changed Character of Neighborhood

SINCE 1904 a group of modern factory and warehouse buildings has been erected along Brooklyn's waterfront in the territory adjacent to the Brooklyn and Manhattan bridges. This section is a constricted one, and up to that year was a district of obsolete warehouses, squalid tenements and buildings of a decidedly questionable character. Considered as a group viewed from the Brooklyn Bridge, the buildings give a true impression of their extreme solidity and safety. They are fireproof and include all the modern appliances for the protection of life and property from the fire hazard. Large windows fully assure an adequate supply of the natural light and represent the maximum of efficiency from a sanitary viewpoint. Activity in this section was started in 1904 when the Robert Gair Company, paper manufacturers, retained William Higginson, an architect and engineer, to design and superintend the erection of a nine-story and basement factory building. This structure was erected in Washington and Water streets, and covers a plot 100x231 feet. The work was accomplished under general contract by the Turner Construction Company, 11 Broadway, and was completed in 1905.

Success following the erection of the first reinforced concrete building in this section, the Robert Gair Company has since that time erected six additional structures of various sizes and for different uses, all designed, however, by Mr. Higginson and built by the Turner Construction Company. The building completed in 1905 proving efficient, steps were taken that same year to erect an addition of the same height and size, thus filling out the block between Washington, Water and Front streets, Brooklyn, and the Manhattan Bridge. A two-story stable, 88x50 feet, at Water and Main streets was the next project to be started, and this was followed by a twelve-story and basement warehouse, 171x110 feet, in Washington, Front and Flint streets, completed in 1911. The activities of the Gair Company continued and during 1913 a ten-story factory building, 200x125 feet, was erected in Washington, Front and Water streets. The most recent addition to the Gair group is the sixteen-story building, 200x125 feet, on the block front in Water street from Main to Plymouth street.

A. Zerega's Sons, Consolidated, macaroni manufacturers, recently completed a seven-story building, 55x95 feet, in Dock and Front streets. Arbuckle Brothers, sugar and coffee merchants, in 1911 erected an eleven-story warehouse on Jay, Plymouth and Main streets which was designed by William Higginson, architect, and also erected by the Turner Construction Company. This building is notable chiefly for having nine railroad tracks in the first story, floor construction for the safe carrying of exceedingly heavy floor loads, and the most extensive protection against the fire hazard.

ZEREGA'S SONS FACTORY.

S. Sternau & Company, in 1912, erected a ten-story and basement factory building in John street near Gold street. This building is used partly for the manufacture of alcohol burning utensils and partly as a loft and storage building. Boorum & Pease, manufacturers of blank books, during 1914 erected for their own occupancy a building seven stories in height, 100x100 feet, corner of Hudson avenue and Front street. The building was designed by W. S. Timmis, architect. Hoole Machine Works building in Washington street, four stories and basement, 40x80 feet, was built in 1904 from plans by J. Sarsfield Kennedy. D. R. Squibb & Sons, drug manufacturers, are occupying a new building at Vine, McKinney and Doughty streets. This structure is six stories and basement in height, 54x100 feet, and planned by G. B. Provost, architect. The Eagle Storage & Warehouse Company constructed a warehouse, six stories, 50x90 feet, from plans by Frank Freeman, architect. These four buildings were erected by the Turner Construction Company.

The W. H. Sweeney Manufacturing Company is occupying a new factory for the manufacture of metal cooking utensils in Water and Plymouth streets, near Dock street, ten stories in height, 100x100 feet. Cavanaugh Brothers are the owners of a nine-story loft building in Sands street, adjacent to the Manhattan Bridge approach, which is nine stories in height, approximately 100x70 feet, designed by William L. Stoddard. Thomson Meter Company has built a four-story factory, approximately 100x100 feet, in Hudson street, near Sands street, from plans by Louis E. Jallade, used for the manufacture of water meters. Hanan & Sons, shoe manufacturers, and Kirkman & Son, soap manufacturers, are also occupying modern reinforced concrete structures at 215 Water street.

GROUP OF RECENTLY COMPLETED CONCRETE FACTORIES IN BROOKLYN.

These buildings represent the most modern practice in engineering and construction and are sure to be followed by others of a similar type, as the section affords good transit facilities for employees as well as convenience for shipping.

The completion of these buildings and their occupancy by manufacturing concerns of the highest order has entirely changed the character of the district from a warehouse to a manufacturing center and has increased property values to a marked degree.

BUILDING NOTICE.

(Bulletin No. 23, 1914.)

On Jan. 1, 1915, the form in use in this Bureau, known as Form No. 73, slip application, was discontinued.

On that date a new form, known as Form No. 213, 1915 building notice, was put into use. This notice is in the nature of an informal letter addressed to the Superintendent of Buildings, and should be typewritten (one copy only) and sent to the Bureau before beginning any of the work specified.

This building notice is to be used only for minor alterations or repairs not affecting in any way the main structural features or safety of an existing building or the exits or means of egress from the building; and for the erection of small sheds and outhouses, moving picture booths, fences not used for advertising purposes, temporary reviewing stands and similar new structures which can not properly be filed on a New Building Application form.

These structures or minor alterations must be clearly described in writing without plans. Any new structure or alteration requiring a plan must be filed on a New Building or Alteration Application blank, as the case may be. If this building notice is used in connection with any building not above enumerated, a violation will be filed and prosecuted through the Law Department.

The new Form No. 213 "Building Notice" is not out of press as yet, so the present Slip Application, Form No. 73 may be used temporarily for this purpose.

ALFRED LUDWIG,
Superintendent of Buildings,

Building Trade Wages, 1915.

The United Board of Business Agents of the Building Trades of Manhattan and Vicinity, with headquarters at 154 East 54th street, has issued its schedule of prevailing rates of wages for the coming year. The schedule is based on eight hours' work per day, from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m., except on Saturday, when work in the building trades ceases at noon. All recognized legal holidays and Sundays are to be figured as "double time." Compensation for a practical foreman ranges from fifty cents to one dollar a day more than the schedule rate. The trades enumerated are those which are affiliated with the United Board. Roswell D. Tompkins is the secretary of the board.

The Elevator Ordinance Held Up.

The Board of Aldermen has laid the Building Committee's elevator ordinance over for a month. A pamphlet entitled "Elevators and Their Safety," by W. E. D. Stokes, was circulated among the members of the board. Mr. Stokes is interested in an elevator construction company as well as in hotels and real estate. The pamphlet is directed particularly against section 10 of the ordinance, which requires the installation of some safety device that will prevent a car from being moved while the door to the elevator shaft is open.

A similar requirement appeared last year in a bill before the Legislature which failed of enactment. Much of the opposition among property owners to this requirement has been withdrawn, since there has been a better understanding as to the cost, which will not be as great as first supposed. In fact, some authorities say that it is possible to install an electrical safety device for a very small sum per opening. Whether such a device would satisfy the Building Department is another question. Ex-Superintendent Miller has estimated the cost at $20 an opening, and some manufacturers say $12.

A considerable opposition remains, however, based on the score of the expense involved. Among the opponents are the hotel men's association and the United Real Estate Owners' Association. The Allied Real Estate Interests favor the ordinance.

The ordinance establishing Suburban Fire Limits was passed by the Board of Aldermen this week, and is now before the Mayor.

The proposed city ordinance regulating the heights, sizes and arrangement of buildings was approved this week by the Chamber of Commerce, following the adoption of a report submitted by Howard C. Smith, chairman of the special committee.

Tribute to Supt. McDermott.

At the close of business New Year's eve, Superintendent of Buildings William J. McDermott was surprised to see the employees filing into his office. His surprise was still greater when James Nolan, Chief Clerk of the Bureau, handed him a fountain pen, richly embossed in gold, bearing the following inscription: "Presented to William J. McDermott, Superintendent of Buildings, Borough of Richmond, January 1, 1915, by the employees of the Bureau."

In replying, Mr. McDermott said: "I am very much pleased with the spirit of true co-operation shown me and also with the courtesy and consideration shown to the public who have dealings with this department."

In connection with the Bureau of Buildings, Borough of Richmond, it is interesting to note that notwithstanding the stringency in the money market and the falling off of building operations in the other boroughs, Richmond shows a healthy increase in the number of new buildings erected during the fiscal year ending December 1, 1914, over the corresponding period of last year. Superintendent McDermott considers the outlook for 1915 very bright.

—In New York City there are 545,096 separately assessed parcels of real estate. Manhattan has 95,053; the Bronx, 66,598; Brooklyn, 214,211; Queens, 134,987, and Richmond, 34,247.

BUILDING FOR NEW YORK CARD COMPANY

Ballinger & Perrot, Architects

THE New York Consolidated Card Company is one of the large manufacturing concerns which in recent years has located in Long Island City. Its new building is located at Fourth and Webster avenues, and is representative of a typical reinforced concrete factory of today. This building is five stories and basement in height and covers, in plan, an area 456x70 feet, with various extensions for power house, garage and outside stairwell, and is one of the largest reinforced concrete plants ever erected during cold weather. In order to successfully erect this building in cold weather, extra equipment was necessary, including tarpaulin to enclose the sides and top of the building, and salamanders (open stoves) burning coke to generate the required heat so that a temperature of about 75 degrees was maintained in the vicinity of the new work. In addition to these precautions, the sand and gravel were heated on griddles of steam coils, thereby preventing any chance of frozen material, and a steam jet was connected to the water barrel, to prevent ice particles, and to be absolutely sure that forms and steel reinforcement were in the proper condition to receive the concrete, they were sprayed with steam prior to starting work. The building is intended for rather light manufacturing and is designed for 150 pounds live-loads on floors in addition to the dead weight. This plant will be used for the manufacture of playing cards and when in full operation will employ 500 or 600 hands. This building was erected by the Turner Construction Company, 11 Broadway, New York City, under the direction of Ballinger & Perrot, architects and engineers, of Philadelphia, Pa.

OPTIMISM THE KEYNOTE IN QUEENS BORO

Fourth Annual Dinner of the Chamber of Commerce Brings Out Views of Many Well Known Men

"To promote the general welfare of the Borough of Queens, and to foster its commerce," was the slogan of the Fourth Annual Dinner of the Chamber of Commerce of Queens held at the Waldorf-Astoria last Wednesday evening. About three hundred and fifty members and their guests were present when Robert W. Higbie, the president of the Chamber and the toastmaster of the occasion, made his opening address. Queens was splendidly represented, nearly every class of industry being present.

The speakers of the occasion, in addition to Mr. Higbie, were Hon. William C. Redfield, Secretary of the Department of Commerce; Hon. W. Morgan Shuster, one-time Treasurer General of Persia; Hon. Frederick E. Crane, Justice of the Supreme Court; Hon. George McAneny, President of the Board of Aldermen, and Hon. Edward E. McCall, Chairman of the Public Service Commission, First District.

Others at the guest table included Hon. Robert C. Wood, Hon. J. Sergeant Cram, Hon. George V. S. Williams and Hon. Milo R. Maltbie, all members of the Public Service Commission; Laurence M. D. McGuire, President Real Estate Board; Hon. F. J. H. Kracke, Bridge Commissioner, and Rev. George Drew Egbert, who said the opening prayer.

Secretary Redfield Speaks.

Mr. Redfield, after speaking of the vast scope of the department with which he is connected, said in part: "I seem to have a recollection that there was a Roman citizen who paid the usual price for the land on which, at the time of his purchase, the enemy's army was encamped, threatening the existence of the Nation. In these later days when the Roman type of courage has not always been universal, the word 'optimist' seems sometimes used to convey an element of criticism. It appears to be said by some as implying a more hopeful attitude than facts justify; as expressing that which one desires to happen rather than that which a calm review of facts warrants one in believing will happen.

"What are you and I justified in believing now about our own affairs? On January 1, the National City Bank of Chicago issued a circular letter from which I take these words, 'Speaking broadly, therefore, underlying conditions show marked improvement and the outlook is encouraging for better business and better times.' On the same day the National City Bank of New York used these words in a similar publication: 'Many of the fundamental conditions are working into a state favorable to an industrial revival.'

"It is my sincere belief that when the history of the last six months shall be fully written, one of its brightest pages will be that which tells of the sagacity and courage with which our bankers and business men met the trying problems brought by the shock of war.

"How great the contrast between the financial facts of August and those of

ROBERT W. HIGBIE.

January. Then the currents of exchange ceased to flow, and for a time ceased also the movement of our export trade. Now one finds exchange plenty and cheap, and few have witnessed such an outward rush of merchandise as today taxes our ports and overwhelms our shipping facilities. The temporary adverse trade balance of the summer was changed to a favorable balance on merchandise transactions, in September, of $16,000,000. This was multiplied by three in October, and to the total fifty per cent. was added in November and almost another fifty per cent. in December when the favorable balance was more than $110,000,000. The facts thus far during January are such as to show a probability that this will be exceeded during the present month.

The Foreign Trade.

"In 1914 our total imports were close to those of 1913. In the latter year they were seventeen hundred and ninety-two and a half millions; in 1914 they were a trifle less than seventeen hundred and ninety-five millions—a difference of two and a half millions of this great total, or an increase of about one-seventh of one per cent. In Great Britain in 1914 the imports fell off three hundred and fifty-five millions.

"On the export side, with December estimated, our exports fell off three hundred and eighty-six millions, as compared with 1913. Those of Great Britain fell off four hundred and seventy-five millions. But this gave a false impression, for since August our exports have grown by leaps and the last month of this year was the largest showing, a gain of twenty-five million over November in Great Britain; on the other hand, the exports, for December, decreased seventeen million pounds—about eighty-five million dollars.

"We have begun a little in the way of helping others financially. It is not much as such matters go, but it is a good beginning. Thus we have loaned, to Argentina, fifteen millions of late; also monies to Sweden, to Norway, to France, to Panama and to Canada. Here opens the door of opportunity. If we can maintain the change which seems partly to be going on from the debtor to the creditor side in international finance by the continued sale of our products in great and growing quantities, then may be extend the hand of financial fellowship to the nations and, in this way, build, as hitherto, our great competitors have done, soundly and strongly the fiscal basis for a greater foreign trade than we have known. Out of this, as of necessity then, will arise greater steadiness in our own production, greater assurance against spasm in industry, greater security against unemployment and against the loss of interest on industrial investments. Hitherto America has invested somewhat in Canada and from it has reaped fairly good returns.

More Encouragement.

"In recent weeks there have been a number of further events, all on the helpful side. First and foremost of these I would put the advance in freight rates. Too long, in my judgment, have the railways, our largest employers and our largest buyers, been cramped within too narrow limits of income. I earnestly hope that for them the dawn of a better day has come.

"We have not yet felt to the full the favorable results of the Panama Canal, partly because the war has interfered with the normal benefits to us, and partly because our thoughts and feelings have been so immersed in the great tragedy yonder that we have not given it thought. One need not be blind to the fact that there are adverse influences. The scarcity of ships contracts our trade at an hour when its expansion is of vital value. The high rates which are consequently charged act as a partial embargo on our agriculture and commerce and benefits chiefly the stockholders in other lands who own such ocean shipping facilities as are available.

Business Expanding.

"On the other hand it seems to me the sincere desire even of the belligerent nations to relieve all unnecessary restrictions from our neutral commerce and it is for their obvious interest that this should be done. It is gratifying to notice in the recent trade and business press the opening of a factory here and a shop yonder to larger operations, the placing of orders by railways and a more confident feeling in business circles generally. To this the recent announcement of a gain of more than half a million tons in unfilled orders by the Steel Corporation will contribute.

"It has come to me, through the usual official channels, that the favorable foreign trade balance of the United States in the single week ending January 9, in the thirteen districts which make weekly telegraph reports, was in excess of thirty-five million dollars. Allowing for the balance of districts unreported, this means a favorable balance on merchandise transactions in our foreign trade, in six days of the present month, of forty millions, or at an average rate in excess of six million dollars daily. I do not need to urge upon this audience the import of such astonishing facts as these. They are not, be it observed, fancies, but facts, and facts that mean much for the present and future of our beloved country."

Justice Crane summarized his remarks as follows: 1. Commerce and business should be left alone, except for the general weal.

2. Laws which seek to control commerce and business should be for the general public good and no other. That is, laws should not be passed interfering with any man's business until general necessity requires it.

3. That large business, big enterprises or even combinations for trade or commerce are not evils in themselves and should not be discouraged. It is not the magnitude of any business, or the wealth of any man which is an evil, but rather, the dishonest and oppressive methods by which greatness is achieved, and these the laws should suppress.

4. Manufacture or Commerce needs the law to protect it, but not to make it. The law cannot make business, but business and commerce have made the law.

5. Business is not done on a cash basis, but on credit, extending over long periods of time. Credit must be above suspicion. To cast suspicion upon business or business methods of the country is as great an evil as to directly legislate to ruin it. There is no such thing as a country's honor (of which we all are concededly jealous), as distinguished from commercial honor. They are one and the same thing. Prominent men should be as careful to avoid needless abuse of business, manufacture or commerce, as they are to avoid slandering a woman or their country.

6. Men who have brains, courage and energy enough to achieve success as financiers, manufacturers, merchants or as corporate executors, should be expected and asked to advise regarding Federal legislation, touching these fields, instead of theorists and place hunters. The presumption should be in favor of and not against the wisdom and patriotism of the merchant or manufacturer.

Chairman McCall spoke at some length about the transit system, existing and proposed. He approved the plans for the Jamaica avenue line and said that this problem was now out of the way. He blamed the men of Queens, in a large measure, for the delay. This was occasioned because they could not agree among themselves. Various committees were constantly appearing before the Commission, and present opposing schemes. This was specially true as concerning the Queensboro Bridge.

"The bridge problem," said Mr. McCall, "is a most knotty one and is causing us all kinds of trouble to find a proper solution. There have been many suggestions made, but the Commission is endeavoring to do the most good for the greatest number. This is paramount. The Queensboro bridge was never designed for the purpose which it is now proposed to put it to use. The matter of cost should not interfere, because if a correct solution is found, the expense will be a small matter.

"If a tunnel is substituted, you men of Queens must bear the responsibility of delay, and delay is sure to ensue. Whatever is best for the community is what the Commission desires to give you."

PROBLEMS OF STATE AND LOCAL TAXATION

The Tax Reform Association Says the Present Time is Inopportune for Far-Reaching Changes in the Tax Law

THE coming year will afford the New York Tax Reform Association many opportunities. The Legislature will have before it important matters relating to taxation and finance, and the Constitutional Convention meets in April to revise the fundamental laws. The annual report of the association issued this week, and signed by Secretary A. C. Pleydell, expresses the opinion, however, that the general business situation makes this an inopportune time to push any far-reaching changes in the tax law.

It is all the more important, therefore, says the report, to obtain improvements in administration that will minimize existing inequalities. And the pressure of growing public expenditures, with the resulting demand for more revenue, makes it increasingly necessary to guard against unwise measures that would discourage productive enterprise.

The report gives a summary of tax legislation in this and other States during 1914. In our own State, as will be recalled, such legislation was of a minor character. Attempts to repeal the secured debt tax and to restore double taxation under the inheritance tax law were defeated.

State Finances.

In respect to State finances, it is said: "For several years we have been calling attention to the growing expenditures of the State and the condition of the treasury. After the State adopted the policy of raising all its revenue from the so-called indirect or special taxes, the receipts were larger than had been anticipated, and by 1908 a surplus of fourteen million dollars had been accumulated. Since then expenditures have been increasing out of proportion to the revenue.

"While the receipts from special taxes increase somewhat in proportion to the growth of population and wealth, current expenses have been increasing in a greater ratio. In addition, the State has undertaken canal and road construction through bond issues which will finally aggregate $250,000,000, and each year a larger sum is needed for the sinking fund and interest payments—the current need being about ten million dollars. In 1911 and 1912 the situation was met by imposing a direct State tax on the assessed value of property throughout the State somewhat more than sufficient to cover the bond requirements. In 1913 a smaller direct tax was imposed.

"Since the adoption of the inheritance tax changes proposed by this association in 1911, the revenues from this source have averaged about four million dollars annually in excess of any prior year, while the secured debt tax enacted in the same year has averaged more than one million dollars annually. The excess of revenue from these two sources during the past three years amounting to some fifteen million dollars, has done much to keep down the direct tax.

"The appropriations of 1914 were much less than for any recent year, being about $47,500,000; but it is doubtful, if under present business conditions, the revenue from the special taxes and miscellaneous sources during the fiscal year, will be sufficient to meet the appropriations. Any shortage in these rereipts will have to be made up from cash on hand, as no direct tax was imposed this year.

"Without entering into details here, it may be said that the incoming administration will face a serious financial problem in providing for all of the necessary expenditures of the State and meeting its obligations. Unless a considerable retrenchment can be made in the usual expenditures, it is hardly likely that some direct tax for the next fiscal year can be avoided.

The Constitutional Convention.

"The Constitutional Convention which meets in April will have to consider a number of matters relating to taxation and finance. One of the most important questions will be a revision of the provisions in regard to the creation of indebtedness, State and local. The constitution now provides that any law authorizing the issue of State bonds must impose a tax sufficient for the interest and retirement of the bonds.

"Such tax rates are a fixed quantity, and as the assessed valuations of property throughout the State increase annually, the amount collected for sinking fund purposes also increases and exceeds that which is necessary, according to rules of amortization. This would not matter, however, if some method were provided for retiring bonds before maturity at the option of the State, since it would reduce the length of time necessary to pay off the indebtedness. But so far the excess simply piles up in the sinking fund.

"The enormous increase in the public debts of States and municipalities throughout the United States is creating a serious problem. In some States the practice of issuing serial bonds is encouraged, and the life of the bonds is limited according to the life of the improvement for which they are issued.

"To limit the power of creating indebtedness is desirable because there is no other practicable restriction against extravagances at the expense of the future. And it might be well to insert in the constitution of this State a provision forbidding the surrender of the taxing power, similar to section 178 of the North Dakota constitution (hereinafter quoted). But constitutional restrictions on the power to adapt tax laws to changing conditions are unwise and unnecessary. The laws by which current revenues are raised are under the constant scrutiny of the voters and can be changed if they are unsatisfactory, provided the constitution permits.

Limitations on the Taxing Power.

"There are certain to be proposals before the convention seeking to place limitations on the taxing power of the Legislature, and possibly some attempt will be made to secure a provision for the taxation of all property by uniform rule. Any limitation on the power of the Legislature to classify the subjects of taxation and to prescribe the plan or method by which each class shall be taxed, or to grant such exemptions as seem desirable for the encouragement of commerce and industry, would place obstacles in the way of progress and be out of harmony with the trend of modern fiscal policy. New York is one of the few States whose constitution has been free from such limitations, and consequently the Legislature has been able to modify the system of taxation in accordance with modern industrial developments."

The tax laws of New York may be far from perfect, but the fact remains they have been to a large measure followed by States whose constitutions permit such legislation. Many other States, unable to enact similar statutes because of constitutional limitations, are trying to remove those barriers, and the laws of New York are frequently used as an argument for the granting of greater freedom.

Yonkers Improvements.

At their last meeting, the Yonkers City Aldermen passed an ordinance to take over and lay out Midwood avenue through Miles Square road to Morningside road. This will mean the opening of another thoroughfare in Nepperhan Heights.

IMPROVEMENT AT APEX OF MANHATTAN

New South Ferry Building, in State Street, Erected by William H. Chesebrough, Another Monument Which Replaces Old-Time Landmarks

IN March, 1913, considerable attention was directed toward Battery Park, particularly at the southeasterly end, by the announcement that the Coles Estate and Henry C. Overing had sold the old dwellings at Nos. 1, 2 and 3 State street, forming the northwest corner of Whitehall street. The plot, 83 x 103.5, contained about 11,500 square feet. The name of the purchaser was not given out at that time, and interest heightened when adjoining property at No. 4 was purchased from the German Lutheran Immigrant House Association, and at No. 5, including 18½ and 20 Pearl street, from the trustees of the Herman Wronkow estate. Later it became known that the buyer was the South Ferry Realty Company, William H. Chesebrough, president. The new owners controlled a plot 136 feet in State street, 131 feet in Whitehall street and 40 feet in Pearl street, occupied by old landmarks. The Overing family owned its property at No. 3 State street since 1795, while Robert Fulton, the inventor of the steamboat, was reported to have resided in another of these ancient residences.

Soon after the acquisition of the building site, plans were prepared, by Starrett & Van Vleck, architects, for the twelve-story building at Nos. 1 to 3, rapidly nearing completion. The property at Nos. 4 and 5 is now being demolished, preliminary to its improvement with a six-story structure, which will protect the westerly light and air of its neighbor.

SOUTH FERRY BUILDING.

The new building, designed in the simplicity of the Italian Renaissance, rises in striking contrast to the smaller and older buildings which are clustered about it, and include a number of rapidly disappearing old landmarks still remaining as ties binding old New York with the present-day city. Those left are the last reminders of the former residential character of State street, which in its time was the most fashionable residential community in the city. From the windows were witnessed the pageants occasioned by the inauguration of General Washington, as President of the United States, and later by the opening of the Erie Canal. No. 7 State street, now a home for immigrant girls, was, in the early part of the nineteenth century, one of the most fashionable of the old-time residences. At No. 8, also an historic landmark, the Lutheran Pilgrim House, opened in 1885, continues its work among the poorer German Lutheran immigrants. No. 9 was the site of the well-known residence of John Morton, known as the "rebel banker."

The South Ferry Building, as the new structure will be known, will be one of the most southerly structures of its kind, on Manhattan Island. When the question of a name came up there was a possibility that it would be called the Apex Building on account of its unique position, but it was finally decided that the name given was more appropriate, on account of its proximity to that transportation system.

NORTH FROM BATTERY PARK.

All the subway and elevated lines and surface cars of the city radiate from that point. Every mode of transit convenience available to the city is within reach including the ferry service to Brooklyn and Staten Island. With all these advantages it may be considered unusual that this corner was permitted to remain in a practically unimproved state for so many years, in spite of the extensive office building movement which has been going on towards the north.

It was left to another member of the Chesebrough family to continue the work which the small group had begun in the upbuilding of Battery Park. A number of towering structures may be seen far out from New York harbor, which remain as monuments to their initiative in constructing office buildings in a section of the city which so many people thought to be too far south. Robert A. Chesebrough, the pioneer in the Battery Park building movement, erected the Chesebrough Building, the Maritime Building and the Battery Park Building, just north of the new South Ferry Building. Contrary to general expectations these buildings have been successful, the owners reporting that they have been about 98 per cent. occupied, since completion.

William Chesebrough erected the twenty-story Whitehall Building, at 17 Battery Place, which proved such a success that he was encouraged to build a thirty-two story annex. These two structures are among the most imposing in New York City.

The addition of another office building to the colony at the "apex" of Manhattan Island is another step in the metamorphosis of Battery Park, from the old-fashioned residential section to the up-to-date business district. While the general tendency for the city's growth along practically every line has been towards the north, this operation assumes a new importance and attracts additional interest by the fact that it represents an expansion of the office building movement to the south.

Whether it will be as successful as its predecessors in the immediate neighborhood remains, of course, an open question. Its location, however, with reference to the transit lines, its proximity to the various exchanges and the Custom House, and to the various exporting and importing centers, makes the task of attracting tenants less difficult for the renting agent.

Several years ago a number of large office buildings were erected in Broadway, south of Fulton street, notably the Singer Building and City Investing Company's structure, adjoining, and, at the start, considerable difficulty was experienced in obtaining tenants. Even at the present time the situation has not entirely cleared. Later the Woolworth Building, a little further north, was erected and space for a great number of concerns was provided, and a considerable number of offices are yet untenanted. Some apprehension was expressed when the huge Equitable Building project was undertaken, the result being that a number of concerns, for years located in the district, moved to other quarters.

LOWER BROADWAY.

Conditions are, however, somewhat different, as regards the new South Ferry Building, because another class of tenants will be catered to, those who deal in export trades of various kinds.

THE DEPARTMENTAL ORDER CRISIS

Reform of Public Departments a Deferred Remedy—Immediate Needs of Owners—Relief from Legal Responsibility

PETER JOSEPH McKEON, Consulting Engineer

At a time when the value of real estate in New York is at a low ebb, through general business depression as well as unsettled local rental conditions, it happens that many owners are being ordered to vacate buildings, to answer summons or subpoenas, or are threatened with suits for the cost of extinguishing fires.

The demands of public departments coming thus at a time when owners are least able to provide money, create an acute situation for which immediate relief should be suggested before owners may be expected to consider other phases of the trouble.

It is surprising that this acute phase of Department Orders is being comparatively neglected and efforts concentrated on more remote measures of relief. Amending the laws and seeking a change in jurisdiction may ultimately bring relief, but in the meantime a large number of owners are in the position of violating the law, and in the event of some accident, they might be adjudged, "wilful, culpable and negligent," to use the language of the Appellate Division in the case of Fire Commissioner against the Greenwood Cemetery Corporation.

What owners need first of all is to be relieved of the personal responsibility incurred by being suddenly placed in the position of violating the law by not obeying Department Orders which they cannot comply with for real lack of financial resources. The second thing most needed by owners is competent advice regarding Department Orders, so that they may discriminate between orders which should be promptly and willingly complied with, because necessary for the reasonable safety of people in buildings, and those orders about which there is an honest difference of opinion as to both their reasonableness and their correctness.

If the owner can be guided in thus separating Department Orders into those needing immediate attention and those admitting of delay, he gains time and opportunity to study his present predicament, find out the real causes and seek a remedy.

Increased Comforts for Employees.

The present output of Department Orders bears unjustly upon owners because it is the employees of their tenants who are demanding increased comfort in their working conditions. Such a demand should properly be made, in the first place, of the employers and the employees have enlisted the aid of the State to force employers to grant their demands. As the thing works out, it is the owners of the buildings who receive the blow, because the State makes an immediate demand upon them and requires expensive alterations not provided for in the leases, and, before the owner can readjust his contracts with the tenants, who should properly pay for improvements demanded by their working people.

It must be conceded that many owners voluntarily better the conditions in their buildings when the need for such action is pointed out, but many others have the human failing of waiting for pressure to be applied. Such pressure appears to come from the State or city government, but in reality is actually applied by the people at large, who simply use the government as an instrument to accomplish their purpose. The government machinery, unfortunately, happens to be somewhat imperfect, so when it applies pressure to property owners, it is done unevenly, spasmodically and without definite plan and system, resulting in much injustice and unnecessary loss.

Owners' Protests Justified.

The faults in the public regulation of buildings, and the quasi-public regulation as well, as carried out in New York City, justifies owners of buildings in making protests. Such protests have been raised in former years in a mild way against the methods of public departments, but in the last three years, the large increase in violations placed against buildings and orders issued by the officials for new demands have correspondingly intensified individual protests so that they are now being presented by real estate organizations. It may thus be said that there is an organized protest; but, as a rule, such protests lack definite and practical proposals that promise to solve the problem and give owners of buildings permanent relief.

The proposals already made aim at having laws repealed or modified and the jurisdiction transferred as well as concentrated. Assuming that these efforts will ultimately be successful, it is well to consider the length of time required for obtaining the necessary legislation, the additional time required for the physical transfer of departmental machinery, the further time required for the necessary readjustment of the new and old parts of the proposed department.

Any one who thinks that a dozen city departments can be manipulated like pieces of cardboard had better inquire what is necessary and how long it takes to establish or reorganize one small bureau in a single department. Eventually the problem of multiple administration of building regulations will have its solution, but in the present situation, offering it as a relief to building owners is about as sensible as offering to build a bridge to help the man who has fallen in the river.

Those who have a practical knowledge of public administration know, and those who have only a theoretical knowledge will have to learn, that there are fundamental defects in our governmental machinery today which make it futile for afflicted owners to depend for real relief upon changes or manipulation of it. For example, the frequent shifting of administrative and executive officers is sufficient to make a public department an unknown quantity in the enforcement of building regulations.

A Check on Public Departments.

If the owners of buildings want sure, practical and permanent protection against unjust public regulations, they must establish a private agency, to continue under their control, organized and equipped for this particular work, and which will perform its functions regardless of how the public departments are performing theirs. Competent private supervision of public regulation will place such regulation on a permanent and definite basis and prevent the fluctuations which have existed in the past and which will continue as long as present methods are followed.

The first duty of such a supervising agency will be the collection of facts about building conditions in New York. The mere possession of complete and accurate information would be the most positive check upon public departments. The many demands for building regulation, alleged to be in the public interest, could be subjected to proper verification and when impractical or unnecessary shown to be so by a scientific proof. As valuable as a body of facts are to refute false claims or absurd demands, the important thing is to use them as a basis for constructive recommendation, to prevent the adoption of unscientific laws, ordinances or department regulations.

"Half baked" legislation is what owners must expect if they continue to permit legislatures, officials, or boards to adopt requirements, the results and effects of which are a matter of speculation. After requirements have been enforced for a year or more, it is found out that they are impractical, wasteful or even confiscatory, and after great damage or loss has been caused, they are amended; after another year of costly experimenting, still more amendments are found necessary, and the process continues indefinitely.

Such wasteful and experimental legislation can be prevented, because it does not take a prophet to tell how proposed building regulations are going to work out in actual process; it does take sufficient information plus the judgment of men of experience, and it is this double service that the private supervising agency would have available to apply to all regulations that unnecessarily increase the cost of erecting buildings or the cost of maintenance after erection.

What the Owner Would Get.

Any appeal to building owners to establish a supervising agency must show a practical benefit to the individual owner. What the individual owner will receive under this proposal is expert assistance in dealing with his own violations or orders. For one thing, he would be kept informed of changes in the regulations; if he received a notice from any department, he could refer it at once to the supervising agency which would investigate the notice and report to him what action was necessary or advisable. After the owner had received a report, he himself could pursue the matter, or use the services of the agency staff. As the agency would be handling hundreds of cases, its facilities and experience would enable it to secure better results than any single owner could hope to secure, not to mention the saving and relief to the owner through not having to take time from his regular business.

Administration by a Committee.

This suggestion, that owners depend on their own efforts and not on hoped-for improvements in public departments, is made as a result of more than ten years' close study and practical experience with the problems of building regulation. It is a singular fact that owners are willing to engage professional services to get them out of trouble, but lack the foresight to use the same services in preventing trouble. What has been done for individual owners in the form of economical and efficient compliance with department orders is a fair indication of what can be done for owners collectively, if they will subscribe to a fund on the basis of a small subscription per building. The fund should be administered by a responsible committee of the subscribers, along the lines of scientific organizations, and it would be directed first at the department order problem and then at other problems bearing on the real estate.

—Private dwellings in those parts of old Brooklyn within walking distance of stations on the subway line are remarkably well rented, so far as percentage of occupancy is concerned, and apartments everywhere are well occupied.

WHY PROPERTY OWNERS SHOULD UNITE

Neighborhood Councils Advised to Send Delegates to a Central Body—To Prevent Unwise Legislation

By J. BLEEKER MILLER

"THE UNITED," the only combination of asociations of real estate owners in the city, is a natural growth—not a machine; it has been developed gradually through experience of years of over-taxation by office-holders.

As in the present government of the United States, the several States preserve their individual rights as States; so in "the United," the associations maintain their local autonomy and independence. The combination was forced upon the "Locals" by the realization of their inability to fight single-handed against the political associations which covered the whole city,—even as the weakness of the thirteen original States forced them to adopt the present national government.

A Body of Delegates.

Only the delegates from these "locals" constitute full-fledged members of "the United"; no citizen, however rich or eminent, can hope to be an office-holder of "the United," unless he is sent as a representative of the interests of his neighborhood.

It is this plan of organization, rooted in the land, which makes "the United" a power dreaded by the professional politician, the patient work of some of our constituents extending over half a century, has earned a reputation which insures instant attention to the fearless criticisms of our president, Mr. Stewart Browne.

One problem still faces us: How can the other "locals" be brought to join "the United"? Upon their joining us depends our complete, ultimate success; the one hundred and twenty-five thousand owners of real property in Greater New York, with their friends, would be irresistible at the polls. The attempt to unite these owners directly, without the intermediary of a local organization, has often been made and has, as often, failed; the control of such general organizations always fell into the hands of a few rich owners or officers of large real estate corporations, with whom the average owner had no acquaintance and in whom he had no confidence.

Neighborhood Councils Advised.

It is only through delegates of neighborhoods meeting in counsel that conclusions can be reached which will command general adherence. An organization such as ours cannot be created in a day or in a year; patronizing advice of eminent citizens should not outweigh the practical experience of delegates selected as representatives of the several neighborhoods only; let us secure the co-operation of all these neighborhoods; it is in vain for our president and for our committees to expose political evils, unless we can show that if they are not remedied voluntarily by present office-holders, we can put men in office who will do so.

Moreover, the mere work of examination of all of the municipal departments which is absolutely necessary for a complete criticism of the budget, requires the united work of all the "locals" throughout the year; not only the votes of those "locals" are needed but also the individual co-operation of their members in watching the city government.

A Time of Danger.

As the Constitutional Convention meets this year, property owners have now a peculiar call to watch and criticise public affairs. Adherents of the Schenectady-Milwaukee scheme of municipal socialism occupy high offices in our city government. The hydra-headed Henry George theory of the "single tax" has appeared again; it may win unless all property owners unite to oppose it.

STEWART BROWNE.
President United R. E. Owners.

It is of the greatest importance that by immediately energetic action we maintain the momentum of the attacks already inaugurated and supply the volume of public opinion necessary to press home to a successful conclusion the attack so auspiciously begun in the debates upon this year's budget.

Very important questions will also confront property owners during the coming year conected with the correct location of the freight terminal of the New York Central; on this location hinges the adoption of plans for permanent markets, freight subways and many other expensive improvements.

As never before there is a call for property owners through their "locals" to join "the United," to prevent unwise, hasty and extravagant action on these questions, on which the cheap handling of goods, within the limits of Greater New York, and our ability to compete with other cities, as a great manufacturing center, depend.

The extension of taxation to all who do business within this city, so that they, too, will feel an interest in keeping the Budget below a figure which means a general confiscation of equities in real estate, requires the combination of the forces of all real estate owners; no matter how small that tax may be, it will at once bring to our side, as economizers, all the trade and professional organizations of the city.

Even without waiting for the imposition of this tax, attempts should be made at once to interest these trade and professional organizations in our work and secure their co-operation in our fight against the professional politician and in the supervision of the work of the many city departments; we can secure their aid if we can show them that our "locals" cover the city and that we, in fact, represent the property owners. With that accomplished, a long step will have been taken towards the realization of an ideal city government.

A THREE-FAMILY HOUSE INQUIRY

FOR the last decade the three-family house question has been continuously confronting real estate owners and brokers. The gradual disappearance of two and three-family houses in the several boroughs has been a source of regret to those who are interested in proper housing conditions for the people of the city. Much confusion has arisen as to the exact cause for the decline in building houses of this character, and up to the present time the situation has not been clarified by a comprehensive and thorough investigation of the subject. It is asserted on the one hand that the provisions of the Tenement House Law preclude the building of three-family houses, inasmuch as compliance with the requirements of this law adds considerable expense to their construction. On the other hand, it is maintained that economic and social conditions have intervened, and made the building of these houses unprofitable in the Boroughs of Manhattan, the Bronx, and probably Brooklyn. In the mean time, the housing of our people in multi-family houses has had a tendency to augment the percentage of the citizens who feel no direct interest in the government of the city, for in the past, conservative owners of real estate and their families numbered from one-third to one-half of the citizens, while to-day there are but 125,000 property owners to a population of 6,000,000 people.

The Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests has appreciated this situation, and realized that the time is now opportune to investigate this problem, and to arrive at a solution that will benefit the citizens of each borough. Consequently it has appointed a committee for this purpose, consisting of Messrs. Frank Bailey, Edward C. Blum, William M. Calder, Cyrus C. Miller, Frederic B. Pratt and Lawrence Veiller.

In Brooklyn there has been a decrease in the erection of three-family houses from 418 or 47 per cent. of the houses erected in 1912, to 227 or 29 per cent. of the houses erected in 1913, whereas in Queens the great bulk of the houses erected are three-story houses. A peculiar phase of the Brooklyn situation is that but 15 per cent. of the three-story houses erected in 1913 were for three families, the balance were for six families. It has often been suggested that if the Tenement House Law were to be properly amended it would be possible to erect more three-family houses, particularly if the amendment would permit the three-story buildings to be built on land at not over $2,500, and pay a return upon their cost.

The Advisory Council is particularly anxious to learn whether the three-family house could be made to pay, under the Tenement House Law, and under what conditions. Consequently it is requisite to learn whether the causes for the decrease in the construction of three-family houses are social and economic, rather than legal. If the former, it will not help matters any to take them from the control of the Tenement House Department. If the latter, then it will be necessary to amend the Tenement House Law, without removing the reasonable restrictions which make for healthful, safe and hygienic housing. The Tenement House Committe of the Charity Organizations Society appreciates the significance and importance of this work of the Advisory Council, and is co-operating with the Council in a sincere and earnest effort to reach a practicable solution, as it is evidenced by the presence of Director Lawrence Veiller upon this special committee.

The U. S. Realty and Improvement Co., resuming the paying of dividends after only a brief interval, is an encouraging sign of the times.

A gothic church atop a skyscraper on the site of the present Methodist Church in John street is a brand new idea worthy of a great architect. Looks as if it might be economically practicable, too.

There is no gainsaying the reports of increasing demand for suburban property, which nearly always implies that it comes from well-to-do families moving from the city. Nevertheless, the city continues to grow.

The Public Service Commission of the First District employs over two thousand persons in railroad engineering and the regulation of public service corporation. It performs a great and useful work for the community. The annual report of the commission just submitted to the Legislature is a very able and informing public document.

The outcome of the agitation upstate against the Housing law, which is now under suspension, is expected to be the repeal of that law and the enactment of another, which will give such cities as Yonkers, Albany, Troy, Schenectady, Utica and Syracuse power to enact their own housing and building codes. That sounds like home rule.

The American form of government is the hardest to run of any, certainly much harder than a military efficiency government. Witness the jurisdictional conflicts between National authority and State authority, between State government and local government, and between city government and borough government—the efforts to centralize, on the one hand, and to decentralize on the other, even in the small matter of consolidating building departments.

Extraordinary Opportunities.

Although the better feeling has not as yet borne any fruit, the real estate market of New York is undoubtedly starting the new year under the influence of more optimistic feelings. If, as President Wilson says, the business depression is due chiefly to a state of mind, the depression of real estate should be relieved, for the prevailing state of mind is undoubtedly better than it was. Its basis consists probably of a growing conviction that general conditions in the near future will be more favorable to business than they have been in the past, that business will be embarrassed by a smaller amount of political interference, and that it will be aided by a better organization of the credit systems of the country. In order to make this more cheerful state of mind effectual in inducing people to buy New York real estate and build on it, a certain business and investment demand for property is necessary.

Purchasers must come forward who will relieve the market of the very considerable number of weak holdings, which the long period of liquidation has brought into existence. The opportunities which are now offered for capitalists to acquire desirable properties comparatively cheap, and to take advantage of the low prices on materials in order to erect new buildings, are extraordinary. Capitalists will surely come forward to exploit these opportunities and the demand created in this way will be assisted by a moderate amount of speculative buying and building, whenever lending institutions can afford to adopt a more liberal policy in the matter of loans.

We have heard recently of two important building operations, temporarily abandoned last fall because of the critical situation, and which will be resumed this spring. Neither of these operations is speculative, but the fact that the owner of the capital now feels free to make the investment indicates a radical change of attitude, although speculative operations are likely to be more numerous in the apartment house than in the mercantile district. The recent purchase of the Bijou Theatre for improvement is a type of transaction of which a good many instances will be found.

The Future of Broadway.

The early destruction of the Bijou Theatre to make room for a commercial building, and the equally certain tearing down of Wallack's, will remove almost the last vestige of the former availabilities of Broadway south of 33rd street as sites for theatres and places of amusement. Daly's and Weber's still remain, and their replacement by mercantile buildings is only a matter of time. Broadway from Greeley Square to the City Hall will be a street given over chiefly to the wholesale trade. Its retail business will be confined to unimportant shops. Its restaurants and hotels will be patronized almost entirely by business men. Some office buildings will be mixed in with the loft buildings, but there will not be many of them. The part of Broadway between 14th and 32nd streets has lost its retail trade to Fifth avenue, and its amusement and restaurant business to Times Square.

Many property owners hoped and anticipated that the Pennsylvania Railroad Station would keep the real estate in the vicinity available for the retail and amusement business. They argued that an enormous population on Long Island would be served by the station and that this population would patronize restaurants, theatres and shops near the station. The argument might have been valid in case the Pennsylvania Station could have obtained immediately the business it will have ten years from now, but at present the Long Island commuters are not sufficiently numerous to count against the general tendency which pulls these classes of business uptown. The question now is whether mercantile business will or will not occupy any considerable part of the district above 32d street. At present it looks as if ordinary loft buildings would be a good form of speculative building enterprise north of 34th street. The theatres and restaurants along Broadway between Greeley Square and 42d street seem to be holding their own. Of course this is not true of those immediately north of Times Square, but it is certainly true of those north of 38th street. The Metropolitan Opera House determines the character of this part of Broadway, and the Opera House is to remain indefinitely. It does not look as if any opening were afforded for mercantile building. The district contains, to be sure, a large amount of under-improved property, whose improvement with mercantile buildings would ruin it for more profitable business uses.

But at present it looks as if any business which goes on in there, is more likely to be retail rather than wholesale. Of course, the future of this part of Broadway will be influenced by the eventual fate of Seventh avenue between 34th street and 42d street, but, as the Record and Guide has pointed out, Seventh avenue, south of 42d street, seems peculiarly well adapted to the needs of the cheaper grades of department stores. In considering the future of this part of Broadway and Seventh avenue it must be remembered that the express stations of the Dual Subway System will extend south as far as 40th street, and that in the matter of transit conveniences 38th street will be better off than the upper end of Times Square. The station considered as a center of underground traffic will extend from 40th to 43d streets.

The Astor House Site.

The announcement that Vincent Astor will improve the lower half of the old Astor House block with only an eight-story building is interesting. The site seems to be admirably adapted to a very tall structure. Its Vesey street frontage faces on the square of St. Paul's Chapel, and has the absolute assurance of good light for an indefinite period. The Broadway frontage is also exceptionally well situated. The larger part of the site lies south of the Post Office and gets the advantage of the junction of Broadway with Park Row. It looks, consequently, like an exception-any good opportunity for a skyscraper, and presumably Mr. Astor's advisers decided against such a building largely for engineering reasons.

The Broadway subway will run under the building, and the foundation for a skyscraper would have been difficult if not impossible to provide. Moreover, the business policy of erecting a skyscraper at the present time would be at least very doubtful. The lower part of New York is not in need of much additional office space just at present. An eight-story building which is well rented should do better than a less well rented twenty-five story building. The sad part of it is, however, that this Astor House site was not taken by the Federal Government for a Post Office. The opportunity of securing a large site for a new Post Office in the immediate vicinity of the present building at a comparatively moderate cost has been lost, and will never occur again.

The Confusion of Laws.

Fundamental law in America is scarcely ever free from the alloy of lesser law. The New York State Constitution is adulterated heavily with statute law, and the statutes with local government provisions. City charters are loaded with common ordinances, and the ordinances with mere departmental rules and regulations. The people of this State are ready for a really efficient Constitution and a system of government that will enlist the service of the best citizens. Able men will gladly serve the State when the Constitution gives them something really important to do. Legislative bodies have become too large and unwieldy, and the individual members are consequently of too little importance in the general scheme of government. The House of Representatives at Washington looks like an assembly in a public school. Governor Whitman is merely one of seven executives in this State, the other six being responsible only to the people, not to him. Much of the legislation of the State is enacted by the courts, as well as enforced by the courts. They say they do not legislate, but nevertheless they do.

If there is one thing more than another that the people of this State need in order that intelligent public opinion may act through an efficient government, it is that the Constitutional Convention shall so reorganize the fundamental law of this State that order will come out of chaos, both in the legislative and administrative branches of the government. If Senator Root is called to the chair, as now seems likely, the convention will have at least one inestimable advantage to start with, and that will consist in his rare experience as a national statesman, with his knowledge of the present needs of government, not only in this State, but in other States as well. To a very large degree the others will follow whatever new and good examples the Constitutional convention of the Empire State may set.

A Plea for the Single Tax.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

I hope you will not feel that I am monopolizing the columns of your paper in replying to Mr. Alexander's letter, which appeared in your issue of January 9. In my letter which appeared in your columns of December 19, I categorically answered every question put by Mr. Alexander in his letter of December 5 I was not called upon, nor did I attempt to make any answer to any statement of his which may have appeared in your columns prior to that date, for not until December 5 did Mr. Alexander put his questions so that they could be answered.

The reasons why I am, as a real estate man, in favor of the Single Tax in all its fullness are: First, Taxation of improvements is technically complicated by reason of the evident difficulties in making a valuation of improvements.

Second, Taxation of improvements is unjust, as it does not touch idle capital, whereas it burdens capital which is utilized; I am opposed to the further taxation of improvements on this ground, such taxation falls more heavily on the owner the more costly the improvements he makes; it seeks to attain empirically the purely fiscal end of raising revenue for the State; it is unscientific since the burden is not distributed according to the dictates of equity; it is always shifted, for to tax improvements is to tax the tenant; it increases rent by making the land dear and by imposing a burden on improvements is the most important factor in increasing the cost of living. The taxation of improvements is a hindrance to production for it stimulates speculation and causes land values to rise to an artificial level and it does not solve any social question.

Taxation of land values only is technically simple, for apart from the fact that valuation is equal for all, it affords no difficulties of valuation or collection and is in accordance with an ideal of justice as it burdens idle capital and lets free active capital. It is less burdensome to the proprietor the more and better he builds and is of social advantage that does not neglect fiscal exigencies. Taxation of land values only is scientific, for it results in perfect equality and the perfect distribution of the burden of taxation. Taxation of land values in no case can be shifted, but rests on him on whom it was intended to be put. It acts as a powerful stimulant to capital, inducing it to apply itself in making improvements on the land and it cheapens rent by reducing the price of land and by untaxing improvements. It also has a powerful effect in reducing the cost of living by reducing rents and increasing production and it puts a stop to speculation without hindering the natural and reasonable increase in the value of land.

It solves, undoubtedly, without injuring any rightly acquired interest, the question of the socialization of the earth. It solves the social problem in many of its aspects. The taxation of land values carries out an act of supreme justice in taking for the community a small part of the social value which the land acquires through the capitalization of the rent without any exertion on the part of those who pay it. It tends to the solution of the problem of industrial depressions and to prevent them or diminsh their intensity and above all it stimulates reconstruction, change and improvements.

The Three-Family House Not Properly a Tenement.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The remarks of Mr. Cyrus C. Miller in last week's Record and Guide, in re the three-family house, strike me in a tender spot, inasmuch as I am the unfortunate owner of one such property; however, I do not wish my own costly experience to enter into a broad view of the subject, except as a sidelight. The personal equation may color one's views somewhat, but should not govern the wide outlook necessary in considering one of the means of housing for the great bulk of the population of this city.

We realize now that the Tenement Law's drastic provisions, which include the three-family dwelling, have caused an over stimulation of the two-family type house, of which today there are several thousand more in the city than necessity requires, or the workingman can pay rent for. They are not a workingman's proposition, in the main, as their rents are beyond him. As the lots on which they stand are improperly, or rather inadequately, improved, these properties do not pay their adequate tax for city services rendered; indeed, whole neighborhoods of inferior streets are now in effect partially supported by higher class realty improvements elsewhere, which, owing to the same causes, do not obtain their fair share of city service or expenditure.

Single lots, where not available for plottage, have decreased abnormally in value, while plots have inordinately increased. These are some of the economic effects of legislation not considered in passing laws, yet operating, as all restrictions does, to produce abnormal conditions.

The three-family type discrimination forces the workingman to pay more money as rent for less room to occupy, and is more distinctly prejudicial to the poor man with a large family than to any one else.

No real estate man objects to proper regulation, but to put a three-family house under the same drastic regulations as a twenty-four family dwelling is manifestly unjust and absurd to any one who knows realty conditions. Very often the three-family house is on an internal, neighborly basis—all the tenants acquainted—impossible in the factory-like run of tenements of the multi-family type per floor.

The three-family type is the best type of community dwelling for preserving individuality, at the same time affording low rent with economic return and certain community advantages impossible in any other type, and also as a means to an end, and that end proper housing. The type should be consistently developed by special legislation, if necessary, although a widening of the freedom of action, a lessening of the prohibition now in force, will act promptly in inducing the erection of what the laboring population of the city really needs,—not in Manhattan where the lot cost is prohibitive, but in the outlying boroughs where they are really a necessity.

Another point is that a workingman can and will buy such a house as a personal investment, living in one of the apartments with his family and getting enough from the other two to pay him well, as he often does his own repairs. Such house owners are the real men of stability of any city, the plain people whom Abraham Lincoln thought God loved, because he had made so many of them—and workingmen who economize to grasp such opportunities (if they could be offered) are never recipients of the city's or the churches' charities.

Does real philanthropy consist of merely giving or in helping men to help themselves?

Getting Together on Departmental Consolidation.

The Mayor is not disposed to surrender to the Borough Presidents by accepting their plan for the partial amalgamation of city departments, but has marshaled an opposing force in favor of the centralized plan of consolidation, under which there will be but one city inspection department instead of five, as the Borough Presidents have advised.

The real estate bodies, anxious for consolidation by some or any feasible plan, recently recommended to the State Factory Investigating Commission, for the sake of having united action, the borough plan, but some of the organizations may now be drawn to the Mayor's side. A conference, called by the Mayor, was attended by ex-Mayor Low, President Marble, of the Merchants' Association; Allan Robinson, of the Allied Real Estate Interests; ex-Superintendents of Buildings Thomas J. Brady and Rudolph P. Miller; R. E. Simon, of the Joint Committee of Real Estate bodies; Secretary Youkers, of the Citizens' Union; Commissioner Adamson, of the Fire Department; Lawrence Veiller, of the Charity Organization; Abram I. Elkus, Counsel to the State Factory Investigating Committee, and others.

As a result of the conference the Mayor accepted a suggestion that he appoint a committee of five to endeavor to harmonize and bring to one mind the various factions, so that legislation can be framed which will have the support of all.

The satisfaction of the real estate bodies in knowing that there is no opposition to the general principle of consolidation is now alloyed by the fear that the rivalry between the Mayor's party, on the one hand, and the Borough Presidents' party, on the other, may delay if not hinder the passage of the bill. Under such circumstances, rather than see their campaign fail altogether, the real estate bodies will undoubtedly work for a reasonable compromise.

The President of the Board of Aldermen, Mr. McAneny, is inclined to join with neither party but to hold out in favor of the inclusion of such legislation on this subject as may be needed in the charter revision, which, however, will not be ready for introduction until next year, and then its enactment will not be assured.

A report that Mayor Mitchel would leave both the Tenement House Department and the Fire Prevention Bureau out of the consolidation has caused some dismay in real estate circles, as these are two of the departments that have been particularly busy in making inspections. While many real estate bodies, and more particularly those in Manhattan, would hesitate to choose between the Mayor's plan and the Borough Presidents' plan, or between the city system and the borough system of reorganization, they doubtless would be inclined to favor the one which carried farther the scheme of lessening the evils of over-inspection.

REAL ESTATE RECORDS.

MORE ELEVATOR REGULATIONS.

These Emanate from the State Department of Labor and Are Now in Effect.

Bulletin No. 8 of the Industrial Code was issued this week in pamphlet form by the Industrial Board of the State Department of Labor. The State Industrial Code, which the Industrial Board is framing, is a different document from the Building Code, which the Board of Aldermen of the City of New York is revising at the present time. An ordinance containing elevator regulations is pending in the board.

The State regulations apply only to buildings used in whole or part for factory purposes. They went into effect January 1, 1915, and relate to the construction, guarding, equipment, maintenance and operation of hoistways as well as elevators. Before any elevator shall hereafter be installed or reconstructed plans must be filed with the Commissioner of Labor.

Safety Devices.

Doors opening on cars used for carrying passengers or employees shall have gates or doors that shall be kept closed while the car is in motion. Every passenger elevator, unless equipped with self-closing or automatic doors or gates, shall have an automatic device, mechanical or otherwise, as will insure the hatchway doors or gates being closed before the car can start from the landing. This applies to elevators in existing buildings, as well as to those which may hereafter be erected.

No locks will be required on gates adjacent to the operator, but all other gates or locks in the car (except emergency exits) shall have latches or locks that will prevent their being opened except when the car is at a landing or they shall have electrical contacts that will stop the car when any such gate or door is opened.

The alternative, permitting electrical contacts, ensures a very moderate cost for installing the device.

Both passenger and freight elevators shall have safety jaws of a type approved by the Commissioner of Labor. All elevators installed hereafter shall also be equipped with a speed governor. Car safeties will not be required on direct plunger elevator nor for the sidewalk type of elevators which travel not more than thirty feet between landings.

The rules also provide for approved hoistway enclosures, gates and doors, grillework, counterweights and exit facilities from elevators.

R. E. Board Against City Work for Unemployed.

The Real Estate Board of New York, while deploring the condition of the unemployed in this city, does not look with favor upon the plan of municipal employment which some of the city heads are advocating. The board has just passed the following resolution:

Whereas, It is estimated that there are in the City of New York today an unusual number of unemployed persons; and,

Whereas, A proposition has been made to furnish municipal employment as far as possible to such unemployed; and,

Whereas, Competent authorities have ascribed some part of the employment to restrictive laws and regulations and an excessive tax rate, which have resulted in the discouragement of building enterprises and lessened activities in real estate investments and operations; and,

Whereas, There is an unreserved margin as of September 30, 1914, for which bonds may be issued by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment of only $11,178,549; and,

Whereas, There are still many millions of dollars of uncollectable taxes against which bonds have been issued and which must be funded; and,

Whereas, Any issue of corporate stock for public improvements must be provided for to the extent of one-quarter of their amount in the next tax levy; and,

Whereas, Because of this condition with respect to the city's finances the city has been unable to make needed street improvements or to construct necessary sewers in many portions of the Bronx, Kings and Queens, where such improvements are imperatively needed because of extensive proposed building operations; and,

Whereas, The Real Estate Board of New York believes that while there may be temporary relief furnished by such proposed expenditures the result by increasing the tax rate, and impairing the city's borrowing capacity, will be a still further diminishing of building activities and a more serious unemployment situation; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Real Estate Board of New York, while feeling the keenest sympathy for all who are unemployed, and especially for those who are not fitted for severe physical labor, deplore any attempt on the part of the city authorities that will result in further increasing the tax rate and in further discouraging legitimate real estate activities.

Program for State Tax Conference.

The program of the Fifth Annual New York State Tax Conference, to be held at the State Education Building, in Albany, January 19-21, has been completed.

The Governor's program of radical and far-reaching changes in tax administration just announced from Albany lends particular interest to this occasion, and as much of the program appears to relate to this very subject of administration, there is likely to be not a little room for discussion as to the merits of the plans of the administration.

The full program is as follows:

January 19, 8 p. m.—Organization of Conference.

January 20, 10 a. m.—Consolidation and Simplification — Efficiency. — (1) School Districts.—Thomas E. Finegan, Assistant Commissioner for Elementary Education, State Department of Education; A. A. Lavery, Chairman Legislative Committee District School Superintendents. (2) County Simplification.—H. S. Gilbertson, Executive Secretary, National Short Ballot Organization; Henry J. Cookenham, Jr., County Attorney, Oneida County. (3) Westchester County Progress.—Frederick P. Close, Chairman Taxation Committee Westchester County Board of Supervisors; O. G. Cartwright, Director, Westchester County Research Bureau.

2 p. m.—Administrative Matters.—(1) Round Table.—Miscellaneous discussion of the practical questions confronting county and town officers in charge of C. J. Tobin, Assistant Secretary and Law Clerk, State Board of Tax Commissioners. Discussion opened by George Y. Webster, County Attorney, Monroe County. (2) Standardization and Uniformity in Statistics of Debt, Revenues and Expenses.—Walter G. Hamilton, County Treasurer, Rockland County; L. K. Rockefeller, Chief Bureau of Municipal Accounts, State Comptroller's office. (3) Central and Local Administration and Assessments—Co-operation. —Allyn A. Young, Professor of Economics, Cornell University; L. D. Woodruff, Vice-President, Real Estate Association of the State of New York; Frances N. Whitney, Tax Attorney, Western Union Telegraph Company.

8 p. m.—What We May Learn from Other States.—At this session or at other sessions as is most convenient, it is expected that addresses will be made by representatives of several neighboring States or that papers prepared by such persons will be read. Among those expected are William H. Corbin, State Tax Commissioner of Connecticut; Charles A. Andrews, Deputy State Tax Commissioner of Massachusetts; A. C. Girdwood, Secretary Maryland Tax Commission; David Friday, Professor of Economics, University of Michigan; Thomas S. Adams, State Tax Commissioner of Wisconsin. Others may attend.

January 21, 10 a. m.—Constitutional Changes.—Adelbert Moot, ex-President New York State Bar Association; Henry M. Powell, author of "Powell on Taxation."

2 p. m.—Special Subjects.—(1)—New York City's Financial Problems.—Frederick A. Cleveland, Director Bureau of Municipal Research. (2) Taxation of Public Property.—(a) State Property.—John D. Moore, State Conservation Commissioner; Loyal L. Davis, County Attorney, Warren County. (b) Municipal Property.—I. J. Beaudrias, Special Attorney for New York City Water Department; F. H. Osborn, Attorney for Ulster County. (3) Miscellaneous Needs —Special Taxes in Villages.—W. K. Rose, New York City. Taxation of Tangible Personal Property.—Arthur J. Smith, County Attorney, Niagara County. Other subjects as the occasion may develop.

Deed of 1645 Recorded.

A unique instrument was filed in the Register's office this week to perfect the title of Coenraet Van Cenlen in property located on the East River and Pleasant avenue, between 123d and 124th streets, in blocks 1811 and 1819. The document is dated 1645 and is a certified copy of a land grant made in that year. It concerns "that property adjoining the lands of Sr. la Montagies and Sr. Jochin Pietersen's land, and containing 100 morgens of land for a farm called Otterspoor (otter track)." The grantors are "William Kieft, Director General, and the Council on behalf of the high and mighty lords, the States General of the United Netherlands, His Highness the Prince of Orange, and the noble lords, the Managers of the General Incorporated West India Company, in New Netherlands." The grantee is Cornelius Van Tienhoven. The instrument was recorded at the request of the Randall Dock Company.

New L. I. Country Club.

A committee has been formed to organize a new country club at Huntington, L. I., and has obtained through L'Ecluse, Washburn & Co., an option on a 500-acre tract, including a hotel, casino and garage, formerly known as the Chateau des Beaux Arts. Among the members of the organization committee are: A. P. W. Kinnan, F. J. H. Kracke, Lewis H. Pounds, Dr. George V. Foster and Milton L'Ecluse. The club will be known as the Huntington Bay Country Club.

City Will Sell Idle Parcels.

The city is unquestionably losing a very large annual sum in taxes and interest through its idle real estate—lands purchased for park purposes many years ago and never used, lands bought in at tax sales, school sites not now needed, abandoned fire houses, etc. It is said that enough has been lost in this way in Brooklyn alone to have paid for the new court house and municipal building in that borough. Realizing the injustice of holding out so much property, the present city administration is accepting the co-operation of a committee of the Brooklyn Real Estate Board in trying to dispose of it, but it is understood that on account of the European wars the Finance Department has changed its plan of putting considerable property on the market at once.

Concerning many of the idle parcels on the Brooklyn list there is no disagreement as to the advisability of getting rid of them. Comptroller Prendergast has asked the Corporation Counsel if the city has authority to lend money; that is, to take back a purchase money mortgage in cases where it might be impossible to get rid of land and buildings otherwise. Should the Corporation Counsel decide to the contrary the Comptroller will go to the Legislature.

The Brooklyn committee consists of William P. Rae, Howard Pyle, W. J. T. Lynch, Arthur B. Gritman and Clarence B. Smith.

LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS.

Washington Heights District.

The following resolutions have been approved by the Local Board:

Acquiring title to the new street (Bogardus place), from Hillside avenue to Elwood street, as heretofore laid out on the map or plan of the city.

Repaving with wood block pavement on concrete foundation, Walker street, from the north house line of Centre street to the east house line of Lafayette street. Estimated cost, $1,553; value of property within assessment area, $594,000. This is in realty repaving, but on account of conditions attached to corporate stock authorizations, the Borough President can only charge to that account the cost of repaving such streets as can be shown to have been originally paved by an assessment upon property owners. In the case of Walker street, between the points above named, no proof of an original assessment can be found and if the street is to be repaved at all, it must be done at the expense of the property owners.

Sheet Asphalt for 184th Street.

Paving with sheet asphalt West 184th street, between Broadway and Bennett avenue. Estimated cost, $4,724. Valuation of property within assessment area, $500,000. The Bureau of Highways in reporting upon this petition recommends that no action be taken, unless positive proof is presented that building operations are contemplated in the near future. Attention is also called to the fact that no sewer has been existing in this block and that the need for a sewer is improbable, owing to the fact that the block is but 200 feet long. It is recommended, however, that a definite statement as to character of buildings to be erected be obtained from property owners before the sewer is finally omitted.

Construction of sewer in Park Terrace East, from 215th street to Isham Park. The report of the Bureau of Sewers shows that in order to provide a sewer in this portion of Park Terrace East it will be necessary to construct storm and sanitary sewers in Park Terrace West, from a point about 100 feet south of 215th street to 214th street. In 214th street, from Park Terrace West to Park Terrace East and in Park Terrace East, from 214th street to a point about 120 feet north and to a point about 80 feet south, together with all work incidental thereto. Estimated cost, $12,100. Value of property within assessment area, $515,000. It is recommended that before action is taken on the larger improvement as recommended by the engineers the matter be readvertised.

Hudson District.

The alteration and improvement to sewer in West 53d street, between Ninth and Tenth avenues, has been provided. Estimated cost, $19,300. Value of property within assessment area, $1,159,000.

Protective Association.

Rudolph P. Miller will address the next regular meeting of the Real Estate Owners' Protective Association, at the Hotel Majestic, next Monday evening. He will discuss the problem of over-inspection of buildings. Reports will be presented Title Company's New Directors.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the New York Title Insurance Company several directors retired, among them John D. Crimmins, who has been actively identified with the company since its organization.

The places made vacant by the retiring directors have been filled by New York men, prominent in banking and real estate circles. The new members on the board are:

Lewis L. Clarke, president of the American Exchange National Bank; Harold T. White, W. A. & A. M. White, 14 Wall street; Howard C. Smith, Hathaway, Smith, Folds & Co.; Benjamin Mordecai, president A. L. Mordecai & Son; Walter T. Rosen, Ladenburg, Thalman and Company; George T. Mortimer, vice-president United States Realty and Improvement Company.

The members of the Board re-elected are: Benjamin L. Allen, vice-president Columbia Trust Company, 60 Broadway; Charles G. Balmanno, president Mechanics' Bank of Brooklyn; Edward M. Burghard, attorney; William H. Chesebrough, president Alliance Realty Company, 115 Broadway; William F. Clare, attorney; James A. Deering, attorney; Lawrence B. Elliman, of Pease & Elliman, 340 Madison avenue; William E. Harmon, of William E. Harmon & Company; Harry A. Kahler; Morgan J. O'Brien; Charles J. Obermayer, president of the Greater New York Savings Bank, Brooklyn; William R. Willcox; Albert B. Boardman, of O'Brien, Boardman & Platt, 2 Rector street; George Zabriskie, of Zabriskie, Murray, Sage & Kerr.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

Interest centered chiefly on small properties this week, although there were several large transactions. The "$1,000,000 deal," which has been a weekly fixture, was not missing from the reports. This week it concerned a large unimproved plot on Washington Heights that passed into the hands of apartment house builders.

Rumors of the sale of the old Hoffman House were again coming up. This occurs from time to time, but nothing materializes. In the present deal, however, which is said to be in course of negotiation, a large commercial structure will replace the famous old hostelry.

That section of Broadway, in the immediate vicinity of Madison Square has been attracting considerable interest within recent times. It is becoming the new center of another wholesale district, as evidenced by the character of the firms locating in the buildings of recent construction in the neighborhood. Further north, the sale of the Bijou Theater, if closed, may mean the addition of another mercantile building to the group. Wallack's Theater sold last week, may be improved along the same lines. At the 26th street corner, Frederick Ayer, of Boston, will build a tall loft building.

The total number of sales reported and not recorded in Manhattan this week was 19, as against 15 last week and 29 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 4, as compared with 3 last week and 8 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 15, as compared with 12 last week and 21 a year ago.

The total number of conveyances in Manhattan was 120, as against 171 last week, 9 having stated considerations totaling $272,800. Mortgages recorded this week number 78, involving $1,148,171, as against 105 last week, totaling $2,003,761.

From the Bronx, 9 sales at private contract were recorded, as against 8 last week and 14 a year ago.

The amount involved in Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $1,027,835, compared with $1,517,106 last week, making a total for the year of $2,545,041. The figures for the corresponding week last year were, $1,002,751, and the total from Jan. 1, 1914, to Jan, 17, 1914, was $3,939,356.

$1,000,000 Heights Operation.

Harris and Maurice Mandelbaum have sold to the Friedman Construction Company, a plot of sixteen lots, in the north side of West 161st street, 162 feet east of Riverside drive, with a frontage of 450 feet. The plot will be improved with three six-story apartment houses, from plans by Harold L. Young. The property is part of the large tract of the Loyal L. Smith estate which was acquired last year by Harris and Maurice Mandelbaum. About $1,000,000 will be involved in the present operation.

Two Unique Sales.

Two interesting sales were closed this week, involving tiny strips of land, which have little value in themselves, but are nevertheless important to adjoining owners if they contemplate any improvement. James A. Mahoney bought from Adolph Wurzburger a strip 1.10 feet by 5 inches at the southeast corner of Haven avenue and 169th street. Mr. Mahoney owns adjoining property. In the other deal, the Duross Company sold for Aaron Brown to R. O. Jones, a strip 6 inches wide and 98.9 feet deep, in the north side of West 28th street, 399.6 feet east of Sixth avenue. It lies between Nos. 335 and 337 West 28th street.

Negotiations on for Hoffman House.

Negotiations are reported to be pending for the sale of the Hoffman House and Albemarle Hotel properties at the northwest corner of Broadway and 24th street, on plot 159x120. The owner is the estate of Francis S. Kinney. If the deal goes through, it is said that a tall mercantile building will replace the well-known hotels. The 25th street corner, owned by Mrs. Louisa M. Gerry, was improved two years ago with a ten-story business building.

New Apartments on Concourse.

John La Spina, of the La Spina-Morris Cut-Stone Company, has purchased from Bernard Block the plot 130x89 at the northeast corner of the Grand Boulevard and Concourse and 198th street. Mr. La Spina stated that he intended to improve with an apartment house but had not yet decided upon the height and other details. He gave in part payment, 246-250 East 152d street, on plot 75x119, containing an old dwelling and stable.

Trade Removal to Brooklyn.

L. Schepp, cocoanut dealer, now at Hudson and Duane streets, Manhattan, bought from the Realty Associates, 191-205 Washington street, Brooklyn, one and three-story buildings, on plot 136x100, which he will improve with a factory building for his own occupancy.

REAL ESTATE NOTES.

LEVY BROS. have moved from 5 Beekman st, Manhattan, to 189 Montague st, Brooklyn.

SHAW & CO. have been appointed agents for 361-363 West 125th st.

MARSTON & CO. now at 477 5th av will move to 30 East 42d st on February 1.

SIDNEY L. WARSAWER has moved his offices to 312 West 42d st.

DUFF & BROWN CO. negotiated the recently-recorded sale of the 4-sty dwelling, 427 West 146th st, for John P. Leo to W. W. Thompson.

HUBERTH & HUBERTH have been appointed agents for 227 East 106th st, 1428 Lexington av, 2453 2d av, 141 East 45th st and 145 East 51st st.

DUFF & CONGER have been appointed agents for 1713-1715 3d av, and also by the receivers for 538-540 West 124th st and 1644-1646 Madison av.

CHARLES F. NOYES CO. has been appointed agent for 19-sty East River Savings Institution Building at Broadway and Reade st; also for 114-116 Fulton st; 131-137 and 121-123 Park Row and 838 Morris av, Bronx.

COWPERTHWAIT FURNITURE CO. of West 23d st, is the lessee of the store and lofts in 782-786 6th av, and not Cowperthwait & Sons, of 193 Park Row, as incorrectly reported in last week's Record & Guide.

WILLIAM D. BLOODGOOD & CO., INC., have opened a branch office at Southampton, L. I., where they will make a specialty of renting and selling local property. Robert R. Kendrick is in charge of the office.

CHARLES N. CLARK is the buyer of the dwelling, 713 Park av, sold several weeks ago by the Barney Estate Co., through William B. May & Co. He will tear down the present structure and build a new one from plans by McKenzie, Voorhees & Gmelin.

W. A. CROSBY and W. A. Blemly, for many years associated with the late Patrick A. Geoghegan at 464 8th av, have formed a partnership and opened offices at 302 West 34th st, for the transaction of a general real estate business.

P. S. RITTER and J. G. Bassman represented Edward T. Moore and Philip Simon in the recently-recorded sale of the Pinkney Court apartment house, 151-9 West 140th st, a 7-sty elevator apartment house, size 137x100. A free and clear farm in New Jersey was given in part payment.

BROADWAY PROPERTY CORPORATION took title this week to the northwest corner of Broadway and 18th st from the 879 Broadway Corporation. It was formerly occupied by the stores of A. A. Vantine & Co. and Aitken, Son & Co. Nothing could be learned regarding the plans of the Broadway Property Corporation.

AUCTION SALES OF WEEK.

Except where otherwise stated, the properties offered were in foreclosure. Adjournments of legal sales to next week are noted under Advertised Legal Sales.

* Indicates that the property described was bid in for the plaintiff's account.

The Auction Market.

Plaintiffs, including several banks, obtained well located properties in the Real Estate Exchange Salesrooms this week. The United States Trust Company became the owner of the former Henry Siegel residence at the southwest corner of Madison avenue and 82d street, on a bid of $116,000. The residence of Mrs. Elizabeth F. Seaman (Nellie Bly), at 15 West 37th street, was sold to the Greenwich Savings Bank for $65,000, in an action brought to secure a judgment amounting to about $75,000. The ten-story office building at 7 Pine street was acquired by another financial institution, the Seaman Savings Bank on a bid of $160,000. Liens on this property aggregate about $162,000.

Next Tuesday evening at the Brooklyn Exchange Salesrooms the Jere Johnson, Jr., Company, will offer at auction, 72 lots on the line of the new Sea Beach subway in Brooklyn. Twenty-two of the lots are in 86th street; the balance on Avenue B, West 9th and West 10th streets.

Modern Improvements

Isn't it true that ofttimes some small modern improvement goes a long way towards selling and renting your houses?

Take for example the plan that has recently been adopted by some builders of placing in newly built apartment houses electric washing machines and outlets in the kitchen for electric ironing and cooking.

Does any one doubt, all other things being equal, that these apartments are the ones that will be sold or rented first?

Families of today are educated to demand the comforts and conveniences of electric service, and they are quick to see the advantage of living in an apartment that will minimize the drudgery of housekeeping.

We have other ideas along these same lines. Drop us a line and we will talk them over with you.

CO-OPERATION BETWEEN OWNERS AND TENANTS IN COMPLYING WITH THE LABOR LAW

By A. C. BANG, of E. S. Willard & Co.

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for The American Real Estate Co.

CO-OPERATION between owners, agents, building managers and tenants, to be effective, must become operative from the time business relations are first entered into. An owner, or his accredited agent, must assume a broad minded attitude in the interpretation of the terms of the lease, and must show the tenant that he is willing to give as well as take. This policy must work both ways, and the tenant must be willing to take a like stand. In the majority of cases, when this policy is adopted, a spirit of co-operation is established, and friendly relations exist. Where the principals will not make concessions, but stand strictly upon the letter of an iron-bound contract, co-operation is well nigh impossible.

Probably never has co-operation between owner and tenant been as vitally important as at the present time, and this condition has arisen largely through the labor laws enacted in this State. These laws have for their object the better protection of factory employees against accidents, fire, and a general improvement of the conditions under which they work.

Structural Changes.

To comply with the new requirements under the present labor law it will be necessary in many instances to make changes in buildings, involving a considerable outlay. While primarily the expense of these alterations made necessary by the law will fall upon the owners, still the tenants must begin to realize that landlords cannot continue to pay large sums of money without being reimbursed, at least in part, which will eventually mean increased rentals.

Structural changes, unless the building is occupied in its entirety, by one tenant are provided for in the lease and must of necessity be carried out by the owner. There are, however, a number of requirements, referring to the occupation of a factory, in which the owner and tenant can co-operate with mutual benefit. For example, an order of the Labor Department requires that a red light shall show at each exit during the time that a factory is occupied. This should be maintained by the tenant, for it would be almost an impossibility for the owner to look after this detail, whereas it is a simple matter for the tenant to see that the order is complied with.

Toilet Facilities.

The requirements of the labor law in respect to toilet facilities are that a given number shall be provided, according to the number of male and female employees. Certain types of partitions are also specified and their separation designated. It has been only of recent years that females have been employed so extensively in factories; consequently toilet facilities, except in buildings of modern construction, have been designed for a greater number of male employees. Therefore, to comply with the orders of the Labor Department, extra toilets must be added for females, or else the existing toilet rooms rearranged. In such cases the co-operation of the tenants and landlord is essential, as a concrete example will show:

The law requires that there shall be at least one toilet on each floor for every twenty-five males employed, and a similar number for females. I have in mind a loft in which the toilet facilities were as follows: The men's room had two closets and a urinal and the women's room one closet, and a separate room with closet for the proprietor. The loft was designed to meet the old requirements, but as a matter of fact more women than men were employed. According to the requirements of the law, it was necessary to have three closets for the females and one for the men.

The tenant in this case co-operated with the owner and the rooms were rearranged as follows: The urinal was removed and a wash basin installed in its place, and this room given to the women, and this, with their own room provided three toilets, the necessary amount, also a wash basin screened off from the work-room. The men were permitted to use the proprietor's room.

Rest Rooms for Females.

The Labor Law requires that there shall be at least one rest room for females in each factory building. It would hardly be practical for the owner to provide this room, as the space alloted might not coincide with the views of the tenant, so the occupant should comply with this requirement.

Undoubtedly the most important features of the Labor Law are those dealing with the safe-guarding of human life, not only in the case of fire and panic, but also in connection with the operation of machinery. These orders usually involve considerable expense. The protection of machinery operated by the tenant's employees must, of course, be looked after by the lessee. The providing of proper exit facilities is essentially a structural change and the owner must bear the expense.

An important feature of the Labor Law, in connection with fire, is the installation of automatic sprinkler systems, and while primarily a structural change and therefore to be installed by the owner, still, on account of the large reduction in insurance rates with certain classes of sprinkler equipments, it is possible that an equitable and effective combination can be arranged between the landlord and lessee, so that all the cost is not borne by the owner. The tenants contribution can be considered as being cared for by the lessened insurance premiums.

System Must Be Approved.

Under the requirements of the Fire Department it is possible to install a sprinkler equipment that is not as expensive as that required by the New York Fire Insurance Exchange, but, unfortunately, the Exchange will not allow a reduction of rates on the building or its contents, so the system which the Exchange approves must be installed.

A case in point was that of a twelve-story building, each floor being occupied by a different tenant. The total cost of installing a 100 per cent. sprinkler equipment, as approved by the Exchange, was $11,000. Each tenant was asked to contribute $300, and as there were nine tenants, there was a total of $2,700 furnished by them towards the cost of installation. The saving of $2,700 to the owner was material, and the $300 contributed by each tenant was, in some cases, saved in one year by the reduction of insurance rates, while in the other cases the saving will be affected before their leases expire. I might add that, in some cases, the tenants made their contributions by adding a pro rata amount to their monthly rentals.

Security Obtained.

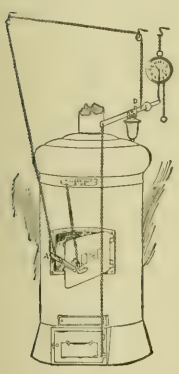
If tenants can be made to realize the immense security that a sprinkler equipment provides for the safety of their employees; also the almost total elimination of the prospect of having a fire in the midst of a busy season, it would not be hard, in all probability, to have financial co-operation, as shown above.

The installation of a sprinkler system in a building permits the number of employees to be increased fifty per cent on a floor. In cases where tenants may have a net lease on an entire building and which would ordinarily make it necessary for them to comply with all the requirements of the Labor Law, it would perhaps be impossible, for financial reasons, to meet this expense. Owners, however, could co-operate to the extent of advancing the funds necessary to do the work and have the amount repaid in the form of monthly payments, which could be added to the rent.

Comparative Costs of Factory Construction.

It is exceedingly difficult to lay down an absolutely definite rule as to the comparative economy of the methods of construction generally adopted for factory buildings. The accompanying figures relate to a case where competitive prices were obtained for a building of fair size and quite suitable to afford a basis for reliable comparison, says "Ferro-Concrete." Alternative schemes were prepared and competitive prices obtained. Expressed in percentages, the results were as shown in the table:

1. Steel frame building with brick walls, corrugated iron roof, wood joists and boards on steel bearers to galleries, and patent roof glazing	100%
2. Reinforcing concrete building with roof at last	92%
3. Reinforced concrete building with concrete roof, part with lantern lights, and with brick panel walls	89%
4. Steel frame building, as No. 1, but with corrugated iron walls	89%
5. Reinforced concrete building (no other structural material used)	88%



It cannot be expected that the comparisons here given will apply to all factory buildings. The question of relative cost is affected a good deal by the number of stories and the size of the structure. In the case of small buildings, reinforced concrete may prove more costly than other materials, although far superior in strength, durability and freedom from maintenance charges.

USEFUL APPLIANCES

Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration

Early Morning Cold Rooms Obsolete.

MISSING the early train to the office because the temperature of the sleeping room is too rigorous to inspire prompt arising in the morning may now be avoided by the purchase and installation of a device shown in the accompanying illustration.

The system operates on the principle of an alarm clock set to release a trigger at a given hour. A system of weights is provided and as soon as the alarm clock goes off the top door of the furnace is closed, the bottom opened, throwing the draft through the live coals and thoroughly heating the house before the occupants are ready to arise. It is set to obviate the necessity of personally attending to the furnace early in the morning. Furthermore, it has the ability of saving coal bills by setting the furnace so that the fire is immediately started and is not kept going at an unnecessary pace during the night. The device can be used on any kind of furnace. Its simplicity of construction and operation makes it long lived in service.

Iron Back Medicine Cabinets.

THERE is a big difference in medicine cabinets, some being cheaply made, while others are of substantial construction; but, of course, command better prices. It is economy to buy the latter kind, especially for tenanted houses where the wear and tear is heavy.

Such a bacinet is made by the Frank H. Graf Manufacturing Company of 322 Seventh avenue, New York, and is featured with a heavy cast iron back. The significance of this is that it can be set into a wall recess without injury to the finest marble or tile work. The heavy cast back permits the tile to be laid close up against it and at the same time it gives the cabinet rigidity of support. No matter how much weight is carried in this type of cabinet, according to the manufacturers, it cannot break loose from the wall. Another feature about it is that the shelves are laid in and the flooring and side walls are so set that staining medicines can do no harm to the interior if they should be spilled. The cabinet is so arranged in construction that it can be easily cleaned. The cabinet can be set in place in an hour, according to its manufacturer, by a special method of setting perfected by the F. H. Graf Manufacturing Company. The door and frame are made of either brass nickel plated or of German silver. They are especially designed for use in hospitals, high-class apartment houses and residents.

Asbestos Used in Building Material.

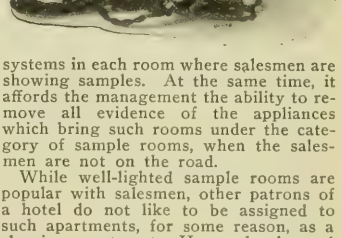
SOME new uses of asbestos, generally known as a fire and heat proof substance, are in filtration, refrigeration, and the manufacture of paper, Christmas trees, building material, rope, yarn, and clothing. Many of the finished products and samples of the raw material are now exhibited in the Division of Mineral Technology of the older United States National Museum building in Washington.

Most of the asbestos mineral fibres were obtained from the large deposits of asbestos found in the Province of Ontario, Canada, which supplies practically the whole world. This substance occurs in veins varying in width from a small fraction of an inch to three and four inches. The fibres lie across the vein, so that their length is determined by the width of the vein, the usual width being from one-half to three-fourths of an inch. The rock containing the fibre is quarried by surface methods much as is limestone. After being blasted down, the rock is usually hand-sorted, the material containing fibers over one inch in length being hand-cobbed, or carded, a process which tears the fibre from the rock. The larger fibres are then packed into one hundred pound sacks and shipped to the market.

The minute individual fibres of asbestos are not even microscopic, being finer than any other organic or inorganic fibre known, thus necessitating special machinery for spinning and weaving.

The hand-cobbed raw material of long fibre is used in making asbestos gas-logs, spun into yarn, twisted into rope used by fire departments, and woven into fireproof cloth for theatre curtains, clothing, etc. The theatre curtain manufacturing business alone is an enormous one, over 1,000 curtains of different sizes being made annually. The largest one of these is that at the Hippodrome in this city. Other theatrical uses for asbestos are wall coverings and linings, and scenery where municipal regulations demand absolute fire precautions. This same form is used with rubber coating in steam fitting, for valve and bearing packing, gaskets and sheet packing, as well as to cover mangles in steam laundries. It enters into automobile construction for general packing and heat insulation, and as brake-shoe lining.

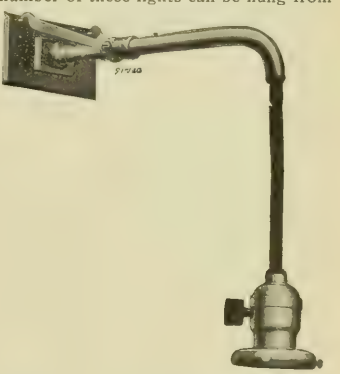
All the material with fibres less than three-fourths inch in length, goes through a milling process to separate it from the rock; first it is passed through a crusher which breaks it up into one-inch sizes, then into a dryer where all the moisture is removed, and over a set of screens separating the fibres into various sizes which are again crushed and sorted. The finest screenings with fibres less than one-sixteenth inch are called asbestos sand from which wall plaster and shingles are made and, when mixed with cement, building material and mill board.



The coarser material from the screens is fed into a cylindrical tub called a "fiberizer," which beats up the rock, tearing loose the fibres which are drawn out at the top by means of a suction fan. These fibres are sorted by shaking screens, into what is known as Mill No. 1 and No. 2; the former being over one-half inch in length, sell at $100 the ton, while the latter, the smaller, sell for about $50 the ton.

Milled material is used in the manufacture of paper mats for stoves, and other kitchen utensils; heat insulating materials such as pipe covering, boiler plate and fire brick; building materials including roofing boards and shingles, laths, plaster and paint, besides gloves, clothing for firemen, and socks said to be very cheap and practically indestructible. One firm is trying to make writing paper, but so far has not succeeded on account of the blotter-like absorption of the paper, and the fact that while the paper does not burn the inscriptions in ink or pencil disappear at a red heat. With the perfection of this phase of paper-making, future generations will be enabled to preserve manuscripts without fireproof safes and vaults.

Cuts Lighting and Wiring Cost.



BUILDERS desiring to provide the greatest possible lighting convenience and at the same time to conserve the cost of wiring may be interested in knowing that there is being introduced upon the market a bracket, types of which are illustrated herewith, that may be used in sample rooms and as a means of suspending lights over beds.

These brackets, including lamp, socket, cord, bracket and plug, can be removed at will, the receptacle alone remaining. If desired, this can be concealed by a hinged section of the picture moulding or by a picture. The device is the result of a demand on the part of hotel managements for especially effective lighting systems in each room where salesmen are showing samples. At the same time, it affords the management the ability to remove all evidence of the appliances which bring such rooms under the category of sample rooms, when the salesmen are not on the road.

While well-lighted sample rooms are popular with salesmen, other patrons of a hotel do not like to be assigned to such apartments, for some reason, as a sleeping apartment. Hence the demand for such a lighting arrangement. Any number of these lights can be hung from the ceiling, and yet the room will not be disfigured when it is used as a boudoir. These receptacles are often placed in the floors to facilitate center table lighting or auxiliary heating or cooking appliances in residences and apartments.

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

New Central Branch of the Y. M. C. A., on Hanson Place, Brooklyn, Will Be Finest Structure of Type in City

WORK is rapidly progressing on the construction of the new building for the Central Branch of the Young Men's Christian Association, in Brooklyn, which when completed, will be one of the finest of its kind in the world. Trowbridge & Ackerman, architects, 62 West 45th street, Manhattan, have prepared the plans and specifications for this structure, and the Whitney Company, 1 Liberty street, have charge of its erection under a general contract.

This new structure is being erected on Hanson Place, occupying the block front from Fort Green place to South Elliott place, the plot being 191.10 feet on Hanson place, and 126 feet in depth. The location, for a building of this character, is ideal, as it is situated in close proximity to the heart of the business section of the borough, with access to all means of transportation. The Long Island Railroad station is but a few blocks distant. Subway and street car lines operate less than two minutes' walk from the site. Many of the borough's best-known churches, in addition to theaters, clubs and restaurants, are located within easy access of the new structure.

The new Y. M. C. A. building will rise to a height of thirteen stories and will have a basement and sub-basement. The facades will be of brick, with buff Indiana limestone and terra cotta trimmings. In point of construction and equipment the new Central Branch will be unsurpassed by any other Y. M. C. A. structure. The construction throughout will be of the highest class of workmanship and material and the latest improvements in methods and materials for building construction will be employed in the erection of the building and all the comforts and conveniences possible, for members and their guests, will be installed.

A restaurant for members, to which the public will also be admitted, will be operated as part of the work of the branch and the building will include a large banquet hall for formal occasions, with women's reception room, dressing and retiring rooms.

In the basement space has been provided for a barber shop, laundry and twelve bowling alleys, as well as the service plant for the building, including the electric lighting and ventilating apparatus, the heating boilers, vacuum cleaning system, etc. The general storage room, cold storage departments, work shop, and manual training class rooms will be located in the basement, also an artesian well, with the necessary pumping apparatus, has been installed to provide water for the swimming pools.

An auditorium, with seating accommodations for approximately 700 persons, will occupy part of the first floor, the balance of which will be devoted to entrances, corridors and office, reading room, library and billiard and pool room. The second floor will be given over to the use of the employment bureau. The work of this department is of the utmost importance and adequate space has been provided to allow for its natural growth.

On the third floor will be located the swimming pool. The water will be heated and the flow of fresh water constant. The hand-ball courts and the kitchen and serving rooms will also be located on this floor. The fourth floor will be occupied in its entirety, by the executive and general offices of the organization. It will have private offices for the branch secretary and his assistant, medical and physical director with their living quarters.

Trowbridge & Ackerman, Architects.

CENTRAL BRANCH Y. M. C. A.

The fifth and sixth floors will be equipped for gymnasium purposes and will include three of the largest gymnasiums in the city. In connection with these there will be the hand-ball and squash courts, running track, locker and Turkish bath and massage rooms. A special locker room will be provided for business men who may desire to devote some time during the day to athletic work. The Educational Department will occupy the seventh and eighth floors and will be provided with large well ventilated class rooms in which to carry on the various branches of education which are among the fundamental features of Y. M. C. A. work.

From the ninth to the thirteenth floors, inclusive, the space will be devoted to dormitories. Here accommodations will be provided for nearly 500 men at one time. The private rooms will be single and double ones furnished and decorated in a cheerful manner, with private showers, wash-rooms, toilets, etc. The roof will be used as an open-air running track in summer as well as a roof garden. During the summer months awnings will be placed over the roof and the regular Sunday afternoon meeting will be held there.

In addition to the above layout the structure will contain a large assembly room for lectures, a camera club room, including developing, printing and enlarging rooms, private dining rooms, committee rooms, four club rooms for the accommodation of the various organizations within the association, post office, and writing room. Five electric elevators, four passenger cars and one for freight, will serve all floors of the building.

Nearly $1,500,000 will be expended before this branch is completed and ready for dedication. The ground alone cost more than $250,000, and the building, exclusive of furnishings, is estimated to cost about $1,000,000. The erection of the structure was made possible upon receipt of the gift of $500,000 by Mrs. Roxy M. Smith, widow of the late M. Van Rensselaer Smith. The building has been named by the Y. M. C. A. authorities, the "Clarence E. Smith Memorial," in memory of Mrs. Smith's son; to members of the Association and all Brooklynites, it will, no doubt, continue to be known as the Central Branch. Another large gift, to further this project, was that of the Pratt family of Brooklyn. This donation of $100,000 was used with other moneys for the purchase of the site.

Many months of thought and careful study have been given to the preparation of the plans and specifications by both architects and owners. In order to profit by the experience of others and avoid mistakes in planning a committee visited the best types of Association Buildings in the East and Middle West and many ideas obtained on these visits will be incorporated in the new structure, with the idea of making it a model of its kind. According to present plans the structure will be completed and ready for occupancy by October 1, 1915. At the present time the steel is up to the height of the seventh floor.

Committee of Management of the Central Branch, which will have charge of the work in the new building: George D. Pratt, chairman; Clinton L. Rossiter; first vice-chairman; Alfred C. Bedford, second vice-chairman; Jacob C. Klinck, treasurer; R. Howard Boggs; William H. Burger; Joseph G. Cochran; John B. Creighton; Arthur D. Dana; Edmund D. Fisher; James S. Graham; Howard S. Hadden; Horace H. Howe; Nelson P. Lewis; Edward C. Miller; Frank H. Parsons; Frederick H. Pouch; James A. Smith; Eugene L. Swan, M.D.; Walter Truslow, M.D.; Herbert K. Twitchell; Albert C. Vinal; Charles W. Dietrich, branch secretary.

BRONX INDUSTRIES AND COMMERCE

Their Development the First Local Problem of the Day —The Advantages the Borough Holds Out to Them

By ROBERT J. MOOREHEAD
Superintendent of Buildings, Borough of the Bronx

THE development of industrial and commercial interests in the Borough of The Bronx is practically in its infancy, although many factories are located within its confines. This development is a great problem, and is of vital importance to all, as the progress of a community is, to a certain extent, contingent upon its industrial growth; and in order to interest manufacturers and induce them to locate in the Borough of the Bronx, its many industrial advantages must be clearly and concisely demonstrated.

Many of the large manufacturers, who, for a number of years have been operating in the Borough of Manhattan, are now finding it expedient to remove their plants to adjacent boroughs; and as the Bronx possesses many advantages over the other boroughs, there is no logical reason why it should not receive the first consideration.

This borough has great possibilities and is destined to become the largest and most important manufacturing centre in the Greater City. Among the exceptional inducements it can offer, the following may be cited:

(a) Land Values. The cost of land in the Bronx is moderate and many land owners are prepared to offer attractive inducements for the establishment of manufacturing plants.

(b) Labor Supply. An adequate supply of labor is imperative for a manufacturing centre and the supply in the Bronx is ample to accommodate all. Most of the workers are at present employed in Manhattan and would be immediately available for factories in the Bronx.

(c) Housing Accommodations. This is another necessary adjunct to a manufacturing centre, and manufacturers may rest assured that the accommodations in the Bronx are ample for all present needs. It can be reliably shown that 41 per cent. of the living apartments in tenement houses provided in New York City during the past five years, were built in the Bronx, as compared with 30 per cent. in Manhattan, 23 per cent. in Brooklyn and 6 per cent in Queens.

(d) Public Parks. There are over 4,100 acres of park lands in the Bronx to attract homeseekers. Public parks for recreation purposes are an important consideration in the establishment of a manufacturing centre, and in this respect the Bronx has a decided advantage over all other boroughs.

(e) Transit Facilities. Over 160 miles of trolley lines criss-cross the streets and avenues of the Bronx, making almost every section of the borough accessible from any other point In addition, nearly 50 miles of subways, elevated lines, steam and electric railroads traverse the borough, insuring quick transportation to and from Manhattan and Brooklyn. The New York Connecting Railroad Bridge over Hell Gate, from Port Morris to Astoria, is rapidly nearing completion and will link the Bronx with Queens.

(f) Waterfront. Over 45 miles of navigable waterfront expressly adapted for docking is immediately available. This should appeal strongly to manufacturers and particularly when one considers that the waterfront abuts upon land that is relatively inexpensive.

Looking at the situation from an angle there is no logical reason why live and progressive manufacturers should not locate in the Bronx, the most rapidly developing borough in New York City, and I am confident that my expectations of a great manufacturing centre therein will be realized in the very near future.

The Engineering Foundation.

The Engineering Foundation, inaugurated by the United Engineering Society, is the name given to a fund to be devoted to the advancement of the engineering arts and sciences in all their branches, to the greatest good of the engineering profession and to the benefit of mankind.

The administration of this fund will be entrusted to the Engineering Foundation Board, elected by the Trustees of the United Engineering Society and composed of eleven members, nine from the American Society of Civil Engineers, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the American Institute of Mining Engineers, and the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, and two chosen at large.

The initial gift for The Engineering Foundation is from a noted engineer whose name will be announced at the inauguration ceremonies, Wednesday, January 27, 1915, at 8.30 o'clock, in the auditorium of The Engineering Societies Building, 29 West 39th street, Manhattan.

The speakers at this inauguration meeting will be: Mr. Gano Dunn, president of the United Engineering Society, past-president of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers; Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, president of the Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching; Dr. Robert W. Hunt, past-president of the American Institute of Mining Engineers, and Dr. Alexander C. Humphreys, past-president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

Insurance Firms Join.

Announcement is made by the Ritch-Hughes Company, 101 Park avenue, that Mr. William T. Ritch has sold his interest in the concern and that he, together with Mr. Stanley R. Smith, has severed his connection with the firm. The Ritch-Hughes Company has been joined by the Gerard-Oliver Company, and the business will be continued at the above address. With its new organization, the Ritch-Hughes Company is prepared to give efficient service in all branches of insurance. The following is the list of officers of the concern: Walter A. Hughes, president; Charles H. Gerard, vice-president; Joseph Maude, treasurer, and T. C. Oliver, secretary.

Insurance Firm Incorporated.

William T. Ritch has severed his connection with the Ritch-Hughes Company, and has opened new offices in the Builders' Exchange Building, 30-34 West 33d street, under the corporate name of William T. Ritch, Inc. The new concern is prepared to handle all forms of workmen's compensation and liability insurance, as well as all forms of contractors' bonds. Mr. Ritch was a pioneer as a specialist on contractors' bonds and liability insurance, to all those allied with the building industry. He is one of the best-known men among the building trades. Mr. Ritch has been for a quarter of a century a member of the Building Trades Employers' Association, the Mechanics and Traders' Exchange, and the Society of Mechanics and Tradesmen, of the City of New York. The following are the officers of the new concern: William T. Ritch, president; Stanley R. Smith, vice-president; P. Russell Wilbur, secretary, and George Rome, treasurer.

New Brooklyn Factory.

L. Schepp, Hudson and Duane streets, Manhattan, dealer in cocoanuts, contemplates the erection of a fireproof factory building at 191 to 205 Washington street, corner of Concord street, Brooklyn, covering a plot 136x100 feet. Details have not been completed.

Dr. Paterno Selects Architect.

Gaetan Ajello, of 1 West 34th street, was selected architect this week for the new thirteen-story apartment house which Dr. Charles V. Paterno, president of the Paterno Construction Company, is to erect, covering the vacant plot, 100.8x100 feet, at the southwest corner of West End avenue and 88th street. The project, including the cost of the land, will involve close to $1,200,000. The construction will be of the highest type and will contain every appointment customary in apartment houses of this class. Of course, plans have not been given out for estimates and will not be ready for some time yet. The thirteen-story apartment house now under course of construction at the northwest corner of Broadway and 84th street for the same owner is also from plans by Mr. Ajello, who also designed the twelve-story apartment house at the southwest corner of Seventh avenue and 58th street, which Dr. Paterno sold recently to Mr. Benjamin N. Duke, for $1,200,000.

Latest Broadway Rumor.

According to an announcement made on Tuesday, a tentative contract has been made by a syndicate headed by Leslie R. Palmer, from the Francis S. Kinney estate, for a twenty-story office and loft building to be erected on the site of the Hoffman House and Albemarle Hotel on the west side of Broadway, between 24th and 25th streets. The Broadway frontage is 159 feet, and on 24th street 120 feet. It will be recalled that plans were prepared about a year ago by Frank Hemstreet, architect, of 44 West 44th street, for a twelve-story hotel and business building to be erected on the Hotel Albemarle plot by the Kinney Estate, but operations were never started. See issue of April 25, 1914.

Office Building on Astor Site.

Charles A. Platt, 11 East 24th street, has prepared sketches for an eight-story office building to be erected by Vincent Astor on the southerly half of the old Astor House site, at the northwest corner of Broadway and Vesey street. The plot to be improved measures 100.7 feet on Broadway and 157.6 feet in Vesey street. The northerly half of the hotel, still standing, is owned by William Waldorf Astor, and is not involved in the building plan. No definite date has been determined for starting the work.

New Residence at Oyster Bay.

Hoppin & Koen, architects, 224 Fifth avenue, Manhattan, are preparing plans and specifications for a country residence to be erected at Oyster Bay, L. I., for Sterling Postley, owner, 830 Park avenue. The house will be of terra cotta block construction, fireproof, with stuccoed exterior. It will be two and one-half stories in height and will cover a plot 40 x 100 feet. The general contract has been awarded to F. W. Maher, 320 Fifth avenue. The operation, which will later include a garage and out buildings, will cost over $100,000.

Public School No. 129 Being Demolished.

Old Public School Building No. 129, situated at Nos. 431 to 437 East 19th street, is being demolished. The property was turned over some time ago by the Board of Education to the Sinking Fund Commission on the ground that the building was unsafe and undesirable for future occupancy of any kind. At the offices of the commissioners on Tuesday it was stated that the property had not been sold and that no arrangements have been made by the city for otherwise improving it.

Charles M. Clark to Build.

Charles M. Clark, treasurer of the Bradstreet Company, New York Life Building, is having plans prepared by McKenzie, Voorhees & Gmelin, 1123 Broadway, for a new residence of the American basement style, to be erected at 713 Park avenue. Contracts have not been issued.

"Very Satisfactory!"

was the remark Mr. Benjamin Heywood made the other day while discussing the Edison Service installation in his 11-story building at 26th Street and Ninth Avenue

Messrs. Heywood, Strasser and Voight, Lithographers, signed a contract for current nearly a year before their huge structure was completed. Every firm housed on the premises is glad to rely on the Central Station for light and power. Printers and lithographers demand and must have the best in such service

Nothing but Edison Service can assure perfect, unflagging supply. If you are confronted with a knotty light and power problem, let our engineers prepare an estimate without cost

DOCK COMMISSIONER R. A. C. SMITH received a silver service as an appreciation of his services for Americans stranded in Italy when war broke out. He was chairman of the committee of guarantors who handled the trip of the Principe di Udine. Thirty of the passengers joined in making the gift, which cost $1,000. The presentation was made at a luncheon at the Recess Club, 60 Broadway, Thursday, January 14. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia, presided. The large centrepiece of the service was gratefully inscribed.

BRIDGE COMMISSIONER KRACKE has submitted a new plan for the Manhattan terminal of the Brooklyn Bridge. The main features of his plan are: to remove the present train shed across Park Row. To erect a new station and terminal 600 feet further back, or upon bridge structure proper, with a western frontage on the easterly building line of Park Row. The erection on this station of an ornamental granite facade on the east side of the building to harmonize with the construction of the municipal building. The erection of an ornamental footwalk across Park Row to City Hall park.

MRS. HARRY PAYNE WHITNEY is completing plans for the exhibition and competition to be held at her studio, 8 West 8th st, January 16 to 24, inclusive. The proceeds will be devoted to the "Fraternite des Artistes," a fund for the relief of the families of the artists of France made destitute by the war. Prizes are offered for sculpture, for sculpture and architecture combined, for decorative painting and for painting and architecture combined. The jury of awards is composed of Paul Claflin, Howard C. Cushing, William A. Delano, C. Grant La Farge, Paul Manship, J. Alden Weir and James E. Fraser. On Tuesday and Thursday evenings of next week, from 6 to 10 o'clock, admission to the exhibition will be free. On the opening day the admission to the public will be $1; on other days 25 cents.

COAST SURVEY.—The American Society of Engineers, Architects and Constructors, 35 West 39th st, at its annual meeting passed the following resolution: "Whereas, the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey is the oldest scientific bureau of the government service, but there has long been an unfortunate lack of appreciation of the public importance of this bureau's work, and for many years it has been obliged to get along with inadequate appropriations and very defective plant. And, whereas, Secretary Redfield, in his annual report, just issued, and in recent public addresses, has shown the difficulties under which the officers and men of his bureau are attempting to accomplish their tasks. Resolved, that the American Society of Engineers, Architects and Constructors, endorsing the work done by this bureau in its accurate mapping, precise levelling and the charting of the coasts of the United States as of the greatest service to the Engineering profession, urge ample appropriations by Congress for this most important division of the government engineering work.

OBITUARY

MARTIN I. CLAPP, a retired general contractor, died in the New York Hospital of a fractured skull, sustained Thursday, January 7, at his home 425 West 22d st. He was fifty-eight years old.

MICHAEL FOCARILL, a general contractor, and prominent in Italian circles, died of blood poisoning, at his home 801 3d av, Elizabeth, N. J., Saturday, January 2. He was fifty-three years old and is survived by his widow, three sons and three daughters.

JAMES A. HUMMER, a retired general contractor, formerly a resident of East Orange, N. J., died of heart failure at his home in Phillipsburg, N. J., Thursday, January 7. He was sixty-four years old. He was a member of a number of fraternal and social organizations.

JOSEPH G. McCOLLUM, superintendent of the construction of the Essex power station of the Public Service Electric Company at Point No Point, in the New Jersey meadows, died in a private hospital in Newark from pneumonia, Thursday, January 14. He was twenty-nine years old, and formerly lived in Youngstown, N. Y. He was graduated from Cornell University in 1909, having previously rowed in the freshman eight and played on the 'varsity eleven.

CHARLES S. PRICE, for eighteen years general manager of the Cambria Steel Company and later its president, died at his home, in Westmont, Pa., of heart disease, Sunday, January 10. Mr. Price was born in West Chester, Pa., in 1852, went to Johnstown in 1876 as a draughtsman, and by degrees he rose to the highest office within the gift of the company. He was a stockholder and director in a large number of corporations of Johnstown, and was one of the incorporators of the Conemaugh Valley Memorial Hospital Association. He is survived by his widow, a son and a daughter.

ERNST E. W. SCHNEIDER, architect and senior member of the firm of Schneider & Dieffenbach, 220 Broadway, died Sunday, January 10, at his home in Orange, N. J. He was fifty-nine years old and was born in Germany. With his partners he drew the plans for St. Paul's Lutheran Church, West 123d st; Columbus College, in Hawthorne; a synagogue in 67th st, several Hoboken public schools, and remodelled the City Hall of Hoboken. He was a pioneer designer of modern apartments, and was a member of the Beethoven Society. A widow and two children survive him.

JACOB MAY, president and founder of the Eagle Iron Works, died suddenly of heart disease this morning at his residence, 909 Lafayette av. Mr. May was born in Hausen by Frankfort on Main, Germany, in 1846. He was educated in Frankfort, in the high and grade schools. In 1868 he came to America, and was employed for several years by the Singer Sewing Machine Co. He became superintendent of one of the departments, which position he held up to the time he founded the Eagle Iron Works in '71, in the basement of a small building. After a few years he bought a lot with a small shop on it where the Eagle Iron Works are still located These buildings were enlarged every few years up to the present size, now being the largest business of its kind in this city. Mr. May's four sons, Captain Charles H. May, Edmund J. May, Jacob G. May and Frederick W. May, were associated with him in business. Mr. May was prominent in civic affairs at times, and twice the nomination for Mayor was offered him. He was one of the oldest patrons of the Record and Guide.

TRADE AND TECHNICAL SOCIETY EVENTS.

THE CORNELL SOCIETY OF CIVIL ENGINEERS will hold its annual meeting in New York City, January 22.

EIGHTH ANNUAL CONVENTION of the Chicago Cement Show will be held at the Coliseum February 10-17.

AMERICAN SOCIETY OF HEATING AND VENTILATING ENGINEERS will hold its annual meeting January 20-22, 1915.

TECHNICAL LEAGUE OF AMERICA.—Regular meetings third Friday of each month. Walter L. Smyth, secretary, 74 Cortlandt st, N. Y. C.

NATIONAL BUILDERS' SUPPLY ASSOCIATION.—The annual convention will be held in Chicago, Ill., February 8-9, 1915. Headquarters at Hotel Sherman.

BRONX CHAMBER OF COMMERCE will hold its regular meetings in the Walworth Building, Bergen avenue and 149th street, on the fourth Saturday of each month.

ASSOCIATION OF MASTER PLUMBERS OF NEW YORK, Manhattan branch, will hold a barn dance at the Lexington Assembly Rooms, Wednesday evening, February 3.

ASSOCIATION OF MASTER PLUMBERS of the Borough of Brooklyn will hold its annual entertainment and reception in Prospect Hall, Brooklyn, Tuesday evening, January 19, 1915.

NEW YORK CHAPTER, AMERICAN SOCIETY OF HEATING AND VENTILATING ENGINEERS, regular meeting third Monday of each month, Engineering Societies' Building, 29 West 39th st.

ARCHITECTURAL LEAGUE OF NEW YORK will hold its annual exhibition in the Fine Arts Building, 215 West 57th st, February 7 to 27. The annual dinner of the league will be held Friday evening, February 5.

INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION of Master House Painters and Decorators of the United States and Canada will meet in annual convention in Washington, D. C., Feb. 9 to 12, 1915. The headquarters will be at the Hotel Raleigh. A. H. McGhan, Corcoran Building, Washington, D. C., chairman of Convention Committee.

LUMBER INTERESTS.—A conference of the lumber industries has been called for February 24 and 25 in Chicago, under the leadership of the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association. The object of the meeting is to establish a permanent advertising bureau to acquaint the public with the uses and advantages over other materials of all forest products.

NATIONAL LIME MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION.—The annual meeting will be held in Washington, D. C. Feb. 3-4, at the New Willard Hotel. One of the objects it is desired to attain is to convert the Treasury Department to the use of lime in the concrete of public buildings. The Secretary is Frederick K. Irvine, Chicago, Ill.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF CONSULTING ENGINEERS.—The annual meeting of the Institute will be held on Jan 19 at the City Club, New York City, at 8 P. M. Three members of the Council will be elected. Ballots will be canvassed for the adoption of the amended constitution and bylaws as prepared by the special committee appointed at the last annual meeting. The secretary is Eugene W. Stern, 101 Park av, New York.

NATIONAL BRICK MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION will hold its annual convention at Detroit, February 14 to 20. William B. Wreford, of the Detroit Brick Manufacturers' Association, in co-operation with President Eben Rodgers, of Alton, Ill., and Theodore A. Randall of Indianapolis, constitute the committee of arrangements. The association will also bring to Detroit the National Paving Brick Manufacturers' Association, the National Clay Machinery Association, and the American Ceramic Society.

MID-WEST CEMENT SHOW.—The ninth annual Mid-West Cement Show will be held at Omaha, Neb., March 2 to 6 under the auspices of the Mid-West Cement Users' Association. The convention of cement users, for which a program of papers already has been arranged, is scheduled for March 3, 4 and 5. Further information regarding the convention and show may be had from Frank Whipperman, secretary and treasurer, 28th av and Sabler st, Omaha.

THE BROOKLYN LEAGUE will hold the first of a series of meetings at which luncheon will be served at the Brooklyn City Club, 127 Remsen st, Saturday, January 16 (to-day), at 1 p. m. The meeting will be addressed by the Hon. John Purroy Mitchel, Mayor, and the Hon. Lewis H. Pounds, President of the Borough of Brooklyn. The addresses will be upon topics of interest to every resident of the borough and will be followed by a discussion open to members of the league.

AMERICAN SOCIETY OF ENGINEERS, ARCHITECTS AND CONSTRUCTORS at its annual meeting held at the Engineering Societies Building, 29 West 39th st, Wednesday, January 13, elected the following officers and trustees for 1915: Major Samuel P. Hatfield, C. E., Army Building, New York, president; Oliver Randolph Parry, Philadelphia, 1st vice-president; Charles N. Green, C. E., 154 Nassau st, New York, 2d vice-president; T. Hugh Boorman, C. E., 35 West 39th st, New York, secretary; David E. Sayre, Const., Newark, N. J., treasurer. Trustees—Oliver Randolph Parry, architect; T. Hugh Boorman, consulting engineer; David E. Sayre, constructor; William Philips Comstock, architectural editor; Henry C. Irons, constructor; Manton E. Hibbs, civil engineer; F. J. Kleinke, constructor.

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

SLIGHT IMPROVEMENT SHOWN IN INQUIRY—SUBURBAN CONSTRUCTION LEADS THAT IN NEW YORK CITY

Linseed Oil Up—Navigation Open to Hudson Brick Plants

ESTIMATES from bureaus of buildings in all cities of importance in the metropolitan district, including the five boroughs of New York, Westchester and Nassau, and the five eastern counties in New Jersey, indicate that projected building operations are in excess of the volume for the first half of January, 1914, and that the estimated cost is higher. The total number of buildings projected or started is 333 for this year, as against 293 during the same period a year ago. The estimated cost of these operations for the first fourteen days in this year was $5,259,041, as against $4,913,326.

Reflected in the purchase of building material or inquiries for basic structural commodities like steel, brick, cement, stone, reinforcement, plaster, lime and gypsum, this represents a gain of approximately $69,127 over the same volume of business in the district in the first two weeks in 1914.

The gain in building construction and projection is outside of New York. In the five boroughs there is a drop in volume of sixteen and a decrease of $1,535,285. The big gain is shown in industrial projection and proposed residence and commercial construction in Newark, Long Island City, Paterson and to a moderate extent, Jersey City and Union County.

One reason why there is such a sharp decline in estimated building cost in this city is because competition is so keen that the well-financed builder can get the full benefit of the present extreme low price of building material. In the suburbs the gain in volume is not in any degree proportionate to the gain in estimated value of buildings projected or moving ahead in the first two weeks of 1914. The gain in volume outside of New York City this year is twenty-four, while the increase in estimated value is $1,781,000.

The condition of the money market also has a bearing on the difference in construction cost and activity. In New York there is a retardant movement, due to hesitancy among realty investors, regarding the effect new subways will have upon such streets as Seventh avenue, Lexington avenue, Greenwich Village, and certain parts of Brooklyn and Queens. For the same reason there is a retardant movement around Military Park, in Newark, N. J., which is adjacent to the Public Service Corporation's new trolley terminal. The stagnation in shipping in Hoboken has crippled business there and has hampered free building construction.

Terminal improvement work of the New Jersey Central at Communipaw has helped to keep the volume of materials moving steadily in Jersey City. Industrial expansion is reported as being in contemplation in a limited degree in Union County, but residence work there is said to be putting additional work on architects' boards. The generally slow real estate market is responsible for owners trying to get as much out of their square footage as possible, hence the preponderance of double and two-family apartment houses in the outlying district.

The wholesale price situation in the building materials market has strengthened, if anything. Portland cement, which recently slumped in price from $1.58 a barrel along side of dock, in 500 barrel lots, N. Y., to $1.47, is said to be firmer and some interests in the trade predict that this cutting policy had reached bottom and that the probabilities were that just as soon as building operations showed more definite signs of recovery the price would move up again. Suburban dealers have been showing more interest in this commodity since the cut and purchases are moving out with more regularity.

Hudson common brick buying both in New York and suburbs has picked up, although current wholesale quotations are still low with the exception of covered brick. Nobody is making quotations on covered brick because navigation is still open to Poughkeepsie and barges are bringing in open cargo brick from Haverstraw. What covered brick that is being taken out now is for firms who have covered their own brick for distribution. Raritan River brick is being held on order at $6, and is stiff at that figure.

There is a better call for steel wire reinforcement, but pig iron is weak. Eastern structural steel orders are showing signs of improvement, but the current quotation at tidewater is still 1.21c and 1.26c. There has been a sharp advance in the price of flaxseed at Duluth and paint and varnish interests are paying 52 and 53 cents for linseed oil in this market. The market is strong.

In the corresponding week last year 131 buildings were projected valued at $2,100,000.

LINSEED OIL.

Flaxseed Prices at Duluth Sharply Advance, Making Local Market Strong.

LINSEED OIL was forced into a strong market here this week by a sharp advance in cash prices of 5 cents at Duluth. Paint manufacturers, floor dressing interests and others were quick to note this tendency in the seed market and they lost no time in getting in on quotations while they were low. Lists now carry the prices of 52 and 53, but it is entirely probable that higher prices will be asked for this commodity. Shortage of seed and manipulation are said to be responsible for the change in price.

IRON AND STEEL.

Wire Products and Eastern Structural Business Improving.

INFORMATION available in the steel trade this week indicated that while there was little encouragement to be found in the pig iron situation there was a distinct firmness noticeable in structural steel orders and wire reinforcement and other commodities. Sheets also showed an improvement. The prospects are that the steel companies will raise their rate of output from 45 to 50 per cent. of capacity within this month, providing business continues as it now shows signs of doing.

Railroad construction work is not coming out as rapidly as was expected. There is an indication, however, that there will be greater freedom in buying as the money market continues to ease. Inquiry among the fabricating shops does not carry with it any prospects for increased requirements from the railroads, but there is a slight tightening of business in the steel building work in and around New York. An inquiry for an apartment house, in Park avenue, has been withdrawn, but offsetting this was an inquiry, from Moore Brothers, of Elizabeth, N. J., for 1,000 tons of No. 1 and 1,000 tons of No. 1 foundry for shipments over the second half of 1915. This concern is a large equipment house and its feeler is looked upon as an indication of greater improvement in this department.

SHEET METAL MANUFACTURERS CONSOLIDATE.

Pennsylvania and Eastern Expanded Metal Companies Merge as of January 1.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made of the consolidation of the Eastern Expanded Metal Company with the Penn Metal Company, which went into effect on January 1, 1915, giving to New England the largest sheet metal manufacturing plant of its kind in this part of the country.

The consolidation necessitates considerable addition to the modern reinforced concrete building at Cambridge, Mass., and when these improvements are completed, it probably will be one of the largest plants of its kind east of Pittsburgh.

Under the same roof there will be manufactured every form of metal roofing, siding, or other metal for exteriors, all forms of metal for interiors, concrete reinforcement, metal lath, metal corner bead, metal stud, culvert pipe for drainage, flumes for irrigation, conductor pipe, gutter, fire doors, hollow metal windows, tin doors, kalemein doors, metal window sash, battleship partitions, and every conceivable form of metal work for construction.

The company also maintains a highly organized department for actual construction of fireproofing in modern buildings. George P. Bullard is president of the new company and George A. Sagendorph, treausrer and general manager.

The new concern will be known as the Penn Metal Company, the main office to be at 201 Devonshire street, Boston, with sales offices in Portland, Me., Hartford, Conn., New York City (where the export department is located), Philadelphia, Pa., Jersey City, N. J., Chicago, Ill., Portland, Ore., Winston-Salem, N. C.

COMMON BRICK.

Navigation Still Open Keeps Covered Brick Dull.

COVERED brick quotations in this city are not being made owing to the fact that the Hudson is still navigable to Poughkeepsie and brick is being brought down on irregular tows from Haverstraw. There is some covered brick moving out, but this is practically all company brick, that is, brick that has been placed under cover by manufacturers for their own distribution here. Open cargo brick is still weak. Prices are unchanged.

The annual meeting of the Greater New York Brick Company will be held at the offices of the company, 103 Park avenue, on Tuesday.

The barge Olive loaded with 300,000 Gladfellow & Gladfellow brick during the storm this week sank at the wholesale docks at the foot of West 52d street.

Official transactions for Hudson River brick covering the week ending Thursday, Jan. 14, in the wholesale market, with comparison for the corresponding period last year, and a comparative statement of Hudson brick unloaded from barges for consumption here, follow:

MECHANICS AND TRADERS BANQUET.

Fourteenth Annual Dinner to be Held on Thursday Evening, in Brooklyn.

WHAT promises to be one of the most successful banquets ever held by the Mechanics and Traders Exchange of Brooklyn will take place on Thursday evening, January 21, in the Imperial Hotel, Red Hook lane and Fulton street, Brooklyn. The guests will assemble at 7.30 and according to the announcement made by the committee it will be conspicuous by the absence of any set speeches. The members of the committee are M. N. Canda, chairman, G. W. Anderson and D. J. Morrison. Red Hook lane is one block from Court House square in Brooklyn. Guests from Brooklyn will alight at the Borough Hall subway station and proceed to the Imperial Hotel, which is at the corner.

REAL ESTATE RECORD AND BUILDERS GUIDE.

NEW YORK, JANUARY 23, 1915

STRONG SUPPORT FOR SKYSCRAPER LAW

But Modifications Are Suggested By Advisory Board's Experts at the Hearing—No Opposition to the Principle of Limitation

THE ordinance of the Board of Aldermen recently proposed, to regulate the height, size and arrangement of buildings, is of far-reaching effect, and, in conjunction with the possible districting or "zoning" of the city, will mark an epoch in the building and real estate activities of the city.

No real opposition was developed at the notable hearing at City Hall on Wednesday afternoon against the essential principle involved.

A gentleman who appeared in a multiple capacity, as the owner of a certain skyscraper on lower Broadway, as a taxpaying citizen and as the head of a prominent civic association, favored the ordinance as an owner, opposed it as a taxpayer and had nothing to say as the president of the association, because opinion in the association was divided. The gas companies would oppose the bill if it limited the size of gasholders, but intimation was given that an exception would be made in this case.

Readers of the Record and Guide know that the proposal to limit the height of buildings hereafter to be erected has been the subject of discussion for many years. It has appeared in definite form at every attempt in the past to revise the Building Code, and once again as a Building Code ordinance it comes from the Building Committee of the Board of Aldermen, and this time with the strongest backing it ever has had. The hearing was granted at a joint meeting of the Board of Estimate, the officers of the Board of Aldermen and the Building Committee and was presided over by the Mayor himself. The official gentlemen constituted an imposing array around the mahogany table.

The chairman of the late Heights of Building Commission, which embodied in its report the recommendations now contained in the pending ordinance, was asked by Mayor Mitchel to first of all explain the nature of the provisions. Mr. Bassett, in complying, attempted no argument, but gave a very clear conception of what is proposed to be done. The principal restriction is as follows:

The Skyscraper Limit.

"Every building shall be so constructed that the street wall will not exceed in height the limits hereinafter prescribed * * * except that any part or parts of a building not exceeding in aggregate area 25 per cent. of the lot on which the building is situated may be erected to any height, provided that such part or parts shall be distant at least twenty-five feet, measured horizontally from all lot lines."

Mayor Mitchel read a long list of names of representatives sent by societies to appear in favor of the bill. Only a few of the proponents were heard, and then an adjournment was taken to Thursday afternoon, January 28. Wm. H. Chesebrough and Lawson Purdy made addresses which visibly impressed their hearers with the importance of the measure. Mr. Purdy supported his argument with letters from President

E. M. BASSETT.
Chairman of the commission which proposed the ordinance.

Kelsey of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, and President Bright of the Lawyers Title Insurance and Trust, institutions that had loaned millions of dollars upon real estate in this city and were not likely to favor legislation inimical to real estate.

Advisory Council's Conclusions.

While the principle of the bill received general support, there are details which, in the opinion of some, are open to improvement. Hon. Cyrus C. Miller, chairman of the Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests, submitted, in writing, certain recommendations which will be developed at the next hearing. The general principle incorporated in this ordinance has been endorsed by the Advisory Council, with the belief that its application will tend to conserve real estate interests and simultaneously be for the best interests of the city as a whole. The members of the Building Code Committee of the council, Henry W. Hodge, chairman; Otto M. Eidlitz and Julius Franke, have made an exhaustive analysis of the ordinance, and after conferences with both legal and technical authorities upon city planning, have submitted a comprehensive report upon which the council has based its decision and conclusions.

These conclusions state that tall buildings are not necessarily unsafe, unhealthy, uncomfortable, nor inconvenient, as might be inferred from the report of the Committee on the Height of Buildings, submitted to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment on December 23, 1913, and upon which the proposed ordinance is based.

"On the other hand, experience has conclusively demonstrated that tall buildings have a depressing effect on taxable and income values of adjoining property. Few skyscrapers pay large net returns, for the cost per cubic foot of tall buildings is greater than for low buildings, while they seriously affect their neighbors by impairing the value of both improved and unimproved contiguous property. The real estate interests in Boston, although originally opposed to the height limit are today its strongest supporters.

A New Principle.

"A new principle affecting American real estate is slowly being evolved; namely, a provision for light and air as a benefit to adjoining property. This is known in England as 'right of light' and may lead in time to legal complications unless buildings are properly regulated. Special consideration must further be given to the height of buildings where there is much vehicular traffic from manufacturing and mercantile buildings, because congestion from wagons and drays in this respect might be minimized by lower buildings.

The Average Height.

"Under this ordinance, the average height of tall buildings will be 120 feet or nine stories high, since most of the streets are 60 feet wide. Heretofore the average has been twelve stories high. The customary unoccupied space which will be effected by this ordinance will be increased by at least 100 per cent. for a nine-story building, and more for a taller one. Buildings facing the river or large open spaces will, as an average, be 120 feet or nine stories high, whereas buildings on avenues 100 to 150 feet wide may be 200 to 300 feet high.

"The area of a building which may be erected on a given plot is restricted approximately to 87 per cent. for low buildings, and to 80 per cent. for a nine-story building, so that there may be yards, courts, areas, or open spaces from 13 per cent. in low buildings to 20 per cent. in nine-story buildings, which must be left open to the sky above the second story. For higher buildings the unoccupied area is more, being 1 per cent. of the area for each story. Except for buildings on corner lots or buildings extending through from street to street, the ordinance requires that there be a yard in the rear of all buildings. In this particular, exterior courts are said to be more satisfactory from the standpoint of light, not only for occupants of the building, but also for the street, while if all buildings were then built up to the rear line, under these conditions, there would be less fire hazard from rear yards. Warehouses, refrigerators, and other special buildings that do not require light and ventilation and where no adjoining property interests are affected must also be provided with a yard."

Committee's Recommendations.

The recommendations for certain changes in the ordinances, as made by the Building Code Committee of the Advisory Council, are: To allow parapets on roofs and balconies of three and one-half feet without making it necessary to reduce the height of the building; to allow of all kinds of chimneys and of elevators and stairs being located near the front where they usually are, instead of being compelled to locate them further toward the center of the building, as now provided in the ordinance.

With regard to the tower, which shall be distant at all points at least 20 feet from all lot lines, it is suggested that the ordinance read "from all lot lines other than a street line bordering on a body of water, or a public street, square, park, railway, or marginal way more than 150 feet wide, with or without an intervening street. Where such part of a building is on such street line it may also be built on an intersecting street line."

This change will clearly permit the construction of corner towers like the Metropolitan. Since street walls cannot be over 300 feet in height, it was suggested that the limiting height shall be twice the width not only of the street, but also of a public way, park, body of water, or railway.

With reference to yards and courts, it was requested that skylights be allowed to project above the level of second floor beams, which is not provided for. The clause as to what structures shall be deemed buildings for the purpose of this ordinance seemed too broad.

If it was intended to cover signs, skylights, flagpoles, or cloth awnings and that these should not project beyond the building line or offset lines, then it should be made clear, so that all may understand, because as it now reads these could be prohibited unless the building were set back sufficiently to allow for the same.

The Supporters.

Mayor Mitchel remarked that it seemed as if every important real estate interest in the city was in favor of the ordinance. Appearing in favor, at the hearing on the Heights of Buildings Ordinance before the Board of Estimate and Apportionment and the Committee on Buildings of the Board of Aldermen, were the following: Cyrus C. Miller, Advisory Council of R. E. Interests; Joel S. De Selding, Real Estate Board; William H. Chesebrough, Alliance Realty Company; George T. Mortimer, U. S. Realty & Improvement Company; Allan Robinson, president, Allied Real Estate Interests; Clarence H. Kelsey, Title Guarantee & Trust Co.; Louis V. Bright, Lawyers Title Insurance Co.; Abram I. INVESTIGATING THE TORRENS ACT

Associated Real Estate Interests Trying to Make It a Workable System—The Principle of the Law Conceded to Be Right

THE Real Estate Board of New York announces today an important step reached in its work, undertaken some months ago, of investigating the New York Torrens Act. The purpose of this investigation was (1), to see if the law could be made a practical working instrument, and (2), what steps were necessary to make it so.

Since the Torrens Law was put on the statute books in 1908, some well-considered judicial opinions have given valuable suggestions and advice; practical experience in the operation of the law has revealed its short-comings, and skilled conveyancers and title examiners have given it the benefit of their careful study. In view of the approaching constitutional convention, the act of the Real Estate Board in requesting a committee to examine the system and the statute and make proposals for changes is considered opportune.

The committee which undertook this work included the following: Professor Alfred G. Reeves, chairman; Walter Lindner, Henry R. Chittick, Irving Ruland, David A. Clarkson, Cyril H. Burdett, Charles H. Ayres, George W. Olvany, Edward Alexander, Harry Percy David, Laurence M. D. McGuire; secretary, Richard O. Chittick.

Sub-committees were appointed as follows:

To investigate conditions in New York State: David A. Clarkson, Irving Ruland and Cyril H. Burdett.

To investigate conditions outside of New York State: Henry R. Chittick, Walter Lindner and George W. Olvany. H. C. Cameron was also sent to Massachusetts to make a special investigation.

Conclusions Reached.

Having received the reports of these committees, and after taking time for careful study of the Torrens system generally in this country and the law of New York and its operation and defects in particular, the committee adopted five resolutions which may be called the foundations of its subsequent work. The substance of these resolutions are, (1) That the principle of the Torrens Law is right. (2) That the New York law is constitutional. (3) That the New York law ought to be fostered and used to a greater extent. (4) That a sub-committee propose amendments to the existing statute without regard to any possible constitutional amendment. (5) That another sub-committee, working in harmony with the first, study the advisability of any constitutional amendment and suggest any that they may think proper.

These sub-committees were appointed as follows:

On amendments to the existing statute: George W. Olvany, Henry R. Chittick and Henry Percy David.

On constitutional amendments: Cyril H. Burdett, David A. Clarkson and Charles H. Ayres.

The one on amendments to the existing law has substantially completed its work, has had its proposed amendments ratified by the Board of Governors and has sent the amendments to Albany.

The committee on the constitutional phase of the question is yet to finish its labors: and it will seek to make anything that it suggests harmonize with that already done by the other committee. It follows that in reading this summary it must be remembered that the work of the entire committee is not yet complete, and there may be important improvements yet suggested in the way of any possible constitutional changes.

Objects Sought.

The sub-committee which drafted the proposed amendments to the existing law aimed to make the statute more easily workable, to remove, as far as possible, the prominent objections that had been made to it, to lessen to some extent the expense of registering titles to give the law a smoother working on titles already registered, and to do away with minor defects and peculiarities of the statute which experience has pointed out.

Accordingly, a number of amendments have been suggested, which shorten the pleadings, avoid duplication of papers, lessen the expense for guardians, and make more definite the manipulation of registered title. Also, an effort has been made to keep the working of the law more fully before specially chosen judges retained permanently for that purpose and to give those judges and the Appellate Division which appoint the official examiners of title more complete supervision and control and removing powers over those examiners. The removal of one of the much criticised elements in the existing statute has been recommended by a provision which forbids the official examiners who reports and certifies a title to the court to act as the attorney in the action for the registration of that title. A change is also recommended, practically applicable to New York County, which will utilize locality indexes in the Register's office where such indexes have been completed and authorize Deputy Registers in such office to act as official examiners of title.

Such changes and quite a number of others which have the same general objects in view, if made into law will give to the statute a smoothness and efficiency, and, it is hoped, attractiveness to real property interests such as it has not hitherto enjoyed. These amendments have been proposed with scrupulous care as to keeping the law clearly constitutional or making it more readily and cheaply workable. The Torrens Law, when fitted into the jurisprudence of a State, as we believe the amended statute will be into that of New York, makes a very important advance in dealing with titles to real property, and with fewer and fewer exceptions, those who manipulate such title the most are coming to recognize the fact in this State.

Not a Selfish Movement.

The committee which has been dealing with this question for the Real Estate Board is representative of most, if not all, of the varying shades of realty interests; and with one exception it had been substantially unanimous and enthusiastic in its advocacy of the principle and the statute. It will endeavor, if possible, to recommend to the constitutional convention such changes in the fundamental law as may still further facilitate the working of that statute. It is felt that when all is done the importance of this law should be more and more brought to the attention of owners of real property, and the advantages to them it embraces should be more and more emphasized.

The fundamental principle of the law —the fixing of a title so that its evidence is put and retained on a single certificate and the making of it a quicker and easier asset for its owner, while greatly reducing the expense of its manipulation after it is once registered—will become more and more familiar to those who own land or deal with it, and so the operation of the statute will continue to grow. The cost of initial registration may stand in the way for a time; but with other causes of its slow growth and most of the active opposition, if not all, removed, it should go ahead and manifest to realty owners its inherent character for good and for their permanent benefit.

DISCOUNTING NEW TRANSIT IN FLEETWOOD

Jerome Avenue Extension of System Stimulates Building and Operators Are Now Erecting Apartments to Forestall Increased Demand

SUBWAY construction progressing along Jerome avenue, in the Bronx, is attracting considerable attention to those sections which will be particularly affected and benefited. One of them is Fleetwood, part of the old William H. Morris estate, which comprised about 120 acres, and included the territory roughly bounded by Webster avenue, 165th street, the Grand Concourse and 169th street. Part of this tract was formerly the famous Fleetwood race track, popular among trotting-horse enthusiasts of a generation ago. In 1897, after the death of William H. Morris, the property was divided among his three heirs, A. Newbold Morris, Mrs. Frederick J. de Peyster and Mrs. Philip Livingston. The commissioners in the partition proceedings were Henry Lewis Morris, James L. Wells, and William Reynolds Brown. Prior to that time the property had been in the same ownership since the original land grants of Colonial times. Since that time all the Livingston holdings have been sold and only a few properties remain of the many blocks held by the other heirs.

BUILDINGS IN CLAY AVENUE.

New Streets Opened.

Soon after the partition, the city acquired title to the streets and avenues and commenced regulating, grading and the installation of other improvements. The Third avenue elevated road was already in operation and the Webster avenue trolley line began running in January, 1901. Coincident with the opening of this road came the building activity which has transformed Fleetwood from a vast, practically unproductive waste to a flourishing apartment house community. The extensive building operations, within recent times in the East Bronx, may, perhaps, have overshadowed the development of the sections further west, but even before the Jerome avenue subway was a reality, or even a possibility, builders had been attracted to Fleetwood and were rapidly absorbing the available building sites. One of the reasons advanced at the time for this activity was the low price of the lots, which enabled a man to build, with a reasonable chance for a profitable transaction.

The first important operation was undertaken by Ernest Wenigmann, in March, 1901. He began improving the east and west sides of Clay avenue, from 165th to 166th streets, with twenty-eight two-family houses, which at that time were considered desirable improvements for that neighborhood. The following September, Adolph Wexler, evidently realizing its possibilities for apartment house improvement, built a five-story multi-family structure at the northwest corner of Webster avenue and 168th street, and ten four-story buildings adjoining on the avenue.

In July, 1904, the Middleboro Realty Company acquired the block bounded by Morris and Grant avenues, 165th and 166th streets, which it subsequently improved with three-story, two and three-family houses. The same builders also erected small houses of the same kind in 1907 on the west sides of Morris and Grant avenues, between the same streets. In August 1908, Albert J. and Otto J. Schwarzler began their extensive operations, by erecting fifteen five-story apartment houses, on the east side of Clay avenue, between 168th and 169th streets. Since then they have improved with comparatively uniform types of buildings the entire east side of Clay avenue, from 166th street to 167th street; both sides from 167th to 168th streets, part of the west side from 166th to 167th streets, and the entire block bounded by Teller avenue, 166th street, Findlay avenue and 167th street. They are at present building similar properties at the southwest corner of Clay avenue and 167th street, having recently finished another building operation at the northeast corner of Teller avenue and 167th street.

In January, 1911, the Mountain Construction Company erected a row of seven three-story houses and two five-story houses in East 165th street, between College and Findlay avenues, and the month following the Hadden Construction Company built five five-story houses, occupying the entire block, in the south side of 165th street, between Findlay and Teller avenues. Later in the year the Manhattan Island Realty Company started similar operations at the northwest corner of Teller avenue and 165th street, the southwest corner of Teller avenue and 166th street and the block front on the east side of Findlay avenue from 165th to 166th streets. In 1912, William E. Diller built the taxpayers' at the southwest corner of Webster avenue and 167th street. In May, 1912, Ernest Wenigmann erected three five-story flats at the northwest corner of College avenue and 166th street; two five-story flats in the north side of 165th street, between Clay and Teller avenues; two five-story flats, at the southeast corner of Teller avenue and 166th street; a five-story flat at the southwest corner of Clay avenue and 166th street and a four-story flat, at the opposite southeast corner. In the same year, the Mitchell-McDermott Construction Company improved the entire south side of 165th street, between Morris and Grant avenues, with six five-story structures.

The desirability of this section for apartment house improvement evidently induced the John J. Tully Construction Company to purchase, in June, 1914, a plot of twenty-six lots, on College and Findlay avenues, at 166th street. They are just completing a row of five-story buildings on the site, and contemplate building on the entire plottage, the installation of the foundations on the remaining unimproved land having been completed. The Kovacs Construction Company has recently completed the improvement of the block front, on the south side of 165th street, between Grant and Sherman avenues, with apartment houses and has also purchased six lots at the northwest corner of Grant avenue and 166th street, for improvement along the same lines.

F. A. de Peyster Sells.

The last sale of importance in the section was made last November, for F. Ashton de Peyster, by W. E. & W. I. Brown, who sold the vacant plot of nineteen lots, 475x100, at the northeast corner of Morris avenue and 168th street.

"The excellence of renting conditions afford opportunities for additional building operations," said William I. Brown. "The demand is chiefly for four and five-room apartments and the success of the buildings which have been erected to meet this demand is evidenced by the ease with which they have been rented and sold.

FINDLAY AVENUE NORTH FROM 166TH STREET.

"It is reasonable to assume that the opening of the new subway lines immediately affecting the Fleetwood district will further stimulate building activity.

"The Jerome avenue extension of the Broadway-Lexington avenue route and the connection with the Sixth and Ninth avenue elevated will give additional transit facilities to a section which has already proved itself adaptable for development with apartment houses."

LEGISLATIVE BILLS AFFECTING REAL ESTATE

The Governor's Tax Reform Measure Will Revolutionize the System of Collecting Taxes—An Amendment to the Tenement House Law

THE Legislature of 1915, from which much is expected in the way of relief from oppressive conditions, has settled to its work. The most important measure introduced so far is Mr. Hinman's Senate bill (Int. No. 207) establishing a State Department of Assessments and Taxation. The bill emanates from the Governor himself and follows recommendations in his message. So far as known no real estate body has yet had opportunity to endorse it.

In theory the bill places the business of assessing the State's special and indirect taxes on a scientific basis in the hands of a non-partisan board and subject to the check of the collecting agencies in the State's financial offices. It transfers from the Comptroller's office the functions of assessing the taxes on corporations, including franchise taxes on business corporations, on gross earnings, on public service corporations, trust companies, insurance premiums and saving banks, and the personal taxes, including the inheritance tax.

The New Tax Department.

The new department is to be presided over by a commission of three members appointed by the Governor with the consent of the Senate. This commission is empowered to appoint a secretary, deputy commissioners, experts and such other employes as may be necessary. Within the department there will be bureaus of Corporation Taxes, Franchise Taxes, Mortgage Taxes, Local Assessments, Equalization and Statistics, and such others as may be needed. Each bureau is to be in charge of a deputy tax commissioner.

The commission may require local assessors of tax districts to meet with the commission at least once in two years, to consider matters relating to taxation, to secure greater uniformity of valuation throughout the State, and to discuss desirable changes in the law. Among the powers of the Tax Commission are the following: To confer with, advise, assist and direct assessors and other officials charged by law with duties relating to the assessment of property for taxation; to furnish local assessors with necessary instructions; to compile and publish statistics relating to state and local taxation and assessment, and to have general supervision of the assessment of property to taxation throughout the State. The duties now conferred upon the State Comptroller in relation to the assessment, determination, revision, readjustment and imposition of corporation taxes under Article 9 of the Tax Law, are transferred to the State Tax Department, except those relating to the collecting of corporation taxes assessed and the refunding of such taxes paid. The State Board of Tax Commissioners is abolished.

Senator Boylan has reintroduced (Int. No. 12) his bill giving more power to the present tax board, including power to direct reassessments and to recommend remedial laws. This bill is likely to be comprehended in the administration measure.

A Half-Tax Measure.

Mr. Simpson has a bill in the Assembly (Int. No. 235) providing that the Board of Assessors shall in no case assess any house or lot more than one-half its fair market value at the time of the confirmation of the assessment.

A Tenement Law Amendment.

Assemblyman Ellenbogen has introduced a bill (Int. No. 109) amending the Tenement House Law (Section 51), which relates to the height of tenement houses standing on streets abutting on public parks or bodies of water. The present law provides that no tenement house shall be increased in height so that the building shall exceed by more than one-half the width of the widest street on which it stands. The amendment provides that the width of the street shall be deemed to include the mean or average width of such open and unobstructed portion of a public park, public square or body of water abutting on such street, as lies between straight lines drawn from the ends of the building line of the lot fronting on such street and at right angles to such building line. The public park, public square or body of water must have an area of at least one acre.

Other bills affecting real estate so far introduced include the following:

Assembly Bills.

No. 4. (By Mr. Callahan.) Amending the Railroad Law (new sub-division 6 of section 57), making five cents the maximum on steam or electric suburban trains between any station in one borough and any station in an adjoining borough of New York City where both boroughs have over 400,000 inhabitants. Same as Senator Griffin's bill of last year.

8. (Mr. Donohue.) Amending the Civil Code (section 3380) by permitting the temporary possession of real property by the plaintiff in condemnation proceedings at any stage of the proceedings after the time of the defendant to answer has expired. The court is authorized to fix the bond required to be filed where no answer has been interposed, or where the answer filed does not state the value of the property. (Same as Assembly Int. 8, Print 8 of 1914 by Donohue.)

12. (Goldberg.) Inserting in the Transportation Corporations Law a new section (106) fixing five cents as the maximum charge for a telephone conversation of five minutes duration, in New York City.

17. (Kramer.) Amending the Public Buildings Law (Section 3) by providing that the trustees of public buildings must furnish sufficient space in one building in New York City to house state officials performing duties within the city. The trustees are authorized to lease buildings for a term of years, and to require all state officers to abandon outside state officers as their leases expire. (Same as Assembly Int. 1048, Print 1121, of 1914, by Mr. Kramer.)

18. (Kramer.) Amending the Real Property Law (section 249) and the Code of Civil Procedure (sections 1627, 1628, 1629 and 1630) in relation to the foreclosure of mortgages on real property. It provides that where such a mortgage contains a covenant for the payment of the sum intended to be secured, the remedies of the mortgages are confined to the property mentioned in the mortgage, except to the extent that the proceeds of sale of the mortgage premises are insufficient to pay costs of foreclosure and expenses of sale. Any such bond or covenant is void for all purposes except to fix the maximum amount, exclusive of costs and expenses, to be recovered by the mortgagee, notwithstanding any provisions of law to the contrary.

163. (Nehrbauer.) Amending the Greater New York Charter (sections 889, 892, 892a, 894, 895, 896, 898, 899, 900, 906, 907, 911, 914, 916, 917 and 1025) relative to levying taxes.

It extends from May 1 to July 1, the time when personal property taxes and half of the real estate taxes are due, and from November 1 to January 1, the time when the remaining half of real estate taxes are due. The bill similarly extends for two months the various dates for complying with the several requirements relative to the levying of taxes. (Same as Assembly Int. 978, Pr. 1047, of 1914, by Mr. Nehrbauer.)

164. (Green.) Authorizing the Commissioner of Docks and Ferries of New York City, with the approval of the Board of Estimate, to adopt a plan for the straightening, widening and improving of Coney Island Creek, showing a ship canal at least 400 feet wide.

Senate Bills.

No. 1. (Carroll.) Amending the Public Buildings Law (section 3) in relation to the housing of state officers in New York City. (Same as Assembly bill introduced January 13, 1915.) (Same as A. Int. 1048, Pr. 1121, of 1914, by Kramer.) To Cities Committee.

2. (Carroll.) Amending the Real Property Law (sections 249, 1627, 1628, 1629 and 1630) in relation to the foreclosure of real estate mortgages. (Same as Assembly Bill of January 13, 1915.) To Codes Committee.

To License Architects.

20. (Simpson.) Inserting in the General Business Law a new article (7a) providing for the licensing and regulating of architects. The regents of the State University are to appoint a board of examiners of five members, who are to make rules for the examination and registration of candidates, subject to the approval of the board of regents. The members of the examining board must be architects of not less than ten years' practice in the state, and are to be entitled to such compensation as the regents may determine, but not exceeding in the aggregate the amount of fees collected for certificates. Applicants for examination must pay a fee of $25. No person without the required certificate may engage in the practice of architecture. Violation is made a misdemeanor. The bill provides certain minimum qualifications for applicants, and for the issuance of certificates without examination in certain cases. (Same as Senate Int. 899, Pr. 980, of 1914, by Simpson.) To Judiciary Committee.

28. (Dunnigan.) Amending the Railroad Law (new subdivision 6 of section 57). In relation to the rate of fare on steam railroads in New York City. The amendment makes five cents the maximum fare on steam or electric suburban trains between stations in adjoining boroughs, where such boroughs have over 400,000 inhabitants. (Same as Senate Int. 69, Print 69, of 1914, by Griffin.) To Public Service Committee.

86. (Thompson, George F.) Amending the Tax Law (section 263) in relation to the refundment of mortgage taxes paid through inadvertence. (Same as Assembly Bill introduced January 14, 1915.) To Taxation Committee.

51. (Slater.) Amending the Highway Law (section 343) in relation to the laying of railroad tracks upon the Albany Post road within Westchester County. (Same as Assembly Bill.) To Internal Affairs Committee.

116. (Horton.) Amending the Public Service Commissions Law (subdivision 9 of section 2 and subdivision 3 of section 49), by giving the commission jurisdiction over navigation companies and water lines with respect to discriminations, preferences, and joint and other routes. (Same as Senate Int. 346, Pr. 353, of 1914, by Murtaugh.) To Public Service Committee.

DEPARTMENT STORES ON LEASEHOLDS

Many Merchants, Who Control Large Retail Establishments, Lease, Rather Than Buy, Realty—Advantages To Both Owner and Lessee

A NOTABLE development which has characterized practically all the recent uptown trade removals of large retail establishments is the acquisition of the new locations through long term leases, rather than outright purchases.

Brokaw Brothers, for fifty-eight years in Astor Place, leased several weeks ago, for a term of twenty-one years, with two renewal privileges, from the Pittsburgh Building Company, Henry Phipps, the site of the one-time Cafe de l'Opera and the Hotel Rossmore, on which a building will be erected. Their present establishment is built partly on leasehold ground and partly on land belonging to the firm.

Brooks Brothers, for thirty years at Broadway and 22d street, have also taken, under lease, the northwest corner of Madison avenue and 44th street, where William Henry Barnum and William Everdell, Jr., have already begun the construction of a building for their occupancy. The firm's present store was also obtained under lease from the trustees of Catherine N. Fane. The records show that it was leased for a twenty-one-year term, beginning February, 1908.

Five Million Involved.

Arnold Constable & Co., another of the late additions to the uptown retail colony, obtained the site of their new building, at Fifth avenue and 40th street, under a lease from Frederick W. Vanderbilt at a rental reported to approximate $5,000,000. An interesting detail in connection with this transaction is the fact that they are abandoning property which they own in fee. The records show that title to 881 to 887 Broadway, their present location, is in the name of Marie Constable and others, heirs of Frederick A. Constable, deceased.

The new Lord & Taylor store, at Fifth avenue and 38th street, is also on leasehold property, the land belonging to Frank B. Burton and others. The firm moved from leasehold property, their downtown buildings having occupied land owned by Mary R. Goelet, William E. Roosevelt and others.

A. A. Vantine & Co., Inc., also left property belonging to members of the firm, at 879 Broadway, to obtain a choice location under lease, at the southwest corner of Fifth avenue and 39th street, from Jacob Dreicer, which, when taken together with the Lord & Taylor establishment, completes the occupancy of the Fifth avenue frontage on the west side of the thoroughfare.

Gave Up Their Own Premises.

Stern Brothers' new store, in West 42d street, is on leasehold ground belonging to the Pentalpha Realty Corporation and Louisa M. Gerry. They abandoned property in West 23d street, which they held partly in fee and partly under lease.

Bonwit, Teller & Co. hold their present property at 417 to 421 Fifth avenue under lease from Mrs. Elizabeth M. Anderson. The same firm also acquired, last July, under a similar agreement with Mrs. Anderson the new eleven-story building at 415 Fifth avenue, through to 5 and 7 East 37th street, and 8 East 38th street. They will occupy the second, third and fourth floors and the rest of the building will be subleased. The Fifth avenue store in this building has already been taken by J. & J. Slater, shoe dealers, now at Broadway and 26th street. The Bonwit, Teller & Co. store in West 23d street was also a leasehold.

At Herald Square the establishment of R. H. Macy & Co. is built on land owned by the Aycrigg estate, although members of the Straus family have, from time to time, been acquiring interests in the fee to the land, through purchases from various heirs. In October, 1906, Isidor and Nathan Straus acquired a twelfth interest in 1323 Broadway, 113 West 34th street, 147 West 34th street, 144 West 35th street, and 141 to 143 West 34th street. In July, 1914, Percy S. Straus bought a fifth interest in 1319 to 1323 Broadway, 129 to 133 West 34th street and 122 to 126 West 35th street.

On Greeley Square.

Saks & Co., at Broadway and 33d street, occupying 1293 and 1311 Broadway, 100 to 106 West 34th street and 101 to 107 West 33d street, are lessees from the Herald Square Realty Company, Henry Morgenthau, president. The new Rogers Peet Company building at Fifth avenue and 41st street is also on leased ground.

Gimbel Brothers, occupying the entire block on Broadway, from 32d to 33d streets, are lessees from the Greeley Square Realty Company, Walter G. Oakman, president. The term runs twenty-one years from August 1, 1910, with a privilege of four renewals.

John Wanamaker, occupying the two solid blocks bounded by East 8th street, Broadway, East 9th Street and Fourth avenue, and by East 9th street, Broadway, East 10th street and Fourth avenue, holds this property, under lease, from the trustees of Sailors' Snug Harbor. Mr. Wanamaker, in 1904, bought the unimproved plot 726 to 730 Broadway to be used for recreation purposes for employees. It was formerly the site of the old London Street and Colonnade Hotel. At present it is vacant, but there is some talk of a portion of it being used as an extension of Waverly place.

The stores of the J. B. Greenhut Company, and B. Altman & Company are partly on leasehold and partly on fee ground. The estate of John N. A. Griswold and William Waldorf Astor own part of the site of the latter establishment.

James A. Hearn & Son, in West 14th street, own part of their property in fee. The remainder belongs to the Spingler estate. George A. Hearn, during his lifetime, acquired title at various times to some of the frontages in West 14th street and West 13th street. Last October Bedell Brothers acquired the leasehold interest of Revillon Freres in the eleven-story building at 19 West 34th street. This property was leased from Henry P. Loomis and Adeline L. Prince for a term of twenty-one years from May 1, 1905.

In West 125th street the large department store of H. C. F. Koch & Company, Inc., is built on ground belonging to members of the Matthiessen family of Chicago, Ill. The firm, however, owns property in West 124th street, opposite this site.

Of the large department stores in Manhattan, Bloomingdale Brothers and Oppenheim, Collins & Company are the only ones, so far as we can find, that own the land in fee which is occupied by their stores. Bloomingdale Brothers own the block front on the west side of Third avenue from 59th to 60th street, with large frontages in each of these streets. They also control two lots on Lexington avenue, at Nos. 749 and 751. Oppenheim, Collins & Company own in fee 33 to 39 West 34th street and 48 to 60 West 35th street.

The evident policy of these companies as indicated raises an interesting question. Why have large firms whose resources could probably finance without difficulty the acquisition of the fee interest appear to prefer ownership for only a limited period of time?

Several reasons have been advanced to explain this tendency. The department store concerns itself essentially with business and not real estate speculation or investment. Perhaps that is why this particular class of firm prefers to lease rather than buy. From the business point of view it is generally considered good policy to have on hand, or within easy reach, as great an amount of cash as possible. The large department store in its capacity as a buyer of enormous quantities of every kind of merchandise is in a position to make large savings through discounts by the early or prompt payment of bills. The money devoted to such purposes rather than to the accumulation of real property might in the end result in a greater profit for them than a possible rise in real estate values. This, the availability of ready money, is probably the principal reason why these firms have taken leases rather than fee interests.

Why Leases Are Taken.

There is also the situation where the desired location is not on the market for sale, although the owner would consider a lease for a reliable tenant. Few of the larger department stores, as, for example, John Wanamaker, could have possibly purchased the sites which they now occupy, although the property could be acquired under a lease.

Most of the stores require such large space that a plot would have to be assembled and negotiations opened with a number of owners. One holdout might interfere with the entire layout of the proposed site or make his price so prohibitive that it would hold up the project. Department stores in acquiring property cannot invoke the aid of the right of eminent domain which is reserved for the government and for certain public service corporations which require land for public purposes.

There is another reason that has been given, and that is the remarkable shifting of shopping districts in New York City. Stores have found it necessary to follow the trend. Witness the experience of Lord & Taylor. The firm began business in Catherine street and later moved to Grand street, then to Broadway and 20th street and finally to Fifth avenue and 39th street. A purchase might tie up a firm's capital in land when it might have to be utilized for a removal. Such a situation is not desirable in a business where cash plays so important a part.

A Matter of Policy.

Summing up all the reasons, a definite conclusion is reached. Namely, that it is the evident policy, of this particular class of business, to lease property rather than to buy. This policy in no way reflects on the integrity of real estate as an investment. It rather strengthens it because the owner who can obtain a prospering business concern as a tenant, for a twenty-one-year term with privileges for extension, is assured of a reliable source of income.

Since the stability of real estate values depends, in a great measure, upon income or potential income, the value of a property tenanted for a long term by a "live firm" may be regarded as being placed on a firm basis for many years.

A bull market for the first time in six years is the inspiring report from Wall Street. It means that investment money is flowing back into the channels of commerce and industry.

The old national political question of centralization or decentralization of power and authority is revived again in the controversy over the unification of building inspection departments in this city. Wasn't the cardinal principle settled at the time of the consolidation?

Something is surely wrong with economic conditions in America when there are so many more deserving men than there are jobs. 'Twas not so years ago. Is there not too much immigration of the wrong kind? Of course, there cannot be too much of the right kind.

Seven million population thirty-five years from now is the prediction for Brooklyn, based on the present rate of growth. Brooklyn has one great economic advantage; her citizens have the community spirit in a far higher degree than the migratory residents of Manhattan. Their life is bound up in their homes and social circles, and this is what makes a Brooklyn real estate mortgage a particularly safe investment.

The recent trouble with the market for mortgages of moderate size in Manhattan and the Bronx, according to the principal lending institutions, was not the scarcity of investors but the inability of borrowers to furnish proper mortgages. In a very large proportion of cases the equities were too slender to satisfy lenders. This condition of affairs was no doubt attributable to the fact that because of overbuilding owners were unable to shift the higher tax burden to their tenants. Increasing tenancy is now gradually removing the trouble.

The City's Growing Demands on Taxpayers.

Mayor Mitchel has been severely criticized for stating that the city could not reduce materially expenses until it began to benefit from the reforms instituted in incurring indebtedness and that new sources of taxation would have to be developed. He certainly did not mean by his speech in Brooklyn that no further economies were possible. What he did mean was that no possible saving in expenditure would be sufficient to meet the future increased demands on the city's income, and in this he is undoubtedly right. The demands will be enormous, both because of the debt service and for other reasons. The money with which to meet these demands must be raised in part from taxation.

The most important of all problems which confronts the administration is the devising of a method to obtain an increase of municipal income without pressing any more heavily on real estate. We understand that the tax commission which was appointed last spring is about to make a report. The sooner it does so the better. Legislation will be required in order to carry out its recommendation, and this legislation must be passed during the present session. The matter cannot go over another year. If the New York real estate taxpayer is to escape a disastrous increase of his burdens, action must be quick and decisive.

The Business Revival.

There can be no doubt that the improvement in business which has been expected for so long and heralded so often is actually putting in at least a preliminary appearance. The symptoms of increasing business activity are many and various. The demand for stocks and bonds is broadening steadily, and this indicates both an increased purchasing power on the part of investors, greater confidence in the future, and the assurance that this country will be able hereafter to finance any liquidation of American securities held abroad. The enormous balance of trade in favor of this country will be sufficient to return to Europe money which has been borrowed in the past and to lend to European governments the money needed to finance their current purchases in American markets. Those purchases will last as long as the war lasts and will become larger rather than smaller in volume.

Many American manufacturers are building additions to their plants with the expectation of more adequately meeting the demand later in the year. Grain and food stuffs will command high prices. No matter how much American farmers raise next summer they can sell the surplus abroad on extremely remunerative terms. It looks as if even cotton would be restored to a normal price sometime during the current year. So long as cotton was low business in one large section of the country was necessarily stagnant, and it was expected that the price of cotton would not recover from the excessive crop of 1914 for at least a couple of years. But owing to the enormous demand for woolen clothing created by the war and to the entire suppression of the Belgian linen industry, cotton will have to be used for a largely increased number of purposes—so much so that the surplus of 1914 will be consumed much sooner than expected. Inasmuch as the crop for 1915 is likely to be small, fifteen cent cotton has become a possibility before the spring of 1916.

Of course the whole economic activity will be contingent on a continuation of the war, and as soon as the war ends extensive and costly readjustments will have to be made. But if the war should last, as so many good judges anticipate, for two or three years, the United States is likely to pass through a period of somewhat feverish and excited business activity accompanied by a large amount of speculation. Large profits will be made by considerable parts of the community, but these profits will not be earned without the assumption of dangerous risks. The situation will appeal to the adventurous temper of American business men and they will make the most of it.

An Advantageous Site.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company announces that it will sell off its surplus real estate in all the large Eastern cities. The only surplus real estate which it is known to own in New York are some parcels in front of the Pennsylvania Terminal and near to it, and it is very much to be hoped that it will succeed in making the sale quickly and advantageously. The development of that part of Seventh avenue has been very much retarded by the uncertainty which has prevailed in respect to the improvement of these properties. Various schemes have been proposed for them. At one time plans were actually being drawn for a hotel, but the project was never carried out. The railroad company would have been well advised to establish a business man's hotel containing many single rooms at moderate prices. The location would have been almost perfect, for that kind of an improvement, and the railroad station and the hotel could have been made mutually advantageous. The management of the company, however, decided otherwise, and no equally available improvement has ever been proposed. If the site is not used for a hotel, it ought to be given over to a department store. The railroad company will make a grave mistake not to take care that the building erected on the site is worthy of its location and that the business established in the new building will help the traffic on the two railroads.

The Reckless Construction of Tall Buildings.

The real estate owners of New York ought to appreciate much more widely than they do the disastrous effect upon the stability of values in Manhattan which the lack of any restriction or the height of buildings has brought about. Tax Commissioner Lawson Purdy declared most emphatically at the hearing on the proposed limitation that the reckless construction of tall business buildings had demoralized real estate prices in many speculative districts, and he was right. What Manhattan needs as a condition of wholesome real estate development is comparatively even improvement throughout its whole breadth, and such an improvement can never take place as long as builders are permitted to run up skyscrapers on peculiarly favorable locations. Hitherto the people who have argued in favor of legal restrictions have been for the most part architects and civic reformers who were offended by the aesthetic and social disadvantages of tall buildings. But after the experience of the past few years real estate owners should understand that the fundamental objection is economic. The want of restriction in the height of buildings has the same effect on the stability of the real estate market as cut-throat competition has upon ordinary business. It places all existing values at the mercy of building operators, who are able to take advantage of particularly desirable sites and to improve these sites to the limit. In regulating the height of buildings the city will also be regulating and stabilizing the price of real estate.

The Paramount Issue.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

Mr. Lustgarten and Mr. Alexander, both in a most convincing way, are demonstrating pro and con the merits or demerits of the "single tax." As one conversant with realty conditions, may I observe that whether a single tax be expedient or not, the real paramount issue at this moment is how to counteract the staggering impositions levied against real estate, whether this be land or whether it be land with improvements.

The satisfaction, or rather consolation, is that the monies are expended for the betterment of this wonderful metropolis and that its growth and betterment will repay for what has been so expended, though I know not when, or where or how. A READER.

"Has New York Seen Its Best Days?"—A Rejoinder from Mr. Harmon.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

I have been somewhat amused, as well as much interested, in the letter of John L. Parrish, and your editorial with reference to my state of mind as to whether New York City has seen its best days.

Coming from such sources, these two articles have especial value. I respect John L. Parrish as one of the clearest thinkers on real estate matters in our city, and the Record and Guide as a fair and efficient exponent of the real estate interests of our great city. So, we start out with a fair presumption of giving the public some information of value upon which to predicate its own judgment regarding the future in real estate.

I have been impressed with one fact repeatedly: that it is practically impossible for a real estate man or writer to face the significance of a declining market in his own community; and this is one of the reasons that makes depressions so long-lived, averaging nearly twenty years.

Twenty-two years ago in the office of T. & A., whom Buffalo men will remember as the most prosperous real estate concern in Buffalo, I made the statement that we could buy a piece of property on Kenwood avenue twenty years from that time at the price they were asking for it in 1890—about $1,200 an acre. I was told that men holding such opinions were a discredit to Buffalo and should not be allowed to do business in the city. Five years later Mr. T., the senior partner of the then ruined concern, asked me to help him get a position. The property on Kenwood avenue can today be bought for $1,200 an acre, and it is a good purchase at the price.

In 1889 I made myself exceedingly unpopular in Chicago by advising against the purchase of all real estate. In 1910 I made myself equally unpopular with Mr. Fay the editor of the Evening News, by saying the time was ripe to purchase real estate. In both cases I was right. Today that great paper is advising its readers to buy real estate almost anywhere in Chicago, when it should be counseling caution. I could give many other illustrations of the same kind of experiences, but these three will probably indicate that I have brought to bear some sort of a process of reasoning which the local man rarely, if ever, applies to conditions in his own town.

Both the Record and Guide and Mr. Parrish have given two pregnant causes of real estate stagnation, and I accept them as factors in our present state of the market; but you ignore the really vital thrust New York City has received which is bleeding real estate equities to death. New York City will recover from over-building and from anticipated values; but what New York City will never recover from is a burden of taxation that offsets increment and encroaches on value, nor from building restrictions that permanently handicap her industries as against competitors in other cities. While New York City is doubtless growing, and will grow rapidly, yet she is not growing in the best way, nor is the type of growth the same as ten or fifteen years ago. Thousands of immigrants with low-earning capacity and large families are coming to New York, and thousands of the middle class of people who pay from $30 to $60 per month rent are leaving it. To illustrate the undesirableness of the cheapest type of population, will give another example.

A good many years ago we were opening a piece of property in Revere, Mass., and in order to get certain extensions of sewers from the town we agreed to build fifty houses (in those days costing about $2,500 to $3,000 each), in return for the benefits we asked. The old chairman of the board of selectmen, a shrewd, hard-headed business man, said in effect:

"We don't want this class of people; we don't want $2500 houses; it costs this town nearly $30 a year to educate each child, and the more of such population we have the poorer we are."

I was not only surprised, but a little stupified. This point of view was iconoclastic—it attacked the idol "population," but it has some truth in it. New York can have entirely too many people who pay from $15 to $25 a month rent.

Our main problem, however, is how to carry a tremendous burden of taxation, which is destroying increment to a far greater extent than over-building or the moderate land speculation of the past ten years, and I fear this burden is destined to grow in proportion to the natural increase in population and industrial growth. Let us reason on this subject a little:

It is a fairly accepted standard that land values increase somewhat in proportion to population, affected, of course, more or less by the type of incoming people. In ten years our percentage of increase in population has been possibly forty. In ten years as nearly as can be judged, the actual tax burden on a given piece of property exceeds this figure. Now, whether value or increment is destroyed may be better determined by the question as to whether assessed values are now too high or were too low before; but, nevertheless, a loss is there, for every increase of one point of taxation destroys 5 per cent. of value, excluding increment.

If I thought the burden of taxes would remain the same or would increase less rapidly than the population, I might agree that New York's future, from a real estate point of view, was safe; but I cannot believe this to be true. The tendencies of the times are against it, and the pressure on all men in office is tremendous. We have so long been accused of placing the dollar above the man that we fail to realize that it is possible from the point of view of the well-being of the city to place the man too high above the dollar.

We own property in some thirty-five cities in this country. Rents of store properties have remained the same, or slightly increased, and yet our net return from our properties in New York City is perhaps 25 per cent. lower than in any city in the country, and at least 20 per cent. lower than they were six or eight years ago. If this result has not been brought about by vacancies or reductions in rents it must have been caused by increase in taxation and the increased regulations of the Building Department.

I consider a 2 per cent. tax charge an excessive burden, and one that either destroys the ordinary measure of increment coming from an increase in population or forces rentals up until they drive business away. Either one of these two "horns of the dilemma" must be faced in New York City.

The suburbs of Boston, outside of Brookline, have had a tax burden of about 2 per cent. for nearly twenty years. Two weeks ago I sold a well located business plot for about one-half the price I could have gotten for it ten years ago; cause: tax burden exceeding increment. This tells the story of thousands of similar transactions about Boston.

In Pittsburgh the same kind of land has increased measurably with population; cause: a tax rate which has not placed on the property a burden sufficient to destroy the increment coming from a normal increase in population. One or even two swallows do not make a summer, but a flock of them indicates its approach, and I have a larger number of similar examples than you have space in which to put them.

I trust I will not leave the impression that all real estate in New York is to lose value. There will be tremendous transfers of population and business in the next few years, producing speculative centers of great importance. To say nothing of the suburbs, where the subway extensions will bring myriads of people, I think I could put my finger on spots on Manhattan Island where great increases will take place, or great recoveries from present depressed prices. We are, however, not dealing with the shifting of values, but with the general future of the city with respect to real estate.

Statistics have only a collateral value as an aid to accurate conclusions; sound judgment is the final arbiter of all the evidence and it is my matured opinion that New York City is passing through a crisis, with the chances against her full recovery, unless the charges and restrictions on real estate, on business and industrial enterprises are lessened.

My opinion may be wrong; nevertheless, the public is entitled to it, for one's best friend is he who has the courage to tell him the truth as he sees it.

TITLE COMPANY'S REPORT.

The First Year in Which Profits Have Not Increased.

The annual report of the trustees of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company is this year the interesting document it usually is. It amounts to a review, from an inside vantage point, of the real estate market for the past year. Space at the moment will permit only a few quotations:

"This is the first year in our history in which our surplus and undivided profits have not increased. Since 1902 when our net earnings first passed the $1,000,000 mark, this is the first year that they have fallen below it. Since we commenced to pay dividends it is the first year that our earnings have not more than paid our dividend. The result is due to the fact that it was necessary to charge down our securities out of earnings by the sum of $474,994, in order that we might carry them on our books at their market value. Our business really earned $1,285,000, and but for this depreciation we should have added more than a quarter of a million to our undivided profits.

"So long as over-building continues it is difficult for the broker who has property to sell to make any very convincing proof of the desirability of its purchase. We are not among those who take an altogether gloomy view of the present condition in New York City real estate, nor do we believe that all real estate owners are dissatisfied with their holdings. We took in at foreclosure a few months ago two apartment houses in West Harlem. We did it with the feeling that a load had been shifted to our shoulders. After spending only a reasonable amount on necessary repairs and a little energy in finding tenants, we have today rented forty-seven out of forty-eight apartments and the income we receive considerably more than pays taxes, expenses and interest on our money. In view of the many sad stories about real estate investments, our experience has made us think that after all if you get into New York real estate at the right figure and take care of it, it will return as much or more than any equal investment that involves no greater risks.

"Our sales of mortgages for the year amount to $33,607,965 compared with $34,573,567 last year, a drop of less than three per cent. The total amount of mortgages recorded in the five boroughs shows a reduction from last year of more than eighteen per cent. The company's sales of mortgages used to exceed $70,000,000 a year and the falling off has been principally in the large mortgages. The institution lenders who took the large mortgages have retired from the market almost altogether."

West Eleventh street between Fifth and Sixth avenues is the prize block of Greenwich Village. This was the recent announcement of the Greenwich Branch of the Woman's Municipal League and is the result of a competition started by the branch last November. Since that time residents, tenants as well as property owners, have spent much time and thought as well as money to beautify their blocks, brightening them up with shrubs and potted plants, window boxes, etc.

REAL ESTATE NEWS OF THE WEEK

Brokerage Sales, Auctions, Foreclosure Suits Together With Other Current Realty Items

Astor Improvement in Bronx.

A large squad of men are at work on the big tract of land belonging to William Waldorf Astor on the north side of Westchester avenue, east of Clason Point road and west of Commonwealth avenue, Bronx. The marsh land is being drained, the sunken land filled in, and the hills leveled. The property is evidently being put in shape for possible improvement when the new subway extension to Pelham Bay Park is placed in operation. There will be a station at Clason Point road.

The tract lies between the Watson estate of the American Real Estate Company, and Unionport. It has no buildings on it except several shacks now being used by the contractors. East of the property there has been considerable building of small cottages, while to the south there are great stretches of land entirely unimproved. The new transit facilities will probably stimulate interest in the district and attract builders. At the office of William W. Astor, in West 26th street, it was said that no building was contemplated and that the land was simply being filled in.

Opposed to a Market Department.

A committee of the Real Estate Board appeared before the Board of Estimate yesterday in opposition to the bill to create a Department of Markets. Messrs. Joseph W. Mulligan, Joseph L. Buttenweiser, Robert R. Rainey, Victor E. McElhany, Louis Schrag and George R. Stege compose the board's committee on markets. Resolutions by the committee in opposition to the bill have been approved by the board of governors.

The bill creates a new department with a commissioner and inspection, information and standardizing bureaus, and would result, the board believes, in adding to the payroll of the City, thousands of new appointees as inspectors, officials, porters, etc., etc.

The board sees no valid reason for any change from the present administration of conducting the market affairs in this city, as they are already well taken care of by the Comptroller and Borough Presidents, together with the Health Department, the State Agricultural Department, the Pure Food Board of Washington, Custom House inspectors, etc.

"We see no valid reason, but insuperable objections to the City's extending its functions to private business rather than to limiting itself to well-recognized public utilities."

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

Although there was no substantial change in the condition of the real estate market, there were several developments which made it an interesting week. There was a moderate demand for residential properties, either dwellings for occupancy or multi-family houses for investment. Washington Heights apartment houses figured in a $1,000,000 exchange. Builders were active in the Bronx obtaining several plots available for improvement. A Boston investor who is heavily interested in city holdings acquired a desirable uptown property along the line of the Lexington avenue subway, evidently in anticipation of an increase in values as a result of the actual placing in operation of the road. While as an individual transaction it cannot be regarded as significant, it shows that there is out-of-town capital ready to be invested in well-located New York City real estate.

The announcement of the Pennsylvania Railroad that it had placed on the market its real estate holdings not required for the operation of its transportation system, aroused considerable interest. Most of these properties were acquired in connection with various building projects in which the company was interested and they have the advantage of being located in the immediate vicinity of such improvements.

The total number of sales reported and not recorded in Manhattan this week was 19, as against 19 last week and 20 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 7, as compared with 4 last week and 8 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 12, as compared with 15 last week and 12 a year ago.

The total number of conveyances in Manhattan was 123, as against 120 last week, 13 having stated considerations totaling $339,450. Mortgages recorded this week number 66, involving $778,545, as against 78 last week, totaling $1,148,171.

From the Bronx, 9 sales at private contract were recorded, as against 9 last week and 15 a year ago.

The amount involved in Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $860,150, compared with $1,027,835 last week, making a total for the year of $3,405,191. The figures for the corresponding week last year were, $809,335, and the total from Jan. 1, 1914, to Jan. 24, 1914, was $4,748,691.

Biographical Society in Deal.

The New York Genealogical and Biographical Society of 226 West 58th street has purchased 122 East 58th street, a four-story dwelling on lot 19x100.5, from Alexander Lambert and 124-126 East 58th street, two four-story dwellings, on plot 38x100.5, from Henry B. Anderson. On the newly acquired site, the Society expects to erect a new building to meet increased demands for space, as soon as sufficient funds are available. It was organized about forty-six years ago and has one of the largest biographical libraries in the country. The trustees are: Clarence Winthrop Bowen, president; William B. Osgood Field, first vice-president; William Isaac Walker, second vice-president; John Reynolds Totten, chairman executive committee; Abraham Hatfield, Jr., librarian; Henry Russell Drowne, secretary; Hopper Striker Mott, treasurer; George Austin Morrison, Jr., William Ross Proctor, Samuel Reading Bertron, Henry Pierson Gibson, Ellsworth Everett Dwight, Thomas Townsend Sherman, Walter Geer and Tobias Alexander Wright.

$1,000,000 Heights Exchange.

Lawrence, Leonard and Bartholomew Jacob have purchased from the Friedman Construction Company, Henry Friedman, president, the two six-story apartment houses at the southeast and northeast corners of Fort Washington avenue and 161st street, each on plot 150x100. They are known, respectively, as the "Ronda" and the "Chateau d'Armes." The properties were built last year by the seller on land acquired from Harris and Maurice Mandelbaum, who had bought from the Loyal L. Smith estate. In part payment, the Messrs. Jacob gave 924-926 Broadway, a five-story building, on plot 39.10x108, on the same block with the present store of Brooks Brothers. It is under lease to the Wakefield Rattan Company. The deal involved about $1,000,000. The broker was the Douglas Robinson-Charles S. Brewn Company.

Boston Investor Buys.

Frederick Ayer, of Boston, Mass., who is a large owner of real estate in Manhattan, has added to his holdings by the purchase from John Volz of the northwest corner of Lexington avenue and 86th street, three four and five-story flats, fronting 100.8 on the avenue and 90.6 in the street. Cash amounting to about $100,000 and free and clear property was given by Mr. Ayer for the corner in the deal which involved in the neighborhood of $400,000. A station of the new Lexington avenue subway will be located at 86th street and this fact makes it desirable for investment purposes. The brokers were Duff & Conger and Daniel Birdsall & Company.

H. A. Saks Buys Home.

Horace A. Saks, of the firm of Saks & Company, bought from Wolf Burland the five-story residence, 36 West 86th street, on lot 25x100. The seller acquired the property recently in a trade with Mrs. Clara S. Stanchfield, who gave it in part payment for the taxpayers at the southwest corner of Westchester avenue and 160th street. Mrs. Stanchfield bought the house about five years ago for a reported price of $80,000 and later spent about $20,000 on various improvements. Mr. Sak's present residence is at 60 East 73d street.

Guttenberg Race Track Sold.

A syndicate headed by James McMahon of North Bergen, N. J., has purchased from the Colonial Land Development Company the old Guttenberg Race Track property in Hudson County. The property consists of about seventy-one acres and is located on the west side of Bergenline avenue, extending from Robinson street to the Hudson boulevard, directly opposite the tract of 160 acres purchased by the Hudson County Park Commission as a site for a park. The new owners intend to develop the tract and cut it up into building plots.

New Bronx Apartment House.

J. and J. Realty Corporation, James Q. McCarthy, president, purchased through E. Osborne Smith the northeast corner of Walton avenue and 179th street, a lot 25x100, from the Hamilton Holding Company, Lowenfeld & Prager; also the plot 50x100 immediately adjoining from the United Real Estate & Trust Company. The combined plot will be improved with a seven-story elevator apartment house. It is directly in the rear of the "Morris Arms," a six-story elevator apartment house at Morris avenue and 179th street.

HUBERTH & HUBERTH have been appointed agents for 210 East 103d st, 85 East 113th st, 210 West 121st st and 256 West 143d st.

WILLIAM KENNELLY, JR., former president of the Hibson Company, will hereafter be associated with Bryan L. Kennelly, Inc.

DUFF & BROWN CO. were the brokers in the recently-recorded sale of 565 West 183d st, for Alexander Duff to Eliphalet L. Davis.

AMES & CO., INC., has appointed as manager of its brokerage department C. Maxwell Kaeppel, long identified with Ogden & Clarkson and formerly manager for Ernestus Gulick.

FREDERICK SOUTHACK & ALWYN BALL, JR., were the brokers in the recently-recorded sale of 477-481 Broome st, for the Millard F. Cornwell estate to Pasquale Marquarella.

STATEN ISLAND Chamber of Commerce has taken an office in the New Corn Exchange Bank Building, St. George, which will be opened on Feb. 1.

LEWIS H. MAY CO. has opened a branch office on Woodmere boulevard, adjoining the railroad, at Woodmere, L. I., under the direction of Harold Levy, for the general transaction of a real estate business.

DANIEL M. MACDONALD, who has just completed twenty-five years of service with the firm of L. Tanenbaum, Strauss & Co., Inc., was tendered a dinner at the Hotel Martinque by his office associates, on Saturday evening last.

J. IRVING WALSH was the broker in the recently recorded sale of 333 West 69th st, for the St. Johns Park Realty Co. to George H. Budke. Mr. Walsh has been appointed agent by Josephine A. Budke for 315-325 West 69th st and 649-651 West 184th st.

MARK RAFALSKY & CO., for many years at 527 5th av, announce that increased demands for space have necessitated their removal to larger quarters. On and after January 25, the firm will be located at 56 West 45th st, where the entire sixth floor has been taken.

WILLIAM TOD WILCOX, for many years, vice-president and during the last three years, president of S. Osgood Pell & Co., has severed his connection with that company, and will be associated with L'Ecluse, Washburn & Co. Mr. Wilcox will give his attention to country estate selling and leasing, which has been his specialty during the last 15 years.

A. V. AMY & CO. have been appointed agents for the three 5-sty apartment houses, 145-149 Lenox av; also for the 7-sty "Century" apartment house, at the northeast corner of Lenox av and 119th st (correcting an error in the Record and Guide of Jan. 2, 1914, which reported the location of this building at Lenox av., northwest corner of 117th st).

BURTON THOMPSON & CO. announce that the business heretofore conducted by Burton Thompson has been incorporated. The firm name is now Burton Thompson & Co., Inc. The officers of the corporation are, Burton Thompson, president; Warren Murdock, treasurer; Caryl Sayre, secretary; A. P. Nestor, manager city sales department. The company will transact a general real estate business, including special departments for mortgage loans and insurance.

DOUGLAS L. ELLIMAN & CO. gave the annual dinner to their office force on Friday evening, January 15, at the Maison Arthur, 5 East 45th st. It was announced that the year had been the most prosperous in their history, the earnings having increased over 50 per cent., and also that a profit-sharing plan had been worked out so that everyone in the office would share in the profits, as has been done by other firms, such as Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Co., Charles F. Noyes Co. and the M. Morgenthau, Jr., Co.

AUCTION SALES OF WEEK.

Except where otherwise stated, the properties offered were in foreclosure. Adjournments of legal sales to next week are noted under Advertised Legal Sales.

* Indicates that the property described was bid in for the plaintiff's account.

The Auction Market.

Choice properties were knocked down to plaintiffs in foreclosure sales this week. The one-time William B. Dinsmore property, at the northwest corner of Fifth avenue and 31st street, which was acquired by the Flemish Realty Company in a big trade last year, with the Dinsmore heirs, was sold to Max B. Warburg for $350,000. Claims against the Flemish Realty Company aggregated about $427,600. Paul M. Warburg, et al, as trustees, became the owners of the five buildings at 1959 to 1961 Madison avenue, northeast corner of 125th street, on a bid of $132,000 which was nearly $23,000 less than existing encumbrances. The eight dwellings near the grounds of New York University built several years ago by Richard M. Montgomery, with the idea of establishing a home community for professors, was sold to the Comity Mortgage Company for $75,500.

In the Gravesend section of Brooklyn along the line of the new Sea Beach subway the Jere Johnson, Jr., Company sold on Tuesday night sixty-nine lots for a total of $24,410. The highest price for a single lot was $600 paid by Howard Abel for a triangular parcel at the junction of 86th street, Avenue V and West 9th street.

MANAGING A CITY OFFICE BUILDING

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for The American Real Estate Co.

APPROXIMATELY a year ago this city opened the first broad gauge office building in the world. Its inauguration was featured by censure. Experts said that no city could attempt to house all its various departments and do it economically. Building managers shook their heads and said that there were problems involved in the management of such a building that would make it doubtful whether it would pay.

When asked this week whether in his opinion the building had proved itself a success, Marcus M. Marks, President of the Borough of Manhattan, who has supreme command over the management of the structure, said:

Building a Success.

"Success? Why this building is the greatest municipal department clearing house in the world! I have proved what I said when others predicted that it was doomed to failure. We have succeeded in running it quite as economically as any other public building of proportionate size here or elsewhere and we have solved building management problems that hitherto had never even been dreamed of. Not only have we succeeded in bringing down a good sized saving to the city in actual dollars and cents as the annual report soon to be made public will show, but we have accomplished even more. We have put the city in the way of serving its people better and we have made a great step forward in the conservation of the health of its great army of workers. They now have bright and light rooms to work in. In this alone the city has saved not only dollars and cents in the receipt of fuller value for wages paid, but on the grounds of efficiency in handling city business."

Some idea of the magnitude of the task handled by the Borough President and John C. Wolf, who is the detail man on the job at the Municipal building, may be gained by the mere statement that 35,000 persons enter and depart from the structure in a single business day. Catering to the comfort and convenience of these people are 225 employees of one sort or another all under the oversight of the Borough President, Mr. Wolf and a corps of two assistants.

There are 4,200 city employees in the building who pass in and out via the elevators four times a day, entering in the morning, leaving for luncheon, returning and departing at night. This leaves a total of about 18,000 persons to be conveyed by the elevators who have business to transact with the city.

Space Allotment.

The only semblance of a soft snap that either the President of the Borough or Mr. Wolf have is that the space allotment in the building is taken care of by the Sinking Fund Commission, but the pleasure of this possible surcease from trouble vanishes when it is discovered that both these men are now trying to unravel the space tangle created by the fact that in making their specifications for space some departments spoke for more than they needed while others did not speak for enough. This little problem is being happily straightened out now so that when all is finished there probably will be room for some other departments not now included within the convention of city departments at the Municipal Building.

It would take a volume to tell the story of how the Municipal Building is managed, but there are some details that go a long way in helping the imagination to grasp something of what it means to keep house for Father Knickerbocker.

It requires a squad of 135 men to nightly chase the dirt out of the building. Of this number only two are women. All work on an eight hour basis, but even so the Borough President has been able to bring the per square foot cost of cleaning down to a figure at or below those reported by managers of some other large building.s. Besides the cleaners there are men who make dirt, such as the carpenters, the electricians, the plumbers, firemen, engineers and plasterers. The personnel of the building staff is arranged with an idea to efficiency.

First comes the President of the Borough. Then comes his immediate staff in charge of John C. Wolf, a civil engineer. He has two assistants who compile records of the building and cost data. The mechanical side of the structure is taken care of by a practical mechanical engineer who has three assistant engineers, nine firemen and three oilers. The plumbing division consists of only one plumber, but as the building increases in age this department will be increased as the plumbing depreciates. The electrical supply department has a staff of men to take care of the annunciators, inter-phone system and the dictaphones.

Private Police Force.

There probably is not another office building in the world that has its own police force. There is a chief and a regular army of four uniformed men. These police officers are in uniform, one in each hall and two to patrol the building. Their chief duty is to keep a constant eye upon cranks or other dangerous persons who might seek entre into the offices of officials, solicitors, peddlers and venders of any kind. Besides they have to handle the crowds at the Coroner's offices and to lend a hand in preventing panics when accidents occur. On the first day and the middle of the month when the city employees are paid off and cash their checks at the Comptroller's office this police force is added to by officers detailed from police headquarters in view of the fact that there is a great sum of money distributed in that building every month.

When it comes down to actual management the efficiency of the operation of the Municipal Building is shown in the fact that the entire building can be emptied of practically every one of its 4,200 employees in 12½ minutes by elevators alone. This fact has been demonstrated repeatedly. If the stairs were used in the last ten floors this time might possibly be cut down considerably.

All the elevators are controlled by two dispatching boards located in the tower bases, one on each side of the cupola at the twnety-sixth floor. Two operators have full control of each elevator. They are, in effect, fulfilling the same duties that train despatchers do. They keep the cars on schedule so as to give the greatest possible accelleration commensurate with safety to the vertical traffic in the building. Even the elevator men work on a schedule on an eight hour basis.

Down in the fifth floor office of the building manager is one of the most complete office building directories imaginable. There are approximately 5,000 names in this catalogue. It is open to the use of the public, letter carriers and visitors who are in search of certain people whose department, however, is not known. In addition to the number of his room, his telephone number and the floor he or she is on, the directory also gives the employee's home address and the telephone number if there is a telephone in the building.

Time Card System.

There are some departments that work all night, but the entire building is policed twenty-four hours in the day. In addition to the day police force there is an extra force of watchmen who remain on duty all night. These men are all controlled by time cards and clocks just as in any other building, excepting that Mr. Wolf has developed a system whereby any laggard in the building's service is quickly detected.

When an employee gets to be habitually late his card shows it and it is taken from the rack and put upon the desk of the building manager. That man may be due to begin work at 5 A. M., but he is automatically suspended until he sees the manager who may not arrive until 9 o'clock. If conditions warrant it the manager may commute the forfeiture of time, but business is business down at New York's Departmental Clearing House and the habitual laggard gets the hook, sharp, sure and decisively.

Departments Under One Roof.

"Before this Municipal Building was erected," said the Borough President, "it was necessary for a citizen to pay four different carfares in order to obtain a permit to do certain things. All the departments of the city with which it was necessary for him to do business were scattered in many parts of the borough. Now he can transact all his business in one building and in comfort. That alone bespeaks the success of the Municipal Building. You cannot measure that sort of a success in dollars and cents, but we actually can show that the investment already has been economically profitable to the city."

The Mortgage Tax Bureau at the Register's Office.

This bureau collects the one-half of one per cent. mortgage tax, which is divided equally between the City and State. The bureau is under the supervision of the State Tax Commission.

The Register is liable for the faithful and diligent discharge of the duties of his office relative to the taxation of mortgages. One of his predecessors was lately held personally liable to the State of New York by the Court of Appeals in the sum of $20,033.50 for failure to collect a mortgage tax where it was due.

The Register is responsible for the net amount of money he collects. As the apportionment money has to remain in his possession for an indefinite time (till it is properly apportioned among the several counties entitled to a share, by the State Board of Tax Commissioners), and as the regular current mortgage tax receipts for any given month remain in his possession until paid to the City Chamberlain on the first of the following month the Register, as a matter of business, wants to get as much interest for the City as he can for the use of this money while it is in his hands. Yet, unlike the City Chamberlain, the Register is personally responsible for the money he collects. If a bank in which the Register deposits the money fails, he is held personally responsible.

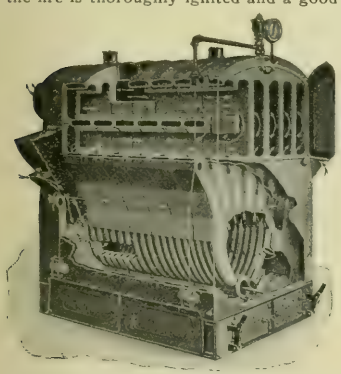
The cost of the office for salaries, supplies, etc., was	11,800.65

So that the bureau's expenses were paid out of the interest, and in addition, $9,424.69 of the interest over and above the net amount collected will be turned over to the City authorities.



USEFUL APPLIANCES

Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration

A Down Draft Cast Iron Boiler.

VARIOUS theories have been tried out in the attempt to achieve a one hundred per cent. efficiency boiler for steam, vapor and water heating. What appears to be a practical solution of the problem is found in a boiler being manufactured and put upon the market. The manufacturer makes the startling assertion that various grades of fuel can be burned in this furnace, from pea coal to the larger sizes of anthracite, except furnace coal. Soft coal may also be burned without changing the grates. In other words, the apartment house manager, by the use of this furnace, may use soft coal when hard coal is high and without expense and inconvenience, and change back to anthracite when the price is lowered. It may be used in all systems, including direct steam, indirect steam, direct and indirect water, overhead steam, or water, one or two pipe steam or water, vapor, vapor vacuum or vacuum.

The cut shows a sectional view of this heater, showing large heating surfaces, fire and water travel, water grate and combustion chamber. The furnace involves the application of a new method of firing. The fire is started in the usual way by putting kindling on the grate, and coal on top of the kindling, when the fire is thoroughly ignited and a good live bed of coals obtained, the magazine can be filled and the lower drafts closed, taking all air to support combustion through the regular draft doors at the top of the fire chamber. The fire pot at once becomes a gas producer, and a bed of incandescent fuel lays against the outer water sections and the water grate, which lays between the fire and combustion chamber, making an intensely hot flame, the burning gases filling the combustion chamber and the boiler flues.

The fires are controlled by means of dampers, it being unnecessary to bank the fire at night, as the dampers and automatic control will maintain an even temperature for long hours, and the magazine assures the house being heated when you rise in the morning, carrying an unvarying temperature, high or low, as required. The boiler requires only slight and infrequent attention by an unskilled person. No stoking or poking is required, only an occasional shaking of the grate. No clinkers are formed.

Ninety per cent. efficiency is claimed for this furnace in that the boiler has the ability to supply the desired heat, whether of steam or water system, with the smallest consumption of coal and with the least attention and operation.

Use of Lime in Mortar.

USE of lime as binding material for mortar originated in the remote past. It is probable that some savages when using limestone rocks to confine their fire noticed that the stones were changed by the action of the heat, says a report of the U. S. Geological Survey. A passing shower may have slaked the lime to a paste, and they discovered that the paste was smooth and sticky and was a better material than clay to fill the crevices in their crude dwellings. From this discovery it was only a step to add sand to the paste in order to produce a mortar.

Boiler Protection.

FEW persons realize that a boiler is more delicate than the human stomach, yet such is the fact, as far as the effect of water upon it is concerned. That which ordinarily is called pure and good drinking water, clear and palatable, does no marked injury to the human stomach, but that same water may easily ruin a boiler. All pure waters contain a certain amount of gas, vegetable and harmful mineral matter. Scientific experiments have proved that it takes heat as long to be transmitted through one-tenth (1-10) inch layer of grease or oil, or one inch coating of scale, as through a ten-inch plate of steel. The bearing this has on the coal question, and on the actual efficiency of boilers compared to their rated efficiency, is evident.

To realize just how positive is the danger of the thinnest coating of this grease on the heating surfaces in a boiler, it may easily require 650 degrees F. or more to penetrate it, and yet at 650 degrees F. the tensile strength of steel begins to disappear, and by the time the temperature has reached 1300 degrees F. this tensile strength has vanished altogether.

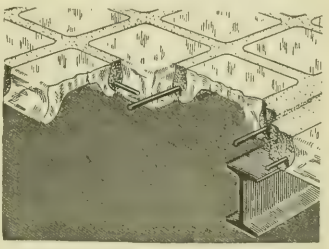
This briefly explains why boilers suddenly bulge and burst, even before the water is streaming in the boiler, and it makes simple the reason for tubes collapsing under low pressures. Having, then, briefly reviewed the two great and grave factors of dangers in all feed waters, let us take up in brief detail their real elemental dangers and the treatment necessary to overcome them.

Having shown that all natural waters contain more or less mineral waters contain matter in solution, the question is: Has it been determined by science that there are any particular elements in all natural waters which tend to produce scale; i. e., the hard, rock scale that cannot be blown or easily scraped out?

It has been proved beyond question of doubt that magnesium, carborate of lime, and sulphate of lime are the elements of danger and that the latter—sulphate of lime—is most dangerous of all, since the scale it produces is hardest of all and most difficult to remove.

The big question is how to eliminate these three elements—manganese, carbonate of lime, sulphate of lime; particularly the latter. The ideal method with a new boiler and the ideal method is to protect the heating surface.

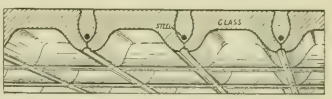
The action of magnesium, carbonate of lime and sulphate of lime must be neutralized. The corrosive tendencies of the gases must be overcome. The tendency of oil to sludge and skim the heating surfaces must be defeated. And whatever the combination of chemicals may be the formula must not contain hydrochloric acid as a base, as this "will not only remove scale, but also everything metallic with which it comes in contact; nor graphite, which acts as does hydrochloric acid; i. e., it corrodes the iron under the scale, freeing the scale from the metallic surface. In addition it must so treat the water as to absolutely prevent injury to any metal with which it may come in contact, such as valves, injectors, gaskets, etc.



Such a chemical combination has been discovered. In new boilers it will not only neutralize the limes, magnesium, silicates, etc., in the feed water, but will prevent oil or grease from cohering and settling in the form of sludge; and will at once form a thin skin over all heating surfaces, less than 1-128 of an inch thickness, of the same conductivity as the iron to which it has adhered, and it will absolutely prevent corrosion or pitting.

In old boilers it will gradually work through all cracks in the scale, ultimately removing it completely. It will counteract the action of oil by changing its physical condition to that of a fluid which readily circulates with the water and is, therefore, blown off.

Mechanical cleaning means only partial efficiency immediately following the cleaning and inefficiency between cleanings, and is only a subterfuge at best, for there are many places, particularly around couplings, the water-legs in water tube boilers, around braces, rivet heads, etc., which mechanical cleaners cannot reach. Incidentally hammering weakens the metal, injures baffles and tube ends and leaves the metal rough and more than ever attractive to scale forming deposits.



Latest Glass Construction.

IN the Dec. 5 issue, page 932, there were shown details of the Keppler glass construction, with a statement that the sections shown were used on the Chase National Bank in this city. This statement is in error, as the units shown are for use in fireproof windows and glass partitions. The units employed in the Chase National Bank under the direction of Messrs. Kimball & Roosa, architects, are vault or rooflight units.

These units have a large flat surface on top, are cement reinforced and, as the section indicates, have a larger glass area at the bottom than on top, making it possible, as in the Chase National Bank, to secure an all-glass under surface for roof, floor and vault light construction. In this way forty per cent. more light is said to be obtained than is possible under the old method of vault lighting and also a much better appearance from below is presented.

The first figure shows that the Keppler floor, roof and vault light constructions are composed of translucent glass units supported by reinforced concrete. They have a large glass area above and an all-glass under surface which admits and distributes the maximum light. The concrete framework, reinforced with rods, gives great support without cutting off the light. All parts are in stock, which makes possible quick and simple constuction. No special frames or castings are needed.

In the second cut a cross section of a Keppler floor light is shown, revealing reinforced construction and all-glass under surface. The concave sides of the glasses are painted white to secure total reflection of light rays striking the concrete ribs.

Dress Suit Case Fire Escape.

"SAFETY FIRST" has come to be the watchword of American industry, transportation and business, and now an ingenius inventor has even put it into the vocabulary of that carefree factor in the human race, the Commercial Traveler. That individual may now tuck away in his bag a complete fire escape that will not take up much room and at the same time give him easy and quick delivery from that constant menace, the midnight blaze. It is in the form of a steel ladder that folds up compactly, yet gives a substantial foot and hand hold so that a person may clamber down an incline or a precipitous side of a house in comfort. There are larger sizes that are suitable for hotel, tenement and apartment house rooms.

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

Herald Square's Latest Business Structure to Occupy Block Front and Contain Every Device for Comfort and Convenience

UNLESS all present signs fail, the new structure, which will occupy the block front in the west side of Broadway, between 35th and 36th streets, will be under construction by May 1, and the work will be pushed to completion. The owners of record are the Thirteen Thirty-Seven Broadway Corporation, William H. Barnum and William Everdell, Jr., and the site was acquired, last June, from Charles E. Johnson and others, the purchase price being reported as about $6,000,000.

Clinton & Russell, architects, 32 Nassau street, have prepared designs for a twelve-story fireproof mercantile building, of the most modern type of construction, the general contractors being the Thompson-Starrett Company, 49 Wall street.

The building construction will be of skeleton steel frame type, resting upon steel grillage and concrete foundations, the floor construction being of reinforced concrete. The three street fronts will be of Indiana limestone, from sidewalk to the third-story window sills, and, from there to the top, a rough texture buff brick will be used, relieved by limestone bands and other embelishishments. The general style, however, will be one of substantial simplicity, in keeping with the mercantile purpose of the building.

There will be three sets of elevators, comprising two for freight, five combination freight and passenger and two exclusively for passengers, making a total of nine elevators, all of which, excepting the two exclusively used for freight, will be high speed.

The first floor will be devoted to stores, all of which will have the maximum amount of show window space. The second story will also be left open and can be used for store purposes, as large windows on all the frontages have been provided. These are made specially for the display of goods. Above the second floor, all the floors will be left as open lofts, susceptible of such later sub-division as may be desired.

There will be four lines of broad fireproof stairs, enclosed in fireproof shafts, from top to bottom, and entered on each floor by fireproof doors; the whole construction complying in all respects with the latest fire protective requirements. Every floor will be provided with ample toilet accommodations for men and women. The best type of modern plumbing will be used. The toilet rooms will be finished in marble and tile and will be well ventilated and lighted.

The finished floors generally will be of cement, but those of the toilet rooms will be vitrified tile and of the first story stores, comb grain yellow pine. The windows of the three street fronts will be of pine, and those of the court and rear walls of hollow metal construction. The doors and trim of stair and elevator enclosures will be of heavy hollow metal construction with baked enamel finsh. All other doors and trim of oak. The basement will contain convenient sized rooms, to be rented with the first-story stores for the storage of goods.

The building will be heated from low-pressure boilers, located in the basement and completely protected by a standard sprinkler equipment. There will be ample provision for electric lighting throughout the premises, the current for light and power to be taken from the street service.

The plot has a frontage of 211 feet on Broadway, 207 feet in 35th street and 81 feet in 36th street, containing about 28,500 square feet, and is at present covered with several old buildings, including the Herald Square Theatre, all of which will be demolished on May 1, when the existing leases expire.

Messrs. Barnum & Everdell recently purchased the northwest corner of Madison avenue and 44th street, for improvement with a ten-story business building for Brooks Brothers, now located at Broadway and 22d street. Other important operations Barnum & Everdell have been connected with are the Longacre Building, which stands on the Astor property, at the northeast corner of Broadway and 42d street, the Underwriters Buildings, covering the Dutch Reformed Church leasehold, Nos. 123 to 133 William street, and the Schneider-Anderson Building, a twelve-story structure, at Nos. 16 to 18 West 46th street.

ARCHITECTURAL PRIZES.

To Be Awarded to House Owners By New York Chapter of Architects.

Annually New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects awards medals for the best designed tenement houses with the hope and expectation of encouraging owners to erect meritorious buildings that will enhance the good appearance of the city. The houses are judged not for interior plan, equipment or finish, but simply from the standpoint of the man in the street, the private citizen, who has a pride in the good looks of the city. Nor are they judged by what they cost, or by the expensive material used in their construction. If the owner has been able to get a really handsome facade by simple means, so much the better.

The prizes are divided into two classes. One is for houses of more than six stories, and the other class for houses of six stories or less. For each class there is one medal and two honorary mentions. The recipients of the prizes are to be the owners of the houses, as the individuals or corporations entitled to the most credit for giving the community buildings worthy to serve as examples of good design and construction.

The members of the committee in charge this year are Messrs. Walter B. Chambers, D. E. Waid, J. H. Freelander, Burt J. Fenner, Robert D. Kohn, Ernest Flagg and Egerton Swartwout. Robert W. de Forest, as president of the Municipal Art Commission, and Hon. John J. Murphy, as Commissioner of the Tenement House Department, act with the committee.

The awards will be announced as heretofore at the annual dinner of New York Chapter, which takes place in a few weeks. Last year no awards were made, as comparatively few apartments were erected. In the past, medals have been awarded, among others, to Francis L. Leland for erecting the Verona apartment house on Madison avenue, and to F. J. A. Clark for the house at 144 East 40th street. Honorable mentions have been awarded to the owners of the Hendric Hudson, the Britannia, in West 110th street, the house at 140 Wadsworth avenue, and to the owners of the Medford apartment houses, at Broadway, 163d and 164th streets.

Conference Concerning Fireproof Law.

The Building Code Committee of the Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests, consisting of Messrs. Henry W. Hodge, chairman, and Otto M. Eidlitz and Julius Franke, has examined Ordinance 1073 promulgated by the Board of Aldermen, which proposes to establish an intermediate zone between the fire limits and the frame building limits, in which zone it shall be required that buildings of certain classes shall be built of brick, whereas other buildings may be built of frame. The Advisory Council is of the opinion that this ordinance will be to the advantage of real estate people, and recommends its adoption. However, there has been some question raised as to whether the provisions of the law are just when applied to conditions in Queens. Appreciating this situation, the Advisory Council has arranged for a conference between the members of the Building Code Committee and those officials in the Borough of Queens who are particularly concerned with the framing of this ordinance.

As to Thickness of Walls.

The Committee on Buildings of the Board of Aldermen has under consideration a communication addressed to the Board of Aldermen from A. J. Waldron, chairman of a committee of the Brooklyn Board of Brokers, saying:

"In the interest of the three-family house particularly, but also in the interest of the two-family house, with either inner or outer court, I would ask your honorable body to take into very careful consideration the right to build a wall 60 feet in depth with 8-inch walls for a building not more than three stories in height.

"The demand for good light and airy rooms in either two or three-family houses is now the universal demand, and in order to get light rooms with suitable sized outer or inner courts, it is necessary to build a house at least 60 feet in depth and builders cannot afford to build these in two or three stories with 12-inch walls, and hope that you will see that we have a right to build an 8-inch wall 60 feet in depth in the new building code."

Carpenters' Complaint Dismissed.

The Public Service Commission dismissed the complaint of the Brotherhood of Carpenters against the Bradley Contracting Company, alleging a violation of the Labor Law in failure to pay the prevailing rate of wages to carpenters. The work involved was that of constructing and setting into position wooden forms for concrete construction. The Bradley Contracting Company was having this work done by a class of men known as "handy laborers," who were paid $2.50 per day. The carpenters claimed that it was carpenter work and should be done by men receiving carpenter's wages, or $5 per day. The same question was decided in 1913 by William C. Rogers, Acting Commissioner of Labor, who held that $2.50 per day was the prevailing rate of wages for this kind of work. The commission's decision followed that of the Acting Commissioner of Labor. At the same meeting the commission refused to adopt a motion to the effect that only one helper be allowed to each journeyman electrician engaged in city subway work. It was one of the complaints of the Electrical Workers' Union that electricians work in connection with subway construction was being performed by helpers and that the contractors would employ six or eight helpers to one journeyman electrician. While the commission indicated that this practice is an evasion of the law, it held that it had no power to specify the number of helpers to be allowed to each electrician, but it instructed its chief engineer to see that the spirit of the law be obeyed.

TYPICAL NEW APARTMENTS IN BROOKLYN

BROOKLYN is passing through the successive stages of building construction that have passed over Manhattan in years gone by, though modified by the new ideas which the intervening era has brought to the fore, and by the lower cost of land in Brooklyn.

Brooklyn architecture has always had an individuality which has distinguished it from contemporaneous work in Manhattan. Just now, Brooklyn, since the new subway system. Apartments rent for $45 and $50 through Noah Clark as agent.

Ever since it became assured that a spur of the Brooklyn subway system would be constructed under the Eastern Parkway building operations in and adjacent to the parkway have been gathering force. The height of the movement is, of course, some years off, but the improvements so far made have been considerable. That this great avenue domit has turned strongly to apartment house work, is developing particularly the non-elevator type, and is producing a very inviting and livable house. Ordinarily it covers more ground than its Manhattan relative, and most often it is only four or five stories high.

The house in the picture is at the southeast corner of New York avenue and Union street, adjacent to Eastern Parkway, in a section which is yet but sparsely settled, but which is well thought of and will be well served by inates what will be a great speculative field is apparent.

Although many private houses have been erected in the section in the past, especially on the north side, the later work has all been for apartment houses. Suites in the apartment houses which line the Eastern Parkway rent at the rate of $5 to $8 a room a month. These houses are all of the highest type, have all the latest improvements and even with present transit facilities are within convenient reach of Manhattan.

Cauldwell-Wingate Co. Awarded Contract.

The general contract for the construction of the Arcade building to be erected by the Standard Oil Co. at 50 Broadway has been awarded to Cauldwell-Wingate Co., 381 Fourth avenue. The plans were prepared by Severance & Van Allen, architects, 4 West 37th street.

Site for Long Island Post Office.

Contracts are reported signed by the Treasury Department for the purchase of the site at the northwest corner of Van Alst avenue between Ninth and Tenth streets, Long Island City, for a new post office to be erected there. The plot is 170x200 feet. Oscar Wenderoth, Washington, D. C., is supervising architect.

Building in Yonkers.

Plans filed for new buildings and alterations in Yonkers, N. Y., for 1914 totaled in cost $1,401,500, as against $4,262,800 for 1913. This decrease for 1914 would appear to be a serious blow to the hopes of the local builders who are optimistically looking for a busy year. The apparent decrease for 1914 can be traced, however, to the fact that many plans were prepared and filed during 1913, to evade the drastic measures of the new housing law. Many of these buildings were never erected and a number will, no doubt, be started during the current year.

Rumor of New Long Island Factory.

According to an announcement made on Friday, a manufacturing concern whose name is for the present withheld, contemplates the erection of a twelve-story fireproof factory building at Long Island City, fronting 150 feet on Jackson avenue and extending west 175 feet in Tenth street, which comprises approximately 25,000 square feet. The Everett Realty & Construction Company, Flatiron Building, Broadway and 23d street, represents the company who will erect the building.

New Factories for Paterson.

McClintic Marshall Co., 13-21 Park Row, Manhattan, have received the general contract for the construction of two factory buildings at East 37th street and Twenty-first avenue, Paterson, N. J., for the East Jersey Pipe Co., 50 Church street, Manhattan. The structures will be of brick, steel and corrugated iron, and will cover about 100,000 square feet of ground. The estimated cost of construction will be in the neighborhood of $100,000.

Staten Island Parochial School.

Frederick L. Metcalf, architect, 143 North avenue, Plainfield, N. J., is at work on plans and specifications for a parochial school to be erected at West New Brighton, S. I., by the Church of the Sacred Heart, Rev. W. C. Poole, pastor. The structure will be of brick with limestone and terra-cotta trimmings and will be two stories in height on a plot 130x190 feet. Construction will be fireproof throughout. Accommodations will be provided for about 600 pupils. The cost of the operation is estimated at $100,000.

Loft for Brooklyn's Business Center.

Plans have been completed by Parfitt Bros., architects, 26 Court street, Brooklyn, for a seven-story store and loft building to be erected in Brooklyn on part of the site of the old Central Branch of the Y. M. C. A. The new structure will have frontages in three thoroughfares—Fulton and Bond streets and Hanover place. The building will be of brick and reinforced concrete and will be owned and occupied by Jason S. Bailey, 615 Washington street, Boston, Mass., who operates a chain of 5 and 10-cent stores. The structure will cost over $100,000.

New Fifth Avenue Office Building.

Warren & Wetmore, architects, 16 East 47th street, are preparing the plans and specifications for an eleven-story store and office building to be erected at the northeast corner of Fifth avenue and 37th street. The owner of the proposed building is the Murray Hill Investing Company, care of Olney & Comstock, attorneys, 68 William street. The building will complete the improvement of the block on the east side of Fifth avenue between 37th and 38th streets, and in design will harmonize with the other structures on the block. It will cover a plot 74.1 feet on Fifth avenue and will be 125 feet deep. The facades will be of brick and ornamental terra-cotta, designed in the style of a modified French Renaissance. The cost of the improvement is estimated to be in the neighborhood of $800,000.

NO ARCHITECTS SELECTED.

In this department is published advance information regarding building projects where architects have not as yet been selected.

MANHATTAN.—J. &. J. Realty Corporation, James Q. McCarthy, care of E. Osborne Smith, Jerome and Burnside avs, contemplates the erection of a 7-sty apartment at the northeast corner of Walton av and 179th st. No architect retained.

BRONX.—A client of E. Osborne Smith, Jerome and Burnside avs, contemplates the erection of a brick and stone taxpayer on the east side of Jerome av, 100 ft. south of 175th st. No architect selected.

LANCASTER, N. Y.—The Village of Lancaster, Frank A. Schaefer, president, contemplates the erection of a village hall, to include lockup, council chambers and police court. No architect selected.

ILION, N. Y.—St. Augustine Episcopal Church, Rev. Lloyd R. Benson, 7 West North st, Ilion, pastor, contemplates the erection of a brick and stone parish house at 2d st and 1st av. Work will be started this spring. No architect selected.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—The City of Buffalo, Louis P. Fuhrman, mayor, contemplates the erection of a fireproof brick municipal building on the site of the present municipal building. No architect selected. No appropriation has been made.

JERSEY CITY, N. J.—The Zerman Construction Co., 582 Newark av, contemplates the erection of an apartment at Glenwood av and Boulevard. No architect selected.

UTICA, N. Y.—The Utica Board of Education, Frank R. Winant, president, contemplates the erection of a grade school here, to cost about $140,000. No architect selected.

LARCHMONT, N. Y.—Thos. Mandeville, Boston rd, contemplates the erection of a 2-sty garage and apartments, 50x50 ft., on Boston rd. No architect selected.

PLANS FIGURING.

APARTMENTS FLATS AND TENEMENTS.

WEST HOBOKEN, N. J.—Leo Feinen, 3697 Boulevard, Jersey City, N. J., has completed plans for five 4-sty apartments in Courtlandt st, between Clinton and Palisade avs, for the National Building Co., Chas. N. Gardner, 74 West st, West Hoboken, president. Total cost, about $70,000. The owner is taking bids on all sub-contracts and materials.

CHURCHES.

MANHATTAN.—The John J. Hearn Construction Co., 69 West 46th st, desires sub bids for the synagogue at 24-28 West 114th st for the Congregation Kol Israel Anshi Poland. Sommerfeld & Steckler, 31 Union sq, architects. Cost, about $75,000.

RIDGEFIELD PARK, N. J.—The John J. Hearn Construction Co., 69 West 46th st, Manhattan, desires sub bids for the school and church building for St. Francis R. C. Church, Rev. J. M. McDonald, rector. Fred J. Schwartz, Paterson, N. J., architect. Cost, about $50,000.

DWELLINGS.

SCARSDALE, N. Y.—Plans are being figured for the 2½-sty frame and stucco residence, 23x53 ft., for A. S. Fedde, 55 Liberty st, Manhattan. Slee & Bryson, 154 Montague st, Brooklyn, architects. Cost, about $8,000.

LONG ISLAND CITY.—Ignatz Wohl, 1221 3d av, Manhattan, owner, is taking bids on general contract for a 2-sty residence and private garage on the east side of 12th av, 175 ft. north of Vandeventer av, from plans by Frank Braun, 585 9th av, Long Island City. Cost, about $15,000.

FACTORIES AND WAREHOUSES.

MANHATTAN.—Bids on sub contracts are desired by the John J. Hearn Construction Co., 69 West 46th st, for alterations to the factory southeast corner of 54th st and 2d av for the United Cigar Manufacturers' Co. Sommerfeld & Steckler, 31 Union sq, architects. Cost, about $20,000.

HALLS AND CLUBS.

BRONX.—Plans are being figured for the 4-sty Y. M. C. A. building at the southwest corner of Washington av and 161st st, for the Y. M. C. A. of the Bronx, 215 West 23d st. Louis E. Jallade, 37 Liberty st, architect. Weiskopf & Burroughs, 68 William st, steel engineers. Cost, about $225,000.

HOSPITALS AND ASYLUMS.

MANHATTAN.—Sub bids are desired by the John J. Hearn Construction Co., 69 West 46th st, for the 4-sty addition to the hospital at the southeast corner of 150th st and St. Nicholas av for the Audubon Sanitarium, Dr. H. W. Lloyd. George J. Hardway, 347 5th av, architect. Cost, about $18,000.

MUNICIPAL WORK.

MANHATTAN.—The John J. Hearn Construction Co., 69 West 46th st, desires sub bids for the city prison addition to warden's quarters at the tombs for the City of New York. F. B. & A. Ware, 1170 Broadway, architects. Cost, about $15,000.

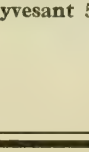
Prominent Builders Endorse



Central Station supply, the service of hard tests. Under conditions most exacting, it has demonstrated repeatedly its superiority over any private plant arrangement. Not only are the hundred benefits of Edison Service entirely absent in the private plant system, but the corresponding disadvantages of the building plant disappear on the adoption of street service

Don't learn the fine points of the "Light and Power Issue" from distressing experience. Let Edison Service suggest, by contrast, the waste and unreliability you have fortunately avoided. Phone or write us for an estimate covering your particular requirements

JOHN VAN DAM, a prominent mason and general contractor, died of heart disease after a brief illness at his home, 175 North Main st, Paterson, N. J., Tuesday, January 12. Mr. Van Dam was born in Holland sixty-five years ago and had been in this country since he was nineteen years of age. He is survived by two sons and four daughters.

HENRY CLARK BISSELL, for more than twenty years connected with the Habirshaw Wire Company in an executive capacity, died at his home, 15 Dudley pl, Yonkers, after an illness of less than a week. Mr. Bissell was stricken with pneumonia last Friday, the day after the death of his wife, Mrs. Margaretta Prime Bissell. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. H. B. Ogilby, of Yonkers.

DAVENANT RODGER, well known civil engineer, died of pneumonia, Tuesday, January 19, at the home of his friend, Dr. K. F. Junor, 458 East 29th st, Brooklyn. Mr. Rodger was born in Canada sixty-two years ago. He was connected with the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railroad and the Cape Cod Canal and had been engaged in extensive work in the construction of the Croton aqueduct. He is survived by his brother, a merchant of Montreal.

PERSONAL AND TRADE NOTES.

THOMAS W. GOLDING, consulting structural engineer, has moved his offices to 25 West 42d st.

HARRY McNALLY BUILDING CO., formerly at 5 East 42d st, has moved its offices to 1974 Broadway.

LEWIS O. BREWSTER was recently appointed general manager of the New York Insulated Wire Co., 114 Liberty st.

HENRY GOLDMARK and C. J. GOLDMARK, have opened offices at 103 Park av, where they will practice as consulting engineers.

LOTH & WHITE, architects, have recently opened offices for the practice of their profession at 130 State st, Albany, N. Y.

JOSEPH T. RYERSON & SON, of Chicago, have offered a prize of $100 for the best name to cover a line to tool steels which they are selling.

DANIEL F. FULTON, city engineer of Yonkers, N. Y., has recovered from the effects of his recent automobile accident and has resumed his official duties.

FREDERICK C. NOBLE, civil engineer, member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, has opened an office for the practice of his profession at 50 Church st.

ARTHUR H. DIAMANT, formerly construction engineer of Canavan Bros. Co., has been made president and managing engineer of the Excavation & Foundation Co., Inc., New York City.

GENERAL THEODORE A. BINGHAM, consulting engineer to the Department of Bridges, and Leon S. Moiseff, assistant consulting engineer, will sever their connections with the department February 1.

STATE ARCHITECT LEWIS F. PILCHER has made recommendation that the State erect an eleven-story office building in Albany to house State departments which now have to rent quarters outside of the capitol.

M. B. TOCH, who has a large acquaintance among architects and builders, and formerly with the Traitel Marble Co., of Long Island City, is now associated with the Consolidated Metal Fireproofing Co., 414-420 East 125th st.

N. I. MATHER AND CAREY M. CARLTON, architects, have formed a partnership for the joint practice of their profession, with offices at 770 O'Neil Building, Binghamton, N. Y. The firm will be known in future as Mather & Carlton.

CHARLES HERBERT McCLARE, A. I. A., AND FREDERICK S. BOYD, S. B., architects, have formed a partnership for the joint practice of their profession under the name of McClare & Boyd, 649 Massachusetts av, Cambridge, Mass.

THE KERR TURBINE COMPANY, of Wellsville, N. Y., has announced that its New York office is now in charge of Benjamin G. Fernald as district manager. Its office remains in the Singer Building, but has been removed to the Annex at 95 Liberty street.

WILBUR S. KNOWLES, a prominent Manhattan architect, was seriously injured near his home, 640 Park av, East Orange, N. J., when struck by an automobile Tuesday, January 19. Mr. Knowles has sustained a possible fracture of the skull and is injured internally.

THE CITY PLAN COMMISSION OF NEWARK has been requested by the National Conference on City Planning to supply information concerning the size of home building sites in Newark as part of the data being collected in the attempt to solve the problem of tenement house congestion in the big cities of the country. In Newark the average city lot is 25x100 feet and in the Oranges 50x100.

H. H. ROGERS, one of the directors of the Standard Oil Company, is having a new residence erected at Southampton, and one of its most attractive architectural features will be the roofing, which will be red clay tile made to order especially for this job. The surface of the tile has a rough, uneven effect to conform with the old mission style of architecture of the structure. This contract was secured by the Atlas Roofing Company of Newburgh through the architect having seen the roof on Robert Goelet's residence at Glenmere Lake, Florida, N. Y., which was put on by this company several years ago and presents a very pleasing appearance, and is the only roof of the sort in this country.

BUCKINGHAM STEEL CO., INC., has moved its offices from 50 Church st to 25 West 42d st. Mr. Kaufman and Mr. De Motte have retired from the company, and their interests have been acquired by Charles E. Marlor and Thomas W. Golding. The operations of the company are now under the direction of Walter E. Buckingham, president; Charles E. Marlor, secretary and treasurer, and Thomas W. Golding, engineer. Mr. Marlor was for many years connected with the firm of Milliken Bros., as general superintendent and for the last four years was general manager of the Central Foundries Co. Mr. Golding was also formerly connected with Milliken Bros., and recently was assistant engineer of the Board of Education of New York City. He will have supervision of design and construction.

TRADE AND TECHNICAL SOCIETY EVENTS.

INTERSTATE MANTLE & TILE DEALERS' ASSOCIATION will hold its twelfth annual convention in Baltimore, Md., February 9 to 11, inclusive.

NATIONAL BUILDERS' SUPPLY ASSOCIATION.—The annual convention will be held in Chicago, Ill., February 8-9, 1915. Headquarters at Hotel Sherman.

ASSOCIATION OF MASTER PLUMBERS OF NEW YORK, Manhattan branch, will hold a barn dance at the Lexington Assembly Rooms, Wednesday evening, February 3.

ARCHITECTURAL LEAGUE OF NEW YORK will hold its annual exhibition in the Fine Arts Building, 215 West 57th st, February 7 to 27. The annual dinner of the league will be held Friday evening, February 5.

THE AMERICAN ROAD BUILDERS' ASSOCIATION will hold a joint meeting with the American Highway Association at some time during the Panama-Pacific Exposition. The meeting will be held either in San Francisco or Oakland. Committees have been formed and details are now under consideration.

ARCHITECTURAL LEAGUE OF NEW YORK held its regular monthly meeting at 215 West 57th st, January 19, at which Professor Howard Crosby Butler of Princeton University delivered an address upon his work during the past five years in excavating the Temple of Artemis at Sardis, Asia Minor. The address was illustrated by stereopticon views.

THE EFFICIENCY SOCIETY, INC., will hold its annual meeting at the Hotel Biltmore, Monday, January 25. The business meeting for election of officers will be held in the morning. For the afternoon a conference is scheduled on "Welfare and Unemployment." A banquet is to be held in the evening with addresses on the work of the United Stats Navy.

NATIONAL LIME MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION.—The annual meeting will be held in Washington, D. C. Feb. 3-4, at the New Willard Hotel. One of the objects it is desired to accomplish is to convert the Treasury Department to the use of lime in the concrete of public buildings. The Secretary is Frederick K. Irvine, Chicago, Ill.

NEW YORK SOCIETY OF ARCHITECTS.—The regular monthly meeting of the society was held at the United Engineering Society's Building, 29 West 39th st, Manhattan, Tuesday evening, January 19th. Among the matters discussed was the Registration bill for architects now pending at Albany, the passage of which is earnestly advocated by the society in the interest of the profession and the general public. The proposed exclusion of three-family houses from the operation of the Tenement House Law also came up for discussion, and the society's Committee on Tenements was instructed to confer with the Investigating Committee of the Council of Real Estate Interests with a view to favorably influence the action of the latter in this matter.

Libman Co. Receiving Bids.

The Libman Contracting Company is receiving estimates from general contractors and builders for the erection and completion of Public School No. 55, located at south side of St. Pauls place, between Washington and Park avenues, Bronx. A detailed schedule of the operation can be had upon application to the F. W. Dodge Company, showing contracts awarded, amounts and volume of material at present on the operation. The plot has been fully excavated, and footings are all installed; first payment under the terms of the contract has been approved and certified by the Department of Education, and immediate possession could be taken of the premises. Steel is already fabricated, limestone cut and terra cotta details approved. A separate estimate will be received by the Libman Contracting Company for the value of the plant and equipment now upon the said premises.

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

GENERAL STRENGTHENING TONE OF THE MARKET NOTED AS CONSTRUCTION SEASON APPROACHES—PRICE TREND UP

Suburban Requirements Approach Normal—Gynbco's Annual Meeting

WITH the opening of the building season only six week off, the material market displayed more strength this week on inquiry. Specifications to manufacturers from wholesalers are comparing favorably with those in January a year ago, indicating that dealers expect a fair volume of first quarter business. Second quarter business is decidedly better. Some of the largest distributors are in the market for normal spring supplies and much of the early winter hesitancy is disappearing.

Continued mild weather helped the consumption of common brick. But it also permitted Haverstraw brick to come in. Prices advanced, however, as the cold spell approached. Cement plants are undergoing their annual repairs and have either curtailed outputs or have suspended temporarily. Lime manufacturers are also getting ready for spring business. Agents say some are putting in larger capacity.

Lumber is being held at prices nearer list. The meagre cutting made necessary by light snow falls is having its effect upon the supply.

Structural steel is steady at 1.21c. and 1.26c., tidewater. Pig iron is also reported to be firmer. Equipment companies have been showing more interest in second quarter deliveries.

New levels have been reached in linseed oil. It has been half a year since this commodity has reached 60 cents, where it now is. It is not expected to go higher. The Duluth market has eased off practically two cents. Paint interests, however, apparently are not taking any chances. Local distributors declare that the demand is still good. The supply here is not heavy. Coal is in weak demand. Mines are operating under restricted output. A change is expected now that colder weather has set in.

Some suburban retailers see indications of a continuation of industrial building expansion. Development companies are also showing signs of activity. This is taken as an indication of general easing of money. Speculative interests are usually about the last to obtain financial backing, following a depression, and only the strongest are making their plans. The scope of the preparations are being made by interests owning Newark, Jersey City, Elmora, Plainfield and Westfield acreages indicates that the New Jersey demand for building material will be at least keen. Westchester development operations are still quiet, but Queens activity is beginning to be felt in inquiries for second quarter and midsummer deliveries. There is marked improvement in the burned clay building material inquiry in that quarter, according to the largest manufacturers of this kind of building material.

Following is the week's new building plan filings. In the corresponding week last year 148 new building plans were filed with an estimated value of $2,073,945.

	Week ending, Jan. 15.		Jan. 22.

PORTLAND CEMENT.

Prices Unchanged, But Manufacturers Are Making Repairs.

PRACTICALLY every cement plant is undergoing repairs in the Lehigh and Hudson district. It is significant, however, that this year the repairs are on a somewhat more elaborate scale than heretofore, indicating that manufacturers in the East at least are laying plans for a general improvement in business.

Discussing the situation in the eastern market this week a leading manager said:

"Here and there I find real evidence of a change in the general trend of business. Inquiry is better, the Ingersoll-Rand and similar companies are taking some big orders, the railroads are coming out with held back construction work and collections are better. This is being reflected in Portland cement. The seventy-five cent valley basis still holds, and there does not seem to be any disposition to change it. It is the logical outcome of a restricted market and a disposition on the part of manufacturers to clear as much as possible before the spring demand develops.

"Personally I look for much better things. Export business is increasing, we have weathered the shock of the war, our financial markets are open again and the mortgage market here and elsewhere throughout the country is much easier. We are operating our plant to full capacity, but for the moment we have curtailed to make repairs, as is customary at this time of the year. We are planning for an increasing volume of business this year."

WINDOW GLASS.

Production Curtailed, Although Manufacturers Are Looking to Foreing Trade.

ACCORDING to advices received throughout the country from glass interests of all kinds, domestic business in eastern territory is still exceptionally dull, and there is no immediate prospect of much increase in output. One leading importing and jobbing house says its trade has fallen off since August 1 about one-third. Another equally good establishment gives its output for 1914 as less by two-thirds than normal. Just now buyers are more interested in taking and calculating inventory than buying glass.

A feature of much of the foreign business is that it is wanted in stock sheets, that for window glass, 100 sq. ft. to case, as put up usually in Belgium and England against 50 sq. ft. here. For the British Isles they want it in cases of 300 sq. ft. for single thick, and 200 sq. ft. double thick, from which they cut to suit instead of our method of cutting and shipping many stock sizes from the factories, ready for consumption.

Current prices for window glass in the local market is 90-10 to 90-15 per cent. for single thick and 90-15 to 90-20 per cent. discount for double thick, from jobbers' list.

LIME.

Big Companies Holding to List Under Keen Competition.

WHILE the general lime market has maintained a fairly steady position in this market there has been some shading by smaller companies. The larger companies are holding steadily at the list price, however.

The sales manager of a big manufacturing company said:

"The lime market in general is picking up. We believe that even this unsettled condition in the price situation is temporary. Competition has been keen. There is likely to be a reaction at this time of the year, but I am convinced that this time the recovery will be prompt in coming because of generally improving conditions in the building and construction situation."

LAWRENCE STOCKHOLDERS TO MEET.

Special Trip to Siegfried, Pa., to Inspect Plant.

STOCKHOLDERS of the Lawrence Portland Cement Co., of 1 Broadway, and of Siegfried, Pa., Ernest R. Ackerman, president, will meet on Wednesday, January 27. A special train has been arranged to convey those coming from Eastern New Jersey and New York to the plant. The ferry connecting with this train will leave the foot of West 23d street at 8.35 in the morning, and from Liberty street at 8.45 o'clock. The train will arrive at Siegfried at 11.30 o'clock. It will leave on the return trip at 5.30 o'clock, arriving at Liberty street at 8.07 in the evening.

GNYBCO'S ANNUAL MEETING.

Question of Policy Vested in Committee of Seven.

AT the annual meeting of the Greater New York Brick Company, held on Tuesday, at 103 Park avenue, the old officers and old board were re-elected as follows: John B. Rose, president; A. E. Aldrich, vice-president; Frank DeNoyelles, secretary, and Robert Main, treasurer. The return of Philip Goldrick to the board restores it to its full membership. A committee of seven was appointed by President Rose to establish a new policy for the company, the board agreeing to abide by the recommendations of this committee.

The review of the brick situation for 1914 showed a good year, considering the curtailment in building construction during the last five months. President Rose outlined the prospects for 1915, which, he said, tended toward normal.

MECHANICS AND TRADERS BANQUET.

Brooklyn Dealers Have Fourteenth Annual Get-To-gether Feast.

WHEN it comes down to the art of making business rivals fraternize, M. N. Canda, G. W. Anderson and Daniel J. Morrison carry their own commercial enterprise and ingenuity into the realms of pleasure for others and get away with it. That is why the fourteenth annual banquet of the Mechanics and Traders' Exchange, in Brooklyn, Thursday night, took a frontispiece in the history of Goodfellowship Among Brooklyn Building Material Distributors and will long serve as a precedent for other committees to follow.

That was, in brief, the essence of the remarks of President J. T. Castle when he addressed the two hundred guests before the real party began, but the volume of applause and cheering that greeted his expression of gratitude gave evidence that every person there had for some time been merely waiting to give utterance to similar sentiments.

The Imperial banquet hall never harbored a more jovial assemblage. There were entertainers galore who demonstrated that "Made in America" voices at least had a competitor's chance with those "Made in Germany" or raised in Milan, but, aside from the oratory of President Castle, whose speech occupied just two and five-tenths minutes by the clock, which immediately thereafter was turned to the wall; the stentorian tones of the spellbinder were made conspicuous by their absence. The rising vote of appreciation given by the guests put a final peace tax stamp upon the note of harmony engendered by the get-together idea.

COMMON BRICK.

Prices Advance—Supply Low—Unloading More Active.

COMMON brick moved up early this week from $5@5.25 per M. wholesale to $5.75 to $6. Incidentally the unloading from barges to job was the heaviest full week this year, the total being 2,077,000. Cold weather and a gradual revival of building were factors in bringing about the advance. When the week opened there were only two open barges left on the market. When it closed there were 6 open barges left and 44 on the covered list, making a total of 60 barge loads, or 21,000,000 brick. Gnybco reported yesterday that it had only two open barges in the basin and these had been spoken for. They were quoting today and will continue to quote only covered brick. It was predicted by one agent that before the week ends, providing there is favorable building weather, the price for good covered brick will go as high as $6.25.

Raritan brick stiffened at prices running from $5.75 to $6. At the banquet of the Brooklyn dealers on Thursday night the statement was freely made by large and small distributors that a more liberal inquiry had developed within the last ten days than at any time since October.

Official transactions for Hudson River brick covering the week ending Thursday, Jan. 21, in the wholesale market, with comparison for the corresponding period last year, and a comparative statement of Hudson brick unloaded from barges for consumption here, follows:

REAL ESTATE RECORD AND BUILDERS GUIDE.

"BUILD NOW" MOVEMENT FAIRLY LAUNCHED

Inside Trend of the Times Demonstrated to Prominent Eastern Builders by Trip, This Week, to Siegfried, Pa.

BIG men are not the ones who are talking pessimistically to-day. It is the small fry who are holding back, afraid, and, like many small things, they make the most noise. Men who think out vast commercial campaigns, captains of industry, masters of finance, men of analytical minds upon whose judgment of conditions depends the welfare of great industries, the stability of business and the country's general weal to-day are weaving a web that is destined in the course of a short time to reveal to the timid that they have been caught napping.

Here and there bubble forth evidences of this undercurrent of big business. Projections like that $2,500,000 building for printers and publishers that is going to replace the old Hager warehouse on Eighth avenue, are wisps that show what leaders are doing. Men like Archibald D. Russell know what is going on. Big corporations like the New York Central Railroad and the Central Railroad of New Jersey do not announce their plans before maturity, and about all the public knows of the optimism men in high places have is when announcement is made that another million-dollar market terminal building is to be erected in a part of the city remote from the spot where the small fry believe things are most likely to develop. The faith that the Central Railroad of New Jersey has in the betterment of conditions is not heralded broadcast, and about all that mediocre business interests know of the impending influx of freight from a rapidly recovering nation is that the Central Railroad of New Jersey is prepared to take care of the business that the ordinary chap never imagined was on the way.

Getting the Business.

Men like Andrew J. Robinson, Paul Starrett, Charles T. Wills, Louis J. Horowitz, Thomas J. Steen, Walter Stabler, Frederick W. Snow, Ernest R. Ackerman, John B. Rose, T. Eckford Rhoades and John P. Kane do not herald that they see prosperity and better building conditions approaching. It is better business to let the other fellow find it out. When the big deals are consummated, one here, one there, and another over in East Jersey, the inconsequential investor or builder begins to realize, when too late, that he was not optimistic early enough to get the business.

This week some 250 men of the type cited spent the day out of the city. They were the guests of Ernest R. Ackerman, banker, railroad director and a captain of industry. Six Pullman cars conveyed the party to Siegfried, Pa., where the Lawrence Portland Cement Works are located, and where the annual meeting of the board of directors of this company is held. Instead of finding a plant closed down for repairs, they found it working full time. This company makes its repairs in Summer, when wolf packs are not so ravenous. Besides, it would not be good business to shut down now.

But this is what the big builders of New York and eastern New Jersey did find: Storage bins which had been teeming earlier in the season, especially immediately after the opening of the war in Europe and the resultant stoppage of financial and building activity everywhere, were noticeably depleted of finished cement. In the clinker bins, however, tremendous quantities of this half-made cement were held in storage. Cement in this state cannot depreciate. Every one of the giant kilns in the plant was working full time turning out more and more of this product.

WHY BUILD NOW?

Because—Money is easier.

Prices of Materials are low.

Manufacturers have low reserves.

There is a demand for construction.

Labor is plentiful and eager to work.

Big Men are Planning Construction work.

There is a growing need for Modern Buildings.

Plan filings show increasing activity in building.

Present construction helps to solve the unemployed problem.

Building Costs may be expected to increase as demand improves.

New York Real Estate will not be as cheap again in many years.

The answer was that Senator Ackerman, close in touch as he is with real estate, industrial and financial conditions of three States—New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania—was informed as to what was coming. He was making his plans accordingly. The pile of clinker in reserve is the answer. The other big men in the party saw it and smiled. They knew the Senator was right. Other men in the party have been doing the same. Only instead of stacking clinker they have been laying big plans quietly for the things that were on the way. They sounded the host of the day in the speeding Pullmans, on the way home. This is what he told them:

Investors Turning to Real Estate.

"As the financial situation grows more favorable, investors turn to real estate and naturally the most sought for is real estate improved with fireproof structures. Anticipating a heavy demand for cement when spring arrives, we have been running for the last month at our full capacity in the clinker making departments in order to have a large supply of seasoned clinker on hand when the activity of summer building calls for quantity and quick delivery.

"In New York City there is a distinct change in financial sentiment, and optimism is replacing pessimism in all industrial lines.

"In my opinion the prevailing low prices for building materials of all kinds such as tile, brick, lumber, etc., will soon have to give way to considerably higher quotations, since the time is near at hand when the investor, with cash to build, will undoubtedly make his presence felt.

"We have learned by recent experience that all interests are inter-dependent and I, personally, feel very optimistic regarding the near future. There is a strong incentive among business men to pull together and with all of us pulling there can be but one result, and that result will be commercial success.

"My experience in the cement industry for over a third of a century and the fact that I am able to make first hand comparisons of the use of Portland cement in over one hundred countries, convinces me that in the near future the people in the United States are going to awake to the great possibilities of 'Concrete for Permanence.' The result will be a strong demand for the higher grades of cement that have been on the market for more than ten years and an era of great activity will soon be under way."

The big building construction and material men who went to Pennsylvania on Thursday might not have been able to quote statistics as reason for their optimism, but they could have pointed to new orders and instructions to go ahead with plans. But figures show that their belief in the future of the New York and New Jersey building situation is well founded.

Material Reserves Low.

If the finished cement bins at the plants are low, what of other lines? Manufacturers keep in touch with each other pretty closely. They know, through a hundred different channels, what their competitors are doing or are planning to do. Therefore it is not surprising that plaster and lime plants are not carrying large surplus supplies; that the brick sheds up the Hudson are about a third of a billion less full than they were last year; that the steel storehouses at Waverly, N. J., and elsewhere are not overstocked; that sand and gravel is being mined only on current demand; that slate, marble and other commodities are conservatively carried. These manufacturers are all advised most intimately of the current trend in New York construction, and they chuckle with glee when, even with prices down to bed rock, they know their competitors have nothing on them in the way of over-supply, as plan filings show a gain in volume and value over last year's figures, and real winter weather still holding aloof.

January closes with a total of $11,155,-395 in building operations now actually moving. Last January the net for New York was $9,428,792, and in the year before that January showed a total plan filings of $7,662,173. Add to this January's 10.7 per cent. of the $50,000,000 worth of construction held in abeyance at the first of the year that is now going ahead, and January, 1915, opens with an actual estimated gross value of live construction work of $16,546,695.

The big fellows are building now.

AQUEDUCT LAND EXEMPT FROM TAXATION

Upstate Townships Must Raise Their Revenues in Some Other Way—City of New York Wins a Notable Suit

THE Court of Appeals has just handed down a decision in the matter of the City of New York versus the Board of Assessors of the Town of Gardiner, Ulster County, holding that the aqueduct constructed by the City of New York, to convey the water from the Ashokan Reservoir, is exempt from taxation.

This decision affects the taxation in over twenty towns in the counties through which the aqueduct runs, and will mean a great saving to the taxpayers of the city; and it terminates a gross injustice, inasmuch as these various towns were assessing the improvements on the property, as well as the land itself, owned by the city, through which the aqueduct passes.

The Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests has been endeavoring to rectify the inequitable assessment of aqueduct property in the various counties of the State, for within recent years it has been the custom for many of the up-State towns to charge very high rates of taxation on this city aqueduct property, compared with the tax rate upon similarly situated land belonging to their local taxpayers.

For example, in the town of Southeast the assessment of the city aqueduct property was increased immediately after its acquisition by the City of New York from $100 an acre to $612, with a result that the City of New York, owning in that town in 1910 only 16½ per cent. of the total area of the town, most of it acreage property outside of the thriving village of Brewster, paid nevertheless 45 per cent. of the taxation of the entire town. The council has been represented in this matter by Mr. William P. Burr, former Assistant Corporation Counsel.

The Board of Assessors of the Town of Gardiner assessed this strip and parcel of land through which the aqueduct runs at $61,000, stating that in determining the value they considered the cost and value of the aqueduct, blow-off and buildings, and the uses for which they were designed, but did not fix a separate value upon either, but considered them with and as a part of the entire property, and fixed the value of the land accordingly. The assessors claimed that the provisions of the Greater New York Charter, Section 480, excluding aqueducts from taxation, had been repealed in effect by the General Tax Law of 1909 and by Chapter 742 of the Laws of 1905.

The city claimed this action of the assessors illegal.

At Special Term the action of the Board of Assessors was approved by the Supreme Court. The city took an appeal from that decision to the Appellate Division, and in September, 1913, the court set aside the decision of the lower court, holding that Section 480 of the Charter had not been repealed. By this decision just rendered the Court of Appeals affirmed this action of the Appellate Division.

Counsellor Burr says: "This decision is of great importance to the city. It makes certain that the aqueduct itself is exempt from taxation. It will, however, be necessary to have an act passed by the Legislature regulating the method of taxation of the lands acquired by the city for aqueduct purposes in the various cities and towns through which the aqueduct passes, to prevent the gross inequalities, utter disregard of values, and consequent injustice to the city resulting from the methods heretofore pursued by the different boards of assessors in placing their assessments against such lands."

Inasmuch as the real estate interests of the city are now benefited to this extent by being relieved of the burden of inequitable taxation on the aqueduct of the city, the council is endeavoring to co-operate with the city officials to procure legislation whereby it will be provided that all lands acquired for the purpose of water supply by any city shall be assessed and taxed at a valuation not higher than the valuation of similar lands in the immediate vicinity. An amendment to the general tax law of the State has already been proposed which will accomplish the desired end. On Friday Senator Mills introduced in the Senate a bill to relieve the city of this excessive taxation. At the present time it has not been uncommon for the various up-State towns to increase the assessment of the land itself after acquisition of it by the city to rates which are wholly inequitable and exorbitant compared to the assessment of property owned by local taxpayers. This particular reform in taxation has been occupying the attention of the United Real Estate Owners' Associations for some time, and the Advisory Council is co-operating with this association in its efforts to rectify the evils.

DINNER OF THE "MECHANICS AND TRADERS"

THESE MEN SELL $15,000,000 WORTH OF BUILDING MATERIALS A YEAR IN BROOKLYN.

ECHOES of the fourteenth annual dinner of the Mechanics' and Traders' Exchange, held in Brooklyn recently, are still being heard. Practically all of the men who were present at that gathering are reporting an improved volume of business, indicating that building construction throughout the district is on a better plane. The organization, composed of men who are leaders in building construction of material interests in Brooklyn as well as New York, organized the exchange fifty years ago, and in that time it has enjoyed considerable prestige as a factor in the building movement. The dinner was arranged by M. M. Canda, chairman; George M. Anderson and D. J. Morrison. The officers of the organization are Walter L. Castle, president; W. C. Williams, vice-president; J. J. Dalton, treasurer, and P. J. Morrison, secretary.

Those present were George W. Anderson, C. E. Anselm, J. Andrus, A. C. Ackerman, Frank Adams, C. A. Brislin, Rufus H. Brown, L. Bronk, Hess Brown, M. Bradley, Andrew Brislin, John Brislin, W. Bartlett, W. W. Bale, Fred L. Bulck, Allen E. Beals, G. C. Behling, George H. Boyce, W. L. Castle, Audley Clarke, I. W. Comes, George Cranford, William Cranford, Clarence Cooper, Thomas Cummings, J. MORE QUESTIONS FOR CORPORATIONS

The Government Wants More Information About Incomes—A Depreciation Charge Against Property Must Represent Actual Loss

CORPORATIONS, other than insurance companies, are required to answer a new set of questions this year when making out their return of net income to the U. S. Collector of Internal Revenue. All the interrogations in last year's form are repeated, and in addition there is a supplementary examination which must be answered by every corporation, joint stock company or association, without which the return will not be accepted as complete.

The form to be filled in is No. 1031 (revised). It covers the business either of a calendar year or of a fiscal year. If the return is made on the basis of a calendar year, it must be filed on or before March 1; if made on the basis of a fiscal year, it must be filed within sixty days after the close of such year.

The return must show (1) the total amount of paid-up capital stock or capital employed in the business, (2) the total amount of bonded and other indebtedness and (3) the gross income. Then, under the head of Deductions, come (4) expenses, (5) losses, (6) interest actually paid, and (7) Federal and State taxes paid.

Supplementary Statement.

Under the head of Indebtedness, in the supplementary statement, the corporation must name the character of the obligation and the rate of interest it bears, as well as the amount of principal. All manufacturing and other corporations which determine their annual gain or loss by inventory are required to state the same in a form which is provided. Rentals reported as income will include all payments received in cash or its equivalent as rent on buildings or other property owned by the corporation making the return. Interest to be reported as income includes all interest received on bonds or securities owned by the corporation, with the exception of interest on obligations of a State or political subdivision. Dividends received on the stock of other corporations must be included in the gross income of the corporation receiving the same and are not deductible from the gross income in ascertaining the net income upon which the tax is computed.

Deductions.

The items deductible under the head of Expenses of corporations should include only the ordinary and necessary expenses paid within the year in the maintenance and operation of the business and properties of the corporation, not including interest payments, which are to be reported under Item 6 (a), except interest paid on indebtedness wholly secured by collateral the subject of sale in the ordinary business of the corporation, as such interest may be reported under this item as an expense.

All expenses for material, labor, fuel and other items entering into the cost of the goods produced, sold or inventoried are deductible under this head as expense, provided such items have not been considered in determining the income derived from operations under Item 3 (a).

Expenditures for incidental repairs which do not add to the value of the property are deductible as expenses, but expenditures for additions and betterments which add to the value of the property are not deductible under this or any other item of the return. Expenditures for renewals and replacements are not, as such, deductible as expenses, but should be charged to depreciation reserve account.

Salaries of officers in order to constitute an allowable deduction must be reasonable compensation for the services rendered and must not comprehend any compensation for capital invested in the business.

Rentals should be reported separately under Item 4 (b).

The supplementary statement also discloses the names of officers and employees to whom salaries of $3,000 or more were paid during the year, with the amount paid to each. The rentals deductible should include all rentals or other payments required to be made as a condition to the continued use or possession of the property occupied or used by the corporation.

Losses.

The losses deductible must be distinguished from depreciation or allowances for wear and tear, exhaustion or obsolescence of property. The losses must be absolute, complete, actually sustained and charged off on the books of the corporation, and if the loss results from the sale of assets acquired prior to January 1, 1909, such loss must be prorated and the amount apportioned to the years subsequent to January 1, 1909, may be deducted.

Book entries representing a shrinkage in the value of securities are not a loss within the meaning of the law and cannot be deducted either as a loss or as a depreciation.

Depreciation.

The amount deductible on account of depreciation is held to be one which fairly measures the deterioration during the year in the value of the physical property with respect to which it is claimed, and such amount should be determined upon the basis of the cost of the property and the probable number of years constituting its life. Stocks, bonds and like securities are not subject to wear and tear, exhaustion or obsolescence within the meaning of the law, and any shrinkage in their value due to fluctuations in the market is not deductible either as depreciation or loss.

Deductible Interest.

The amount of interest which may properly be deducted is the amount actually accrued and paid within the year on an amount of bonded or other indebtedness not in excess of the paid-up capital stock outstanding at the close of the year plus one-half of the interest-bearing indebtedness also then outstanding. Where there is no capital stock, the amount of interest deductible is the amount actually paid on an amount of indebtedness not in excess at any time during the year of the capital employed in the business at the close of the year.

Interest paid on mortgage indebtedness, assumed or unassumed, on property to which the corporation has taken or is taking title, or in which it has an equity, or in the acquirement of which the mortgage was considered a part of the purchase price, should be reported under this item.

Interest paid in lieu of rent on a mortgage secured by property which the corporation occupies should be reported under Item 4 (b).

Interest paid on indebtedness wholly secured by collateral the subject of sale in the ordinary business of the corporation should be reported under Item 4 (a) and Item 2.

Recent Rulings.

The word "Agents" as used in paragraphs D and E of the income-tax law in connection with the words "control, receipt, custody, disposal or payment of income to another person," does not relate to agents not acting in a fiduciary capacity, according to a ruling that has been handed down by the U. S. Treasury Department. Agents not acting in a fiduciary capacity have no responsibility with reference to withholding the tax on, or making a return of, income turned over to resident aliens or citizens of the United States; but the responsible heads, agents or representatives of non-resident aliens who are in charge of property owned, business carried on, or capital invested within the United States, shall make full and complete returns of the income therefrom on Form 1040 (revised) and pay the tax thereon. See Non-resident alien, agent of.

Real Estate Agents Are Not Collectors.

Real estate agents are not required to deduct and withhold the normal tax from rents collected even though the amount is in excess of $3,000. The agent stands in the place of the landlord and receives money from tenants in exactly the same capacity as the landlord would receive such moneys, and he should be treated as such. A real estate agent does not act as an agent of the debtor. Therefore the duty of withholding the tax cannot be transferred from the debtor to such agent, because such transfer would simply be transferring the duty of withholding to the landlord himself.

A commission paid to a real estate agent for collecting rents and management of property is a legitimate business expense and constitutes an allowable deduction in computing net income.

A Landlord's Rights.

A landlord in receipt of annual rental from a tenant in excess of $3,000 may, at the time the amount of rental payments aggregates $3,000, file with the tenant a claim for exemption under paragraph C of the income-tax law (Form 1007, revised). He may, also, after December 31 of the taxable year, file with the tenant, or with the Collector of Internal Revenue, a claim for deductions under paragraph B on Form 1008.

The taxpayer who owns his home need include in his income no allowance for rent. He may deduct taxes and mortgage interest, but may not deduct depreciation.

Rent.

Where a tenant rents two pieces of property from the same owner, the tenant should combine the payments, and when such payments so combined aggregate in excess of $3,000 the normal tax should be deducted and withheld, subject to authorized exemptions claimed.

A lessee paying rent in excess of $3,000 a year under a lease from two or more individuals must make deduction from all payments to individuals in excess of $3,000 unless certificates of exemption are filed. He should ascertain in what proportion the rent is divided by the use of office Form 1000B, which may be adapted and executed by one of the parties in interest, the others executing Form 1007. The withholding should be made from the income of individuals and not from the aggregate amount paid. This situation is not different if the lessors are husband and wife if their individual interests are separate. The situation is not changed if, by instruction, the actual payments of rent are made to one lessor, the payments to be distributed by him. Where notes are given in payment of rent, the lessee's obligation to withhold is not altered. The lessee's obligation is the same as in the case of cash rental, withholding occurring at the time the notes are given, and not at maturity.

LEGISLATION FOR RELIEF OF PROPERTY

Bills Now Going Through Legislature Will Relieve Upstate Owners of the Attentions of Two Building Inspection Departments

MANY bills of extreme importance to real estate interests are known to be in preparation for the present session of the Legislature, but few of them have so far been introduced. The Assembly has passed bills abolishing the Department of Efficiency and Economy and the State Fire Marshal's office. As both measures were recommended by Governor Whitman, they will get the same treatment in the Senate, and within a comparatively short time these two departments will go out of existence.

The report of the commission which made an investigation of housing conditions in second class cities contains the following recommendations: (1) The repeal of the State Housing Law in its entirety. (2) Home rule for cities of the second class qualified by the supervision of the State Department of Health over buildings. (3) The appointment of a commission in each second class city to draw up new sanitary and building codes. Mr. Malone has accordingly introduced in the Assembly (Int. No. 283) a bill repealing the State Housing Law. Other bills will be introduced to carry out the other recommendations.

Assembly Bills.

40. (Chace.) Amending the Tax Law (section 221) by exempting from taxation property of a less value than $20,000, passing to the wife of a decedent having a minor child or children. If the property is valued at $20,000 or more, it is to be taxed at the rate of 1 per cent. on its clear market value.

51. (Green.) Inserting in the Transportation Corporations Law a new section (107) making five cents the maximum charge for telephone calls in New York City of not more than five minutes duration.

61. (Phelan.) Amending the Public Service Commissions Law (subdivision 8 of section 49) by providing that in cities of the first class the public service commission may compel the interchange of transfers between surface, elevated and subway lines, at intersecting points in cases where arrangements exist for interchange of transfers at other intersecting points between such lines and systems. (Same as Assembly Intro. 735, Print 766, of 1914, by Phelan.)

66. (Fertig.) Amending the Personal Property Law (section 63) by designating the office of the Register of Bronx County as the place of filing contracts for the conditional sale of goods and chattels. (Same as Senate bill by Mr. Hamilton.)

67. (Fertig.) Amending the Lien Law (section 232) by designating the office of the Register of Bronx County as the place of filing chattel mortgages. (Same as Senate bill by Mr. Hamilton.)

103. (Simpson.) Amending the Lien Law generally. Among the changes made are the following: The term "improvement" is to include anything attached or annexed to any land or tenement and intended to be permanently used, whether the same be permanently attached or attached so as to be removable, and shall also include the drawing by an architect or engineer of any plans or specifications which are used in connection with such improvement, and also the making of a survey; a lien may be filed for labor performed or material furnished, or for materials actually manufactured for, but not delivered to the property; notice of lien may be filed at any time within four months after the completion of the contract; and all liens filed subsequent to the day preceding the day on which a trial, in a court of record of an action to foreclose or enforce a mechanic's lien, shall be subordinate to mechanic's liens filed prior dates.

263. (Perlman.) Amending the Workmen's Compensation Law (Sections 12, 18 and 20) by reducing from 14 to 7 days the time immediately following the injury within which no compensation is to be allowed. The time within which the employer must be notified of the disability is reduced from 10 to 5 days. Claims for compensation may be made at any time after the expiration of 7 days from the date of injury, and not after the expiration of 14 days, as at present.

264. (Phelan.) Inserting in the Railway Law a new section (210) providing that where two or more lines of street surface railroads are located wholly or partly within New York City, under the management and control of one corporation, such lines shall be deemed to constitute a single street surface railroad for the purpose of imposing corporate liability for the operation of such railroads. Such lines are also deemed to be a single system for all purposes of the Public Service Commission Law with respect to the power of the commissions to make orders affecting street surface railroads.

313. (Emden.) Inserting in the General Business Law five new sections (205-a to 205-e) requiring hotel proprietors to establish a fixed rate by the day, week or month. A plan, showing each room and the price charged, must be filed with the city clerk of the city in which such hotel is located. At the end of each three months hotel proprietors may file amended plans providing for increased or diminished rates. Violation of the provisions of the act is made a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $250 for each offense.

330. (Kramer.) Amending the Greater New York Charter (Section 538 and new Section 541-b) by making it unlawful for employes of the Street Cleaning Department, whose duties require them to perform manual labor, to perform such labor on Sunday except where the necessity is urgent and absolute. The bill also prohibits the employment of stationary engine firemen by the Street Cleaning Department unless such firemen are duly licensed under Chapter 733 of the Laws of 1901.

331. (Kramer.) Amending the Laws of 1911 (Chapter 779) by imposing a tax on organized baseball games. Every corporation, association or league which holds baseball games in the State, under the system or arrangement known as "organized baseball," must furnish every Monday during the baseball season to the State Athletic Commission a report showing the number of tickets sold for all games held during the week and the amount of gross receipts taken in. Within 10 days after the filing of such report a tax of 5 per cent. on such gross receipts must be paid to the State Comptroller.

332. (Kramer.) Inserting in the Insurance Law a new section (121-b), by requiring payment of fire loss within 15 days after service of notice upon insurer by the insured that he consents to a finding by appraisers and an umpire, chosen as provided in the policy of insurance or in Section 121-a of the Insurance Law. This applies only to cases where the loss determined by such appraisal is not over $500.

335. (Judson.) Amending the Laws of 1903 (Chapter 147), which provides for the issue of not exceeding $101,000,000 bonds for the improvement of the Erie, Oswego and Champlain canals. The amendment provides that whenever the material excavated in the course of this improvement is needed by any county, city, village or town for highway construction or repair purposes the Superintendent of Public Works may permit the removal of such material upon application of the city, county, village or town officials.

349. (Seelye.) Amending the General City Law (Sections 33 and 34) by striking out the provision that after a hearing on a special city bill, which has passed the Legislature and been referred to the city authorities for approval, such bill shall be returned to the Governor in case the session of the Legislature has terminated. The effect of this amendment is to require the return of special city bills to the Clerk of the House in which such bills originated.

Senate Bills.

229. (Mills.) Inserting in the Senate Charities Law a new article (16-a), providing for the relief of widows having dependent children under 16 years of age. Provision is made for the establishment of local boards of child welfare in each county, to be appointed by the county judge, except that in a county wholly included within a city such board shall be appointed by the Mayor. County boards of child welfare are to consist of seven members, including the superintendent of the poor, and must have three women members, and at least one representative of the public schools and one representative of the public health authorities. A city board is to consist of nine members, at least five of whom must be women, and one a representative of the public schools, and one a representative of the public health authorities. To be entitled to relief a widow must be of good character, and have resided in the city or county for two years preceding her application for relief. The allowance granted must not exceed $20 a month to a widow having one child, $35 a month where there are two children, and $10 a month additional for each child in excess of two. The total relief granted, however, must not exceed $60 a month. (Same as Assemblyman McCue's bill.) To Judiciary Committee.

Municipal Ownership.

294. (Cullen.) Amending the Laws of 1911 (Chapter 776), known as the "New York City Freight Terminals Act," by providing that notwithstanding the provisions of any general or special law, a railroad corporation may, with the consent of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, purchase and hold stocks and bonds of a corporation which enters into a contract with the city for the operation of terminal facilities in the boroughs of Brooklyn and Queens, or either of them. The consent of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment can be granted only upon such notice and after such hearing as may be prescribed under rules and regulations which the board is hereby authorized to adopt. To Cities Committee.

415. (O'Hare.) Amending the Greater New York Charter (repeal of Section 247 and inserting new Section 247), by providing that before any public improvement, except an improvement under the Rapid Transit Act, which is to cost $250,000 or more is authorized, the Board of Estimate and Apportionment may determine that a portion of the cost be borne by the city or by one or more boroughs. The whole of the remainder of the expense is to be assessed upon benefited property. If the cost of such improvement is less than $250,000, the board may, by unanimous vote, similarly determine that the city or any borough shall bear a portion of the expense.

MORE POWER FOR THE INDUSTRIAL BOARD

The Proposed New Labor Law Will Make the Commissioners Sole Arbiters Over Factory Inspection—The Fire Commissioner's New Policy

REVISED recodification of the Labor Law of the State has been issued in book form for criticism and suggestion, preparatory to introduction in the Legislature, by the New York State Factory Investigating Commission. The date for the final public hearing has not yet been announced. Meanwhile the new code is being scrutinized carefully in behalf of real estate interests. It is expected that the Real Estate Board will presently receive a report from its special counsel, George W. Olvany, who has represented the board throughout the proceedings.

A casual examination of the volume reveals that the powers of the State Industrial Board will be very greatly enlarged if the present recodification should pass the Legislature and receive the approval of the Governor. In many places it amounts to entirely new provisions, the effect of which is to intrench the Industrial Board so deeply in the statute law and to arm it so completely as to constitute it practically the sole arbiter over the "construction, alteration, equipment and maintenance" of factories, factory buildings and mercantile establishments in the entire State of New York.

Definition of a Factory.

The term "factory" is held to mean any building occupied in whole or part by or used for a factory, and in which at least one-tenth of all the persons employed in the building are engaged in work for a factory. The provisions of the chapter affecting structural alterations, and the installation of fixtures and apparatus, will not apply to factories where less than five persons are employed, except as prescribed by the Industrial Board in its rules.

The Industrial Board is empowered "to make, amend and repeal rules for carrying into effect the provisions of the chapter, applying such provisions to specific conditions and prescribing specific means, methods or practices to effectuate such provisions."

A new provision confers on the Industrial Board substantially the same powers as are held by the Greater New York Board of Examiners under the Charter, in addition to the power to both make and repeal rules. Thus the board is to possess the unique prerogative of passing upon appeals from its own rules and of modifying its own rules when it deems this course necessary. An appeal can only be taken to the board from the orders of the Commissioner of Labor, who is the chairman of the board.

Further, the Industrial Board, now under the revised law, "to make, amend and repeal rules for proper sanitation in all places to which this chapter applies, and for guarding against and minimizing fire hazards, personal injuries and diseases in all places to which this chapter applies with respect to:

"a. The construction, alteration, equipment and maintenance of all such places, including the conversion of structures into factories, factory buildings and mercantile establishments;

"b. The arrangement and guarding of machinery and the storing and keeping of property and articles;

"c. The places where and the methods and operations by which trades and occupations may be conducted and the conduct of employers, employees and other persons;

"It being the policy and intent of this chapter that all places to which it applies shall be so constructed, equipped, arranged, operated and conducted in all respects as to provide reasonable and adequate protection to the lives, health and safety of all persons employed therein, and frequenting the same, and that the board shall, from time to time, make such rules as will effectuate such policy and intent.

JAMES M. LYNCH,
Chairman of the State Industrial Board.

"3. The rules may be limited in their application to certain classes of establishments, places of employment, machines, apparatus, articles, processes, industries, trades or occupations or may apply only to those to be constructed, established, installed or provided in the future.

4. The rules of the board shall have the force and effect of law and shall be enforced in the same manner as the provisions of this chapter.

"5. No provision of this chapter specifically conferring power on the Industrial Board to make rules shall limit the powers conferred by this section."

Mill Construction Permitted.

In the construction of factory buildings the Industrial Board is directed to permit the erection of buildings not more than six stories high and provided with sprinklers to be of "mill construction," or "slow-burning construction," when built according to specifications of the Industrial Board. The board may also permit the erection of buildings not over six stories high when of incombustible construction, but not complying with the requirements of fireproof buildings when in the opinion of the board there is a small life hazard.

Fire Commissioner's Report.

Having disposed of the accumulation of 13,000 complaints which he found in the Fire Prevention Bureau when he took office in January one year ago, Fire Commissioner Adamson announced this week that the Fire Prevention Bureau is now in a position to adopt a different policy in the matter of making building inspections. Heretofore it has been the policy to make inspections only upon complaints by citizens and reports by company commanders of dangerous conditions, and where such inspections were made they covered only the conditions complained of. Now, Commissioner Adamson states, the Fire Prevention Bureau is in a position to inspect any building from top to bottom where the owner desires such an inspection to be made.

"We completed, during 1914, 13,000 complaints that have been accumulating for the last five years," said the Fire Commissioner, "and we are now in a position to make complete inspections of buildings instead of piecemeal inspections. Heretofore there have been justifiable complaints that orders from the Fire Prevention Bureau and other City and State Departments requiring structural changes in a particular building are not all issued as the result of a single inspection of a building. During 1914 our inspectors were instructed, when visiting a building, to deal only with the matter complained of and not to spend time in going through the building from roof to sub-cellar for the purpose of reporting every condition requiring a remedy. If we had not adopted this policy we would never have disposed of the enormous volume of complaints which I found here when I came into office.

"One result of the system of inspecting only for the matters complained of is that owners have received orders at different times during the year requiring different structural changes to remedy different conditions that had been complained of to the Fire Department at different times. I feel, and the building owners feel, that they are entitled to be informed of all the requirements of this department affecting a building after a single inspection is made.

"There is now no reason, however, why any owner who desires to have his building thoroughly and completely inspected once for all, may not be accommodated with such an inspection. Any written request for such an inspection will be honored by the Fire Department; and as a result orders will be issued covering all the structural changes necessary to make the building fully meet the requirements of the Fire Department. Thereafter, for a period of years, the owner may reasonably expect to be free from inspections or orders of the Fire Department unless the character of occupancy or number of occupants of the building is radically changed.

"A certificate will be issued by the Fire Commissioner to the owner of the building that it complies fully with the requirements of the Fire Department as to structural conditions so long as the present character of occupancy and number of occupants are substantially maintained, and the Fire Department will call upon the owner thereafter only to make necessary repairs affecting the upkeep of the building.

"It will be necessary for the Fire Department to make inspections from time to time to see that the fire appliances are kept in working condition, and particularly that tenants of the building do not introduce bad housekeeping practices, such as accumulations of rubbish and obstructions to fire escapes; but so far as the general structural condition of the building itself is concerned the owner will be justified in depending upon the certificate of the Fire Commissioner as insurance against further orders, except for maintenance and upkeep."

—The city has lost since the year 1898, through uncollected and uncollectible taxes, the great sum of $93,889,000, according to a report of the Comptroller. By far the greater part of the loss is, of course, represented by uncollectible personal taxes.

Ninety thousand names on the city payroll and only one hundred and twenty-five thousand taxpayers. Almost "fifty—fifty."

The occasional rumors of great freight terminals about to be erected add to the gayety of the real estate market, and would add much to its prosperity if they could sometimes be confirmed.

There is one tunnel to Queens already, and if you bore another, where will you get the money to build the new Kings County Court House? Brooklyn is asking the question. Commissioner Maltbie says the proposed tunnel will cost $5,500,000, and if it goes through, no other pending plan will have a chance. Why wasn't the insufficiency of the Queensboro Bridge discovered before?

Queens has no borough hall to call its own, but must house its official family in rented quarters. The Borough President has asked for an appropriation of $200,000 for the purchase of a site, and the Chamber of Commerce is backing his plea. Valuable records will not be safe until there is a suitable building, and the new importance of Queens entitles it to a suitable capitol building.

The real estate bodies are proving their ability to be helpful to the official municipal boards and officers in various ways. The governors and appraisal committee of the Real Estate Board are holding conferences with the Court House Board with a view to giving the commissioners the benefit of their opinion in a written report upon the court house project as a real estate operation. The report will also embody constructive advice as to levying assessments and laying out abutting streets.

The "Build Now" Movement.

The more cheerful outlook on the business situation, to which the Record and Guide recently called attention, is plainly spreading to real estate and building. All over the country there is evidence of increased interest and activity. The interest is taking the form chiefly of a concerted attempt to induce capitalists, property-owners and speculative builders to undertake operations immediately instead of postponing them to a subsequent date. This attempt is being attended with a large measure of success, because it is based upon sound economic reasons.

Last fall a large number of building operations were abandoned as a consequence of the disorganization which followed upon the outbreak of the European war. In many instances the abandonment of these enterprises was forced upon the intending builder. He was unable to make the arrangements for financing the operations, upon which he had counted. In other instances the abandonment was the result of a cautious attitude towards business prospects. Many business men and investors, with money in the bank, prudently preferred to keep their capital in a fluid form until the economic effects of the war could be more accurately estimated.

In the majority of cases there is no reason now why these abandoned projects should not be resumed. The unfortunate economic effects of the war have not entirely spent their force; but the back of their offending is broken. A period of rather active business is plainly foreshadowed, due to the fact that American raw materials will be consumed in enormous quantities by Europe and at high prices. Loanable capital is being offered on real estate in considerable quantities. It cannot be expected that money will actually be cheap, at a time when so much capital is being destroyed; but there should be enough in this country for all legitimate purposes. The new banking system will add considerably to the credit value of existing stocks of gold in the banks. Then there is, of course, a real and a general need of new buildings. For some time the amount of money invested in new construction has been less than normal; and an enlargement of business activity will bring with it an imperative demand for more space. Finally, the particular advantage of building now is derived from the low price of building materials. Construction work is cheap. Many contractors will take jobs almost at cost for the sake of keeping their organizations together. But while building is still cheap, it may not long remain cheap. The price of building materials is already rising. Accumulated stocks in the hands of dealers are not very abundant. A builder who wishes to take advantage of the low prices cannot afford to delay. In a few months or less the cost of materials may be high rather than low, and contractors will be exacting their ordinary profits. The man who intends to build and does not make immediate preparations is making a mistake.

Important Plans.

The news of the past few weeks indicates clearly that New Yorkers are beginning to appreciate the situation and are making preparations for building. Among the very recent announcements has been that of a store for the Brokaw Brothers running through from Broadway to Seventh avenue at 42nd street, and the beginning on May 1st of the long delayed office and loft building which is to be erected on Broadway opposite the Herald Building. Early construction will also be started on a store and loft building for the vacant corner of 37th street and Fifth avenue. The past week has added a number of noteworthy projects to this list. The most important of these is the new twenty-story building which is to be erected on Eighth avenue between 33rd and 34th streets; but the other two announcements are also of considerable interest. The Realty Holding Company is going to improve a large plot in 40th street west of Seventh avenue, which it purchased some years ago; and a builder is to put up a sixteen-story loft east of Fourth avenue in the Thirties.

In one or two instances plans for these buildings may have been hastened by the prospect of the passage of an ordinance limiting the height of skyscrapers; and this motive may be effective in increasing the amount of new construction undertaken during the coming spring, but for the most part the announcements are concerned with ordinary building enterprises, whose starting has been delayed by the general conditions of the real estate and money markets. What is most significant about these announcements is that with two exceptions they are all concerned with rather small sections. They all concern property situated between Longacre Square and Greeley Square—with the section, which, after the dual subway system is completed, will enjoy the extraordinary advantage of being enclosed by four express stations, two on each of the new subways. The Record and Guide has frequently predicted that when a revival of real estate and building activity does take place, this particular district will be the first to feel the effects of the new impulse. Whereas the east side of the mercantile district will not be any better off essentially after the completion of the new subways than it is at present, the West Side will be enormously benefitted by the improvement in its means of communication with the remainder of the city. The consequence is that a number of new loft and business buildings are being built on Broadway or to the west of that thoroughfare. Indeed Broadway and its vicinity and Fifth avenue and its vicinity practically monopolize the current building activity in the mercantile and retail districts.

Unified Inspection the Main Thing.

Mayor Mitchel has appointed a strong committee with Mr. Allan Robinson at its head to consider afresh the proper way of providing for the reform of the building inspection system in this city. The constitution of such a committee is extremely desirable, because the matter has been left in a doubtful condition. The several real estate associations have agreed to demand unified inspection service, but they want the administration of the law placed in the hands of borough officials. In asking for a unified system of inspection they are occupying much stronger ground than when they ask for borough administration. Unified inspection is necessary, and the failure to secure it would be disastrous. Borough administration may be desirable, but it is not so desirable as unified inspection. If the real estate and building interests are more likely to get unified inspection without borough administration than they are to get it with borough administration, they would be foolish not to sacrifice the smaller for the greater object. There can be no doubt that borough administration will be very unpopular with many of the people, who are most interested in securing a rigid administration of the laws. The whole matter needs, consequently, a certain amount of reconsideration, and it is certain that Mr. Robinson's committee will bestow upon it just the patient and careful discussion which it needs.

Who Are Desirable Immigrants?

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

Mr. William E. Harmon says in the article "Has New York Seen Its Best Days?" that "New York can have entirely too many people who pay from $15 to $25 a month rent."

He reinforces this by quoting the Mayor of Salem, Mass., who said: "We don't want this class of people; we don't want $2,500 houses; it costs this town nearly $30 a year to educate each child, and the more of such population we have the poorer we are."

If there is any city in the United States where a family of healthy children is not worth $30 a year per child, you can send them all to Berkeley Heights, N. J., where I own a lot of land and will be only too glad to have them.

Anyone who lives in a $2,500 house on a suitable lot must pay the equivalent of a rent of at least $300 a year, whether he owns the house or not. In the ordinary ratio of rent to expenditure that will represent not less than $1,200 of expenditure by that family. The profit on that at retail prices will be something in the neighborhood of $400. The retailers who are sustained by such trade in turn pay taxes out of these profits.

If it is not worth several times $30 to a town to have $400 profits left with its citizens it must be a town where somebody else owns all the land and naturally gets all the profits.

BOLTON HALL.

The Unemployment Hysteria.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

It is about time that all this hysterical and exaggerated talk of unemployment should be taken in hand and squelched. It has been stated that there are more than 500,000 men unemployed; this statement is an error; at the very outside, they do not exceed 250,000, and about one-half of them haven't worked for years, and won't work, and about one-third of them are incapable of working.

We have seen how, when the labor unions enjoined the subway contractors from employing alien labor, it was found impossible to get the American unemployed to work in the subways; the truth is that every emigrant on his arrival here finds work and does work; but this city is filled with men who have been told that the State and City owe them a living, whether they work or not, and they consequently don't and won't work; they couldn't be compelled to work even with the aid of "Boer sjambok."

There are certain members of the present Administration who have been, in season and out of season, advocating municipal socialism under the guise of "social uplift"; they have allowed their emotions to run away with their brains.

It is a well known fact that fully one-third of the Municipal Lodging House has been unoccupied; it has been stated that the reason for this is that they have no social lounge in which they can loaf, smoke and swap loafers' yarns during the day; that this ought to be remedied so that they could be made comfortable while the City finds them such employment as will suit their pockets and artistic tastes.

We have seen how, at a Board of Estimate meeting, a certain well known gentleman told the members of that board that he was ashamed of them; that they must find work for the unemployed and that the responsibility was up to the city. He evidently didn't care whether they begged, borrowed or stole it; they must find money even though they committed penal offenses by violating their trusteeship under the law as the city's managers.

We have seen how, at the same meeting, a certain lawyer insisted that the city spend $25,00,000 to $50,000,000 in the purchase of machinery to be installed in the vacant loft buildings of the city for the purpose of providing work for the unemployed; it was immaterial whether the city officers could find the money or not, but they must find it. It was immaterial whether owners of the vacant loft buildings were paid rent or not; it was immaterial whether the unemployed were capable of performing the work that the machinery was to be set up for; and the crowning proposal of all was that the goods manufactured should be presented to the Belgian war and Italian earthquake sufferers, so they should not come into competition with the sale of labor union products.

The city is full of hysterical Socialists principally working for their own pockets and insisting that the city take the money from the workers to benefit the loafers that infest the metropolis; it is about time that their practices should be exposed.

Fortunately, we have in the Comptroller a man of independent character and force; he is doing his best to expose the "something-for-nothing" ideas that are being foisted on the city, and he is ably seconded by President McAneny.

The hair-brained municipal Socialists haven't brains enough to see that the means they are using to accomplish their so-called "social uplift" are the very means that are producing the very conditions to which they object; they are busily engaged in manufacturing husky paupers, and the deserving poor are left to their fate, because they don't come out in public assembly and demand their share of the taxpayers' money.

What Real Estate Needs.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

Property owners are so despondent that they must have some relief by legislation in the way of reducing taxation and in more reasonable factory regulations.

I suggest the following:

1. Chapter 669, Laws of 1911, which pensions our city employees after thirty years' service, exempting the police, firemen and school teachers, costs about $7,000,000 yearly and it is increasing.

Mayor McClellan vetoed it at the time, but for some strange reason Gaynor approved it! If real estate men cannot repeal it, let them advocate an amendment of forty years' service, which will save millions.

2. The salary of the District Attorney of New York County in 1910 was raised from $12,000 to $15,000, by Chapter 295, page 523, Laws of 1910. I have known every District Attorney since "Ben" Phelps, who was elected in 1879, and I am confident that not one of them, with perhaps one exception, earned anything like $12,000 net at his law practice at the time of his appointment. It would have a good moral effect to repeal such a law.

3. A delegation should be sent to Governor-elect Whitman, asking him to put a clause in a special message to amend the labor law as to factories, so as to be reasonable to the owners, especially with automatic sprinklers, the number of employes on each floor, according to the width of the staircase and the counterbalanced stairs at the bottom of the fire escape, which shuts out the light of the show window of the store in many cases.

4. An act is in force in Florida putting a license fee on each profession or business, such as a lawyer, doctor, grocer, plumber, carpenter, etc. Adopt it in New York.

A license fee law will yield little or no income if the salaries are far above the market price, as many New York City salaries now are.

Think of paying stenographers $2,000, and when a taxpayer criticises them they reply, "Outside people who work for less are not good enough for municipal service." Indeed!

5. Congress, on account of the hard times and partial depletion of Uncle Sam's treasury, has just reduced some Federal salaries.

Amend our city charter to give our celestial and theoretical Board of Estimate power to reduce city salaries by not more than 10 per cent. in 1915 and thereafter. I hope this board will soon come down to earth and do something practical, and thus give direct and indirect taxpayers real relief. Do not forget that the tenants as well as the landlords often suffer by governmental extravagance!

Here is a good chance for the Merchants' Association, the City Club, Citizens' Union, the Real Estate Board, the United Real Estate Owners' Association, the Brooklyn League and the thirty or forty local taxpayers' associations to unite on the above mentioned program, especially to amend the pension employe swindle of 1911.

Where the Tenement House Law Is Doing Harm.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The Manufacturers and Business Men's Association of New York City at the last meeting appointed a special committee composed of Charles G. Rickerson, David Porter, Alfred E. Kleinert, Andrew F. Wilson and Audley Clarke (chairman) to co-operate with other committees in their efforts to procure modifications of the law, which would permit the building of the "three-family house."

The Manufacturers' Association and the committee view with alarm the fact that, during the last eight or nine years the Tenement House law has been in operation, it has resulted in practically eleminating the building of three-family houses and encouraged the erection of the twenty and twenty-four family houses. This class of apartment is now being erected in increasingly greater numbers every year in this borough. These apartments are very expensive and not at all suited for the proper development of family life and promotion of good citizenship. In fact, we feel that they are a menace to the social welfare and healthful upbuilding of the city, as tending to produce a class of people who have little or no interest in the real welfare of the city, and who are not developing the qualities which make for the best type of citizens.

Further, these buildings, these human "bee hives," are not and can not be occupied on account of their high scale of rent by men of moderate means, especially those who have families of any considerable size. Their cost to build and operate is so great that it is almost impossible for a tenant to ever become an owner, and the result is that the percentage of the real estate owners is decreasing annually, which is a source of regret and should secure our earnest consideration.

It seems as if there must be something wrong somewhere, and we would like to find out what the trouble really is. If it is due to the unforseen effect of the Tenement House law, which has otherwise accomplished so much good, let us work to amend that law. Certainly those who secured the enactment of this law realize that it was intended to protect our humbler inhabitants who were unable to help themselves. We must furnish healthful homes for our working classes.

The Tenement House law has failed in this direction absolutely. Why? Because the economic side of the case has been ignored. We realize that the building business is as important a business as any in the Borough of Brooklyn and that a building must work out economically; that investors must be able to secure a reasonable profit, otherwise they would not invest their money in improved property. The ever increasing taxes that are loaded on to real estate and the annoyance that owners are subject to by reason of excessive and costly inspections by the various departments have had a very depressing effect upon the value of improved real estate, making it increasing difficult to sell.

Before the present Tenement House Law was in operation, a great many three-family houses were built. These houses have a great many points of interest to the builder and to the rentpayer. They make for privacy and for larger opportunities for raising a family.

We can see so many good reasons for working for this end and so few objections that can reasonably stand in the way, that we would be glad to do anything in our power that will accomplish this object, and in doing so, we feel that we are working for the best interest of the city at large and its moral and social development.

Brooklyn has been called the "City of Homes." It is fast becoming a city of furnished rooms with no family life. Let us work to protect our boys and girls and encourage at least a measure of home life that is fast disappearing in our city of miniature apartments that stifle their moral, spiritual and physical growth.

MORE TAXES ON REALTY.

An Increment Tax Recommended by the Mayor's Commission.

THE Mayor's commission to which was referred for investigation the problems in taxation now confronting the city government has prepared and submitted a preliminary report, together with drafts of legislative bills to carry the recommendations into effect. The report is now in the Mayor's hands but is not yet available for publication.

It is understood to recommend four new forms of local taxation as emergency measures, any one or all of which may be either adopted or rejected by the Board of Estimate. It is understood that the commission is yet to report upon the single tax question which was referred to it for investigation.

The present report has necessitated considerable mathematical compilations, in order to estimate the amount of money that would be produced by each one of the new forms of taxation. It is rumored that the commissioners were strongly impressed by the critical condition of the city's finances and the need of emergency measures at once, and that because of this, and for reasons of expediency, some were prevailed upon to vote for certain of the resolutions who under other circumstances would have voted otherwise. From the meeting at which the report was adopted as a whole some of the members absented themselves, and two others voted against it until the last. One can readily believe the rumors that the meetings of the commission were characterized at times by heated debates.

Since the publication in the Brooklyn Eagle of Sunday, naming four new forms of taxation as being recommended in the commission's report, various rumors have been current in real estate circles, in the absence of official information, as the members are preserving secrecy. The four new kinds of taxes proposed are said to be of the following nature:

1. A tax, or fee, on every business concern, regulated as to amount by the size of the business.

2. A tax upon the head of every family in the city occupying an apartment or dwelling. Some reports designate this as an "occupancy tax" and some as a "poll tax."

3. A tax on the "unearned increment" in the value of real estate.

4. A tax on all persons advancing money on mortgages secured by real estate, rated according to the amount of the loan, and so levied that it cannot be shifted to the borrower. The term "mortgage tax" has been applied to this new tax.

A previous commission, appointed to discover new sources of revenues, for the city, reported in favor of a tax on the so-called unearned increment and aroused thereby great opposition among property owners.

The members of the present commission are:

Alfred E. Marling, chairman; Professor Edwin R. A. Seligman of Columbia University, chairman of the executive committee; Frederic C. Howe, Immigration Commissioner, secretary; Robert S. Binkard, the secretary of the City Club of New York (a member of the former commission); President Commissioner Purdy, Lawson Purdy of the Tax Board, Tax Commissioners Charles T. White, John T. Holleran, and Ardolph L. Kline; Frank Harvey Field, Joseph N. Francolini, Hamilton Holt, Professor Jeremiah W. Jenks, Frederick C. Leubuscher, well known as a single tax advocate; Walter Lindner, Cyrus C. Miller, former Borough President of the Bronx; George V. Mullan, formerly Mayor Mitchel's law partner; Louis H. Pink of Brooklyn; David Rumsey, Oscar R. Seitz, Frederick B. Shipley, Robert E. Simon, Franklin S. Tomlin, Delos F. Wilcox, Colin H. Woodward.

C. C. Mollenhauer, president of the Brooklyn Board of Real Estate Brokers, has termed the scheme "ridiculous" and said he was sure that the board would fight it to a finish. President McGuire, of the Real Estate Board, said he would not express an opinion in the matter until he knew what the report really contained.

REAL ESTATE BANQUET.

The Real Estate Board Will Have Reservations for a Thousand on Next Saturday Night.

The Nineteenth Annual Banquet of the Real Estate Board of New York, to be held at the Waldorf Astoria on next Saturday evening, Feb. 6, promises to be in every respect the most complete affair of the kind ever held by the board. Elisha Sniffin, chairman of the banquet committee, announces that reservations approximating 1,000 have been made.

The speakers will include Mayor John Purroy Mitchel, Hon. Dudley Field Malone, Collector of the Port; Commissioner Robert E. Dowling; Haley Fiske, Second Vice-President Metropolitan Life Ins. Co.; and J. Victor Barry, Assistant Secretary Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. Laurence M. D. McGuire, President of the Real Estate Board, will act as toastmaster.

The list of invited guests includes public officials, professional men and representative real estate men from New York, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, Rochester, Westchester and New Jersey. These will meet on neutral ground to discuss the various problems relating to real estate and the City of New York. In this list of guests is included the following: Hon. Wm. A. Prendergast, Hon. Geo. McAneny, Hon. Markus M. Marks, Hon. Douglas Mathewson, Hon. Lewis H. Pounds, Hon. Maurice E. Connolly, Hon. Chas. J. McCormack, Hon. Henry Bruere, Hon. Lawson Purdy, Mr. Cqrus C. Miller, Gen. Lewis W. Stotesbury, Judge Frank Hasbrouck, Hon. Abram I. Elkus, Hon. Chas. D. Olendorf, Mr. Thomas Shallcross, Mr. Elbridge Gerry Snow, Hon. M. Mayer, Mr. Franklin Pettit, Mr. George C. Boldt, Mr. Wm. C. Breed, Mr. Stewart Browne, Mr. Frederick H. Ecker, Mr. Wilbur C. Fisk, Mr. M. Morgenthau, Jr.

Guaranteed Mortgage Company.

At the annual meeting of the Guaranteed Mortgage Company of New York on January 19 all the members of the board of directors were re-elected and the former officers continued. The annual report makes it plain that the conditions following the outbreak of the war have not seriously affected the business of guaranteed mortgage companies. There has been a falling off of new business, but sales for the year have more than equalled cancellations, and the total amount of guarantees now outstanding shows a 7 per cent. increase. The company's net earnings have amounted to 11¾ per cent.; dividends, to 8 per cent., and addition to undivided profits, 3¾ per cent.

During the year the policy was adopted of investing part of the capital in standard bonds, because of their greater availability in case of a run on mortgages; and in this connection the company emphasizes the fact that it has never resorted to the eighteen months' clause in its policies, but has taken up all its matured mortgages where the holders asked for payment.

The limit of guarantees to be issued has heretofore been fixed by the executive committee at ten times capital and surplus. As that limit is nearly reached, it is probable that the capital will be increased during the year. This report, coming at a time of serious depression, will be most encouraging to people interested in real estate who are waiting for signs of better times.

BRONX AFFAIRS.

Interesting Discussions Before the New Chamber of Commerce.

The Public Service Commission has informed the Bronx Chamber of Commerce that the construction contract for the Westchester avenue line will be let as soon as practicable after the plans for the bridge over the Bronx river have been decided on by the United States Government. The chamber has also been notified by the United States War Department that the matter of the bridge is receiving attention from the engineers and that a fuller report will soon be made.

These communications were received by the chamber at its January meeting in the Waldron Building last Saturday evening, President Albert E. Davis in the chair.

A letter from S. Clay Adams, of the Adams-Flanigan Co., was read urging support for the "Trade-at-Home" movement in the Bronx, and a resolution commending it to the people of the borough was adopted.

Dr. Frederick M. Henssler urged the chamber to endeavor to obtain the running of the Madison avenue surface cars over the bridge and through 138th street to the "L" station. A resolution was adopted to this effect.

A letter was read from Charles H. J. Dilg, of the Dilg Manufacturing & Trading Co., urging that the New Haven Railroad make at least one stop in the Bronx on its main line at Melrose or Mott Haven stations, as might be preferred. A resolution was adopted directing the secretary to write to the Public Service Commission and the New Haven Railroad to urge the granting of this convenience.

George Damm stated that he understood the New Haven Railroad intended to discontinue the running of its main line trains into the Grand Central Station after the completion of the connecting road now being constructed through the Port Morris section and over to Long Island.

Henry S. Gamp moved and Charles L. Ullman seconded a resolution which was adopted approving of Senator Dunnigan's bill for a 5-cent fare on all railroads within the city limits. During the discussion John C. Walworth said it was unreasonable to expect passengers to be carried in expensive cars, with upholstered seats, where every passenger had a seat, for the same fare as in light cars where strap-hangers paid the dividends, the trains would have to leave the Grand Central with ten cars and drop off half of them at the city line. It would mean also that Mt. Vernon people could travel to Coney Island for 5 cents, and that was too much to expect. Charles L. Ullman said that the development of the Bronx was more important than the comfort and convenience of the suburban commuters.

The proposition to abolish county governments through the constitutional convention was made a special order of business for the February meeting.

A resolution was adopted urging Park Commissioner Whittle to apply to the Board of Estimate for permission to ask bids from kindling wood dealers and others, to whom the wood will be valuable, for removing the dead trees from the parks, and thus save the $101,065.50 proposed to be expended for this purpose, while at the same time giving employment to the unemployed.

The question of waste of funds in repaving was discussed and a resolution adopted asking Borough President Mathewson to furnish the chamber with a list of the streets upon which it was proposed to expend $465,045 for repaving.

Bronx Board of Trade.

Edward B. Boynton, president of the American Real Estate Company, was elected president of the Bronx Board of Trade, formerly known as the North Side Board of Trade, this week. Eugene H. Rosenquest, president of the Westchester Gas & Electric Company, was elected vice-president.

The board of directors elected will serve from one to three years. The members elected for one year are Charles F. Minor, Edward B. Boynton, Albert Goldman, George S. Ward, James L. Wells, Charles A. Berrian, Louis V. Fox, George N. Reinhardt, J. Harris Jones and Park Commissioner Thomas W. Whittle.

Those elected to serve for two years as directors are Olin J. Stephens, William S. Germain, Herbert A. Knox, Robert J. Moorehead, Rev. William H. Kephart, John H. Denbeigh and Fred W. Hottenroth. The three-year term directors elected were William W. Niles, S. Clay Adams, John F. Steeves, Eugene H. Rosenquest, James Breckenridge, Elmer D. Coulter, Theodore Trimmer, F. A. Wurzbach and Surrogate George M. S. Schulz.

The Time to Be Prudent.

The Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests has adopted a minute expressing sympathy with the distressing situation in regard to unemployment, and the members, as individuals, are willing and ready to do whatever the are able to relieve it. The council is of the opinion, however, that it is neither wise nor proper for the city to undertake the prosecution of public improvements unless it is financially safe at the present time; and that this matter should be left in the hands of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, as the official body best qualified to consider it. The attitude of the Comptroller on this subject commends itself to the council, in so far as it understands the situation.

Damages Six Cents.

A second award of six cents as damages against the Interborough from the erection of a station of the elevated road has just been found by commissioners appointed by the Supreme Court to fix the damages to the Brockholst, northwest corner of 85th street and Columbus avenue. Skinner & Bermat, specialists in prosecuting claims against the elevated railroad, represented the Clauson estate in the attempt to secure substantial damages for the erection of the new station at 86th street and Columbus avenue, extending in front of that property; but they were unable to satisfy the commissioners that any such damage has resulted after considering the benefits that station has produced.

This is the second decision as to the effect of the new elevated railway improvements upon abutting property, the first being a similar verdict of six cents damage in respect of the 38th street and Sixth avenue station recently erected.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

A $2,500,000 building operation in the Pennsylvania Station zone, this week, involving the sale of an Eighth avenue block front, was the principal deal of the week. The project is one of the largest ever undertaken in that section of the city in a long time and one of the most significant of the year. The fact that one of the large lending institutions has agreed to finance the operation is being favorably regarded as a possible indication of an improvement in the condition of the money market. The deal serves also to attract attention to a district of the city, for which great things have been predicted since the plans of the Pennsylvania Railroad became known.

Besides this large transaction, there were several others closed which may be optimistically regarded. An upper Broadway block front bought by a builder; the acquisition of a property as a branch for a bank and the exchange of a valuable Lenox Hill apartment house for a mid-town building site, constituted other important items of the business. There was moderate activity among smaller buyers and an increased demand for practically every kind of property in various sections of the city.

The total number of sales reported and not recorded in Manhattan this week was 24, as against 19 last week and 27 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 7, as compared with 7 last week and 6 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 17, as compared with 12 last week and 21 a year ago.

The total number of conveyances in Manhattan was 136, as against 123 last week, 19 having stated considerations totaling $1,126,000. Mortgages recorded this week number 66, involving $1,922,632, as against 66 last week, totaling $778,545.

From the Bronx, 9 sales at private contract were recorded, as against 9 last week and 15 a year ago.

The amount involved in Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $814,400, compared with $860,150 last week, making a total for the year of $4,219,591. The figures for the corresponding week last year were, $554,530, and the total from Jan. 1, 1914, to Jan. 31, 1914, was $5,303,221.

$2,500,000 Publishers Building.

The 461 Eighth Avenue Realty Company, Larkin Brothers and other interests, bought from Archibald D. Russell the old Haeger warehouse property, occupying the block front on the west side of Eighth avenue from 33d to 34th street; also from Mrs. Margery S. Ruttman, the dwelling 303 West 33d street and from Cornelius F. Sheehan, 302 West 34th street. On the combined plot of about 23,500 square feet, a twenty-one story building for the printing and publishing trades will be erected at an estimated cost of $2,500,000. The project has been financed by the Title Guarantee & Trust Company. The sole broker in the transaction was Joseph P. Day. John J. Buckley represented Larkin Brothers, as attorney, Brett & Goode (Inc.) have been appointed agents for the new building. Additional details will be found under Current Building Operations.

Altman Home Sold.

It was reported yesterday that the estate of Benjamin Altman had contracted to sell the two Columbia College leaseholds at the northwest corner of Fifth avenue and 50th street, known as 626 Fifth avenue and 1 West 50th street, fronting 35.5 ft. on the avenue and 164 ft. in the street. The property had been occupied by Mr. Altman as his home, part having been converted into his famous art gallery. The corner property will probably be demolished or altered by the erection of a modern business building. The buyer is said to a be a client of Walter T. Stern, attorney.

$500,000 Exchange.

Dr. Robert C. Myles bought through Harris & Vaughn, from the Rivoli Construction Company, Judson S. Tod, president, the nine-story apartment house, 27 East 62d street, on plot 57x100.5, which was built about two years ago from plans by Lawlor & Haase. In exchange, Dr. Myles gave 44-46 West 38th street two four-story dwellings on plot 41x98.9, west of the Lord & Taylor store. The deal involved properties held at about $500,000.

Broadway Block Sold.

Jacob Axelrod, the builder, bought from the City Investing Company, Robert E. Dowling, president, the block front on the east side of Broadway, from 88th to 89th street, which was acquired by the seller several weeks ago, from Francis M. Jencks. The property has a frontage of 201 feet on Broadway, 175 feet in 88th street and 80 feet in 89th street. It will be improved with two twelve-story apartment houses. The brokers in the deal were Slawson & Hobbs and Barton Chapin.

Bank Buys for Branch.

The Corn Exchange Bank has purchased from the Lexington Operating Company, through the Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company, the five-story building, at the northwest corner of Lexington avenue and 60th street, fronting 100.5 feet on the avenue and 22 feet in the street. A branch office of the bank will be established in the building.

West Side Holdings in Trade.

The 111th Street Construction Company, Samuel Williams, treasurer, sold 32-50 West 111th street, three five-story apartment houses, on plot 87.6x72, to Hyman Sarner & Son, who gave in part payment the block front of eight lots on the west side of Amsterdam avenue, between 186th and 187th streets, 214.10x100. The exchange involved about $400,000.

Operator Sells Old Holdings.

Sol. L. Pakas, who has owned 306-308 West 35th street for ten years, sold it to M. Barry. It comprises two three-story dwellings on plot 38x74.1, just east of the Manhattan Opera House. Mr. Barry has not made his plans known with reference to a possible improvement.

KEWANEE

Smokeless Firebox Boilers

Cut Coal Costs

In the best of buildings—where the mechanical equipment installed is selected by the foremost architects, and the best of engineers—Kewanee Smokeless Boilers are being installed. As an evidence of this fact we mention the Apartment Building at 137 W. 79th Street, New York City, designed by Messrs. W. L. Rouse and L. A. Goldstone.

Apartment Bldg., 137 W. 79th St., N. Y. Brixton Realty Corporation, Owners
W. L. ROUSE & L. A. GOLDSTONE, NEW YORK CITY, Architects.

And this fact applies not only to New York City but to every city in the United States and Canada.

And the most important factor, in fixing the choice of the Architect or Owner on a Kewanee Smokeless, is its proven ability to reduce fuel bills.

We invite an opportunity of demonstrating to you, in buildings in your own locality, to extent to which a Kewanee Smokeless Boiler will reduce fuel costs.

AUCTION SALES OF WEEK.

Except where otherwise stated, the properties offered were in foreclosure. Adjournments of legal sales to next week are noted under Advertised Legal Sales.

* Indicates that the property described was bid in for the plaintiff's account.

The Auction Market.

Offerings of the Wolf Kronethal Estate at voluntary sale, by Joseph P. Day, attracted a large crowd to the Vesey Street Exchange Salesroom this week. It was the occasion of the first Special Sales Day of the year, and Mr. Day optimistically predicted a change for the better in the real estate market. Outside buyers acquired a number of the Kronethal offerings. Irving Baum paid $56,300 for the tenement at the northwest corner of Rivington and Forsyth streets. The southwest corner of Suffolk and Houston streets went to Rachel Frank for $46,300. Other buyers were Henry and Max Greensberger, who bought the dwelling 37 West 89th street for $24,000, and R. L. Weaver, who obtained the frame building, 350 West 44th street, for $16,300.

Modern Improvements

Isn't it true that ofttimes some small modern improvement goes a long way towards selling and renting your houses?

Take for example the plan that has recently been adopted by some builders of placing in newly built apartment houses electric washing machines and outlets in the kitchen for electric ironing and cooking.

Does any one doubt, all other things being equal, that these apartments are the ones that will be sold or rented first?

Families of today are educated to demand the comforts and conveniences of electric service, and they are quick to see the advantage of living in an apartment that will minimize the drudgery of housekeeping.

We have other ideas along these same lines. Drop us a line and we will talk them over with you.

PLANNING A BANK BUILDING

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for The American Real Estate Co.

WHETHER bank buildings should be erected for the exclusive occupancy of the owning institution, or whether a structure should be built, containing space from which revenue can be obtained is a question which has been widely discussed.

There usually is a difference of opinion among the directors on this question, some favoring the exclusive structure, reasoning that the dignity and aloofness will add materially to the prestige of the bank, and will be well worth the sacrifice. Those on the other hand, who differ on this opinion, believe that the larger building, properly constructed on a promising site in the city, will add a great deal more to the prestige of the bank, from the fact that the building itself thus becomes a factor in the commercial life to the city, a point of interest to be shown with pride to visitors, and the building itself becomes a community interest to the hundreds of tenants contained therein, while the bank is advertised far and wide through the entire world, through the thousands of pieces of literature, whether they be advertising letters or what not, that go promiscuously to all parts of the civilized world every day; and again the hundreds of visitors, be they strangers or residents of the city, are visiting this building and talking of it many times during the year.

Again, it becomes a point of interest from the matter of location, and in directing people to certain localities during the day, many people refer to it as near such and such a bank building.

It must be conceded, therefore, that from an advertising point alone, the larger building is well worth the consideration. It is reasonable to suppose, and past experience proves it to be a fact, that the accessibility of a bank to an office, determines the depository of many firms. It is inevitable that both the tenants, and the patrons of tenants, will be strongly influenced to patronize the bank for all the various services it may extend, such as deposits, collections, insurance, trusteeship, and safety deposit boxes. The close communion of interest secured in this way by the bank with its patrons and tenants adds materially to the safety and confidence between them. It also gives the bank an opportunity to keep in closer touch with the business of the concern whose office is located in their own building, thereby presenting opportunities for assistance and help that money cannot buy.

It would be folly to dwell in this day and age on the safety of a bank contained in an office building. In years past this question might have been a factor, but that period is passed into the long deep night of mistakes.

One thing must be kept in mind, however, that it be assumed that the proposed location is suitable for the erection of a combination building; that it is a corner one, except in very large cities, and that plenty of light, air, convenience and view are obtainable, and that there is demand in that particular locality for office space.

The Only Problem.

Under the above assumption all the preceding factors causing a difference of opinion can be eliminated, and the problem reduced quickly and easily to a financial one, calculated from the dollars and cents standpoint, the economy and advisability in erecting a combination bank and office building in preference to the single and exclusive structure.

Taking into consideration all of the factors entering into the construction of both buildings, including cost of ground, cost of building, taxes, insurance, operating expenses and all the other items involved, the attached table, calculated on the basis of actual practice, shows conclusively that the combination building is the more practical from a commercial and financial point of view.

The final figures show the approximate cost per square foot, that the twelve-story building involves less than one-third as much expenditure per square foot as the exclusive bank building; and the twenty-story building costs less than one-fourth of the exclusive bank building. It also must be assumed that the office building is to be erected under the direction of a practical building manager, whose experience has taught him to beware of the architectural monstrosities many times imposed on the unsuspecting bank.

It is time that the building manager should come into his own, and it is being proved daily that the well informed and practical building manager of today is better equipped than the architect, through practical knowledge and experience, to decide the many preliminary questions incident to the erection of an office building.

The architect, however, should not bear the blame. His field covers too wide a range for him to specialize on any particular class or kind of construction, and even though he were able to devote considerable time and knowledge to specializing, on this one particular class of building, his lack of knowledge in the renting and operation of office buildings would make it difficult for him to produce the high-class and efficient building demanded by tenants of today.

Not only must the building manager be fully equipped with a thorough and definite knowledge of the renting situation in that particular locality, but he must be closely familiar with all the details of operations and equipment necessary to give the highest class of service and convenience to its tenants, and the least annoyance and trouble to its employees in the operation and maintenance of such a building. The above figures are not mere estimates, but are based on actual statistics taken from present buildings constructed and now operated.

Comparative estimates showing costs per square foot on three different heights of buildings.

All on same size lot, 80 ft. x 150 ft., or 12,000 square feet.

STATE R. E. ASSOCIATION.

Will Not Introduce a License Law This Year—Meetings Scheduled.

The next meeting of the Real Estate Association of the State of New York will be held at Syracuse February 15. A smoker of the New York City members of the association will be held on Lincoln's Birthday eve at which Controller Prendergast will be the guest of honor.

It was the sense of the executive committee when it met at Albany last Saturday that it would be inadvisable at this time to try to obtain the enactment of a law licensing real estate brokers, and it was decided that an effort should be made to evolve some plan in the nature of that adopted by the State Bar Association whereby results aimed at by a licensing law could be obtained without a license fee.

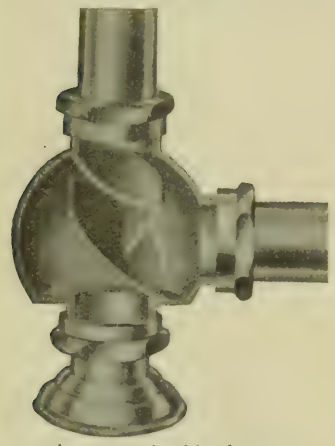
A special committee, consisting of De Lancey M. Ellis, of Albany; Allan Robinson, of Manhattan; John F. James, of Brooklyn; Fenton M. Parke, of Buffalo, and S. T. Betts, of Syracuse, was appointed to develop the plan and scope of the constitutional convention committee and to arrange for meetings under the auspices of the association at Albany during the sessions of the constitutional convention next spring.

John F. James, of Brooklyn, was appointed chairman of a committee to report on steps necessary for the proper regulation of real estate appraisals.

It was decided to amend the constitution to allow other organizations to affiliate with the state association. The necessary amendments were approved, and a meeting of the association will be held in New York City on February 23 to act on them.

Large Concrete Floor Panels.

The floor panels of the Ford Motor Company's assembling plant at Portland, Ore., are said to be about the largest ever used in a floor of the mushroom type. Plans for the building were filed with the building inspector's office about a month ago and show a 3-story building, 75 x 300 ft., of reinforced concrete built on the Acme flat-slab system. The slabs are to be 27 by 28 in., 11 in. thick, with some special slabs 20 and 22 in. thick.



USEFUL APPLIANCES

Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration

A Novel Type of Bath Trap.

NEW things are constantly coming out in the plumbing and steam fitting line that seem destined sooner or later to revolutionize plumbing. One of these is shown in the accompanying illustration. It is known as the Diamond globe trap and is made by the A. Y. McDonald Company of Dubuque, Iowa.

It has a much better appearance in the job than the old style and is more convenient to work with when stoppage occurs. A perfect seal is maintained by the water coming down the tub soil and upon reaching the space below the connecting ring, it is swirled to one side where a well is maintained to keep the gases out of the room. The overflow is taken care of by gravity. In this type of trap valuable articles, like rings, that often slip down the drain are caught and retained, regardless of the suddy condition of the water being emitted.

Air Washers for Buildings.

AIR washers are a comparatively recent development in the mechanical equipment of buildings and even at present their use is confined to the more elaborate installations in such structures as office buildings, schools, hospitals, etc. The high cost of the usual types of air washers, in addition to their costly operation, has been one of the principal limitations to their wide adoption.

For this reason, special interest attaches to a type of rotary air washer which has been perfected by the Wells & Newton Company, of New York, engineers and contractors for the mechanical equipment of buildings. This apparatus is known as the Kingwelton Rotary Air Washer. A 50,000 cubic feet purifier requires but one horsepower.

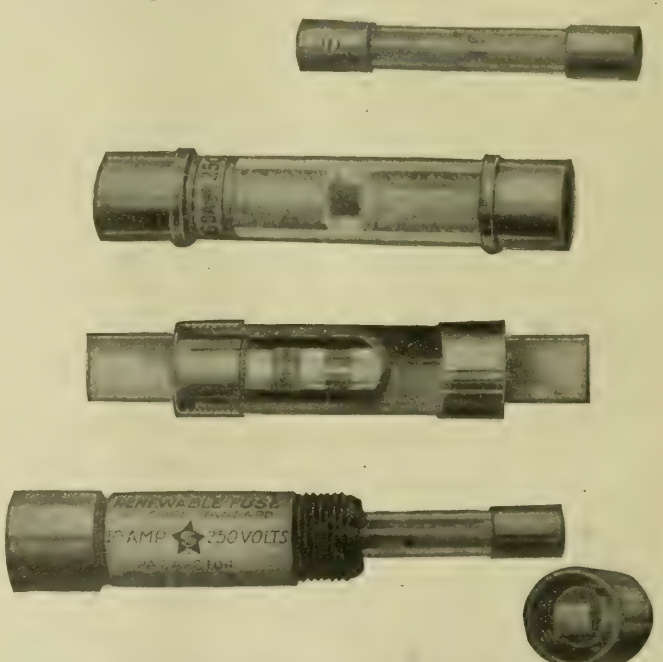
The principal feature of the Kingwelton Rotary Air Washer is a revolving drum, encased with an imported fabric of suitable mesh and weave. The drum revolves through a water bath at any desired speed. The covering of the drum is of special linen burlap, coarsely woven from a hard fibre, the mesh being seven strands to the inch. The openings are accordingly ⅛-inch square. In operation, as the burlap passes through the water bath it becomes covered with a thin veil of water through which the air passes, the impurities and other particles being deposited on the outer surface of the fibre. These are washed off as the drum revolves through the water chamber.

The washer is operated by a direct-connected motor which drives the gear wheels on the shaft of the cylinder.

Eliminators may be used or not with this type of air washer. As to controlling the humidity of the air, the manufacturers state that this can be accomplished by equipping the water chamber with steam coils, thus heating the water as required. Further regulation is obtained by varying the speed of the drum. Ordinarily, however, the drum revolves at the rate of one revolution a minute.

The practice of heating the water to secure humidifying effects may be reversed when it is desired to cool the air by using cold water in the water chamber.

As to its efficiency, a substantial test was made at the Pennsylvania Railroad Station, Pittsburgh, Pa., by the railroad company, where the local air is heavily filled with carbon from coal, and this washer removed 99 per cent. of the impurities, depositing the carbon in the bottom of the tank for removal.



Renewable Cartridge Fuse.

SOMETHING of an innovation in fuse plugs is being introduced by the Star Fuse Company of 448 Broome street, which has recently advised the trade that the device has been approved by the National Board of Fire Underwriters and the Department of Gas, Water Supply and Electricity.

According to the manufacturers, this is a radical departure from the ordinary fuse construction. While it is primarily a standard cartridge fuse the fuse element is constructed as a complete fuse within itself, making it possible when a fuse blows out to replace only that part that is actually destroyed, while the outer brass caps and fibre shell is saved and can be used over again. This insures a saving of a considerable amount.

Glancing at the illustration it will be seen that each of these fuses consists of an inner cartridge made up of a fuse wire wrapped by a filler of two sheets of asbestos and enclosed in a glass tube having brass end caps to which the fuse wire is soldered and which are cemented to the glass tube. A small space is maintained between the two asbestos sheets to act as an indicator. When the fuse blows this space becomes blackened. This complete fuse or inner cartridge is enclosed in a holder consisting of a fibre tube threaded at each end and with threaded brass end caps which are provided with inner spring clips to hold securely the inner cartridge and insure positive electrical contact.

Renewal of the fuse element can be accomplished easily and quickly. It is necessary merely to unscrew either end cap, pull out and discard the blown inner element and replace the outer cap. They are made up in standard ratings and standard code dimensions.

1—Renewable fuse element of 10 amperes. 2—Renewable fuse element of 60 amperes. 3—Knife-blade fuse with partial section of end cap and shell to shown construction. 4—Fusewith end cap removed and element exposed.

An Electric Radiator.

HERE is an electric radiator, just like any other radiator, except that it is its own unit and heat is generated by electricity. It was designed by P. F. Apfel, of Apfel & Jensen, engineers and contractors, Seattle. One advantage of this device is that it can be operated by a button at the end of a flexible cord running to a point convenient to the bed, thereby assuring a warm room on arising in the morning.

Automatic thermostatic regulation of the system enables one to leave home for any length of time during the severest winter weather with the assurance that the home will remain at just the temperature desired. It is not necessary to leave careless and unreliable servants in charge. Each radiator is a separate heating plant, entirely independent of any other radiator or part of the system. It does not depend upon storage tanks, delicately balanced valves or distributing pipes. The electric companies are beginning to appreciate the great volume of business to be had in electric heating and are adjusting rates accordingly. It can be used on either direct or alternating current, supplied by the electric companies at low rates.

Every possible variation of any desired temperature may be obtained in all of the rooms together, or such variations of entirely different temperature in each room may be obtained by the mere pressing of a button or the movement of a needle. Wherever the temperature is decreased the cost is instantly decreased.

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

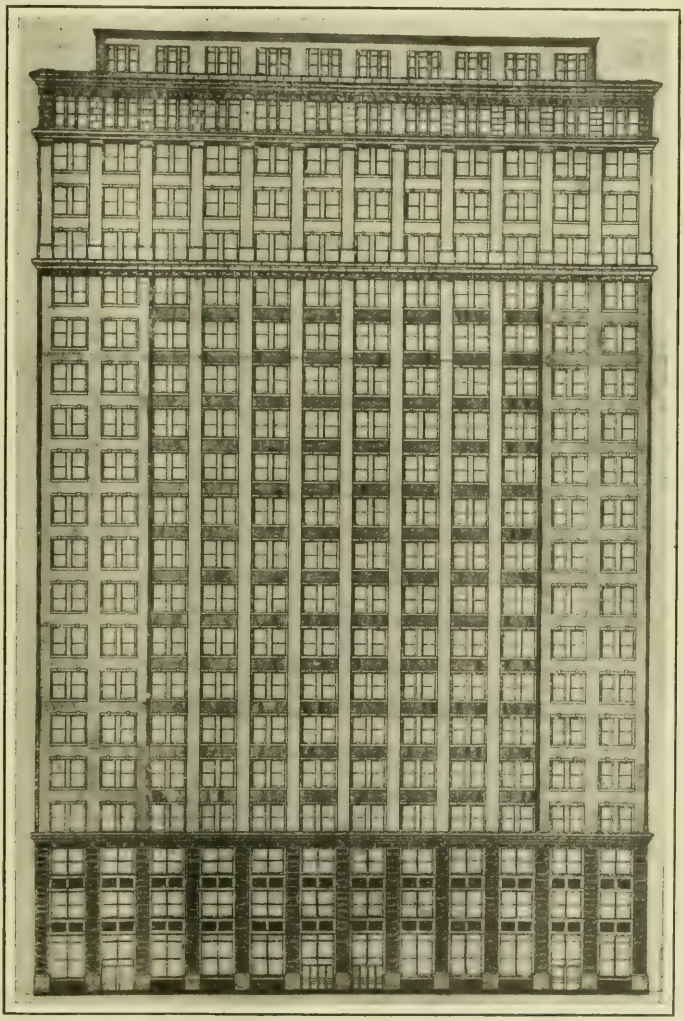
Large Printery Projected for Block Front on Eighth Avenue, Near Pennsylvania Station—Structure to Cost $2,500,000

FOR years leading firms in the printing and allied trades have been talking about an ideal building which would accommodate under one roof all the leading firms representing every branch of the printing business and the machinery, ink and supply houses.

This desire is now to be realized in a 22-story structure to be known as the Printing Crafts Building, to be erected on the block front on the west side of Eighth avenue, between 33rd and 34th streets, 197.6 by 120 feet, now occupied by the old six-story Haeger Storage Warehouse and two old private dwellings, altered for business. These buildings will be torn down May 1, 1915, when existing leases expire, and construction will begin immediately. It is expected to complete this structure about January 1, 1916.

The Brett & Goode Company, agents for the new building, reports that negotiations are practically completed for the leasing for 21 years of the 34th street corner store in the new building to the Chelsea Exchange Bank, which recently added an annex at No. 264 West 34th street. Negotiations are also under way for the leasing of all of the remaining floors in the building, one firm to take the three entire upper floors. The building will have a carrying weight of 250 pounds to the square foot and space is being held at 60 cents a square foot gross lot measurement, 24,000 square feet.

It is planned to fill the building with representatives of all the lines that go to make up the origination, manufacture, sale and display of printed matter in every form so that a buyer may find under one roof samples and nearly all grades and makes of paper, printing inks, machinery used in printing, lithographing and binding and advertising matter of every description as well as books, pamphlets and magazines.



The 21st floor of the new building is designed for use as a restaurant and luncheon club for the printing trades. This floor will be set back from the main wall leaving a broad promenade on four sides. The side walls of the roof and restaurant will be mainly of glass so that they may be opened in warm weather to give free sweep to the breeze and so that in cold weather the diners may have an unobstructed view. Owing to the great height of the building, 350 feet above the street level, it will command a view not only of all of Manhattan Island, but also of New Jersey, Long Island and Westchester County and the New York Bay. The new structure will have unobstructed light on four sides.

The facade will be of granite, on three sides, up to the fourth floor; above that plain gray face brick with band courses of fine white terra cotta at the 4th and 17th floors and a substantial balustrade above the 20th floor. All the roof tanks will be enclosed and on the 22nd floor, above the restaurant, will be erected photograph galleries and studios for the use of certain tenants.

A great deal of time and thought has been expended on the plans by the architect, Edward L. Larkin of No. 259 West 34th street and the renting agents, Brett & Goode Co., in order that the building may adapt itself to the requirements of big printing houses as well as to machinery and supply firms. Great care has been given to the column spacing, the distribution of elevators, stairways, toilets, etc., in order that no space should be wasted and that office tenants could be accommodated as well as those who actually prepare printed matter. Practically all the improvements have been grouped in the center of the floors in compact array. This arrangement permits the sub-division into small or large offices without loss of space for long halls or the isolation of parts of the floor. In sub-divided floors a continuous hall will surround all the elevators, stairways and wash rooms which form a rectangle in the center of the building. All the offices will open directly on this single hall, a feature which probably is not found in any of the large buildings in town. The ground floor will be cut up into stores.

The land is valued at $1,000,000 and the building is designed to cost upwards of $2,500,000. The total rental is expected to exceed the sum of $350,000 per annum.

The passenger entrance will be in the center of the Eighth avenue front. Flanking it will be 6 passenger elevators with a speed of 500 feet a minute. There will be 6 large freight elevators, each about 7x12 feet in size and designed to carry six thousand to eight thousand pounds a piece at a speed of three hundred feet per minute. There will be a very large freight hall with entrances on both 33rd and 34th streets at the west flanks of the building. A mezzanine will cover this freight hall in order to provide additional space for the store tenants.

Eighth Ave., 33d and 34th Sts. Edward L. Larkin, Architect

PROPOSED PRINTING CRAFTS' BUILDING.

Plans for the building were filed last Tuesday by Edward L. Larkin, as architect, For Archibald D. Russell and Marie Campbell, as owners. Mr. Russell at present holds title to the Eighth avenue block front, 197.6x100, which he bought from Robert E. Dowling in May 1906, for about $725,000. No. 303 West 33rd street and No. 302 West 34th street, which go to make up the balance of the site, stand in the names of Margery S.

Ruttman and Cornelius F. Sheehan, respectively.

Contracts of purchase were signed with all of these owners previous to the filing of the plans and title will be taken soon under the name of the 461 Eighth Avenue Realty Company, which will be made up of Thomas A. and Edward L. Larkin and other interests.

DIVIDING UP THE WORK.

Resolutions Adopted by the Building Trades Employers' Association.

I hope that the big industries will look out for their workingmen, remembering that the chief need now is not for charity, but for work, and incidentally I hope that instead of cutting the rate of wages they will cut hours and employ as many men as possible on half time, rather than half that number on full time—Theodore Roosevelt.

At a general meeting of the Building Trades Employers' Association on Tuesday afternoon, President Crawford in the chair, addresses were delivered by City Chamberlain Bruere and members of the Mayor's Committee on Unemployment in advocacy of measures for the relief of the unemployed in the building trades. The following resolutions were then offered by Otto N. Eidlitz, of Marc Eidliz & Son:

"The Building Trades Employers' Association in mass meeting assembled this day, January 26, 1915, recommends and urges that every firm and corporation carry out to the fullest extent the following resolutions, to the end that the unemployment now existing in the building industry shall be ameliorated as far as possible:

"1. That the building industry should patronize to the greatest extent practicable the local manufactories and shops for the purchase of building materials at this time.

"2. That the work now available on buildings be distributed among the largest number of individuals practicable by working part of the eight-hour work day in shifts, or one shift the one week and one shift the next week alternately as far as is possible, consistent with the nature of the work.

"3. That when it becomes necessary to lay off men, preference of employment shall be given to the married men."

SUBWAY AWARDS.

Commissioners Announce Damages on Sixty-one Parcels in Joralemon Street.

The commissioners of appraisal appointed to assess the damages to property in Joralemon street, Fulton street and Flatbush avenue, caused by the construction of the Interborough subway from the Battery to Brooklyn, have disposed of the last claim for damages from property owners along Joralemon street, and are now ready to consider claims of the property owners along Fulton street and Flatbush avenue.

The commissioners, Hermanus B. Hubbard, T. J. Raymond and T. Ellett Hodgskin, have completed their "seventh separate report," disposing of the claims of the owners of sixty-one parcels of land along Joralemon street.

The Packer Collegiate Institute, at 160 to 182 Joralemon street, is awarded $15,000. For the Temple Bar Building, at 44 Court street, $5,000.

The total amount of damages awarded on the sixty-one parcels amounts to $188,032, not including the $1 that is awarded to each property holder as remuneration for the land in the street to which the city took title to enable it to construct the subway. The taxpayers have been paying interest at the rate of 6 per cent. a year on this sum for a period of twelve and a half years.

The highest award is $37,050, to Winston H. Hagen, owner of the property at 103 Joralemon street. William Augustus White receives $20,000 for damages to the Riverside apartment property in Joralemon street, between Furman street and Willow place. The estate of Daniel Fitzgibbons is awarded $8,000 for the damages to the property at 1 Willow place, and the damage to the house of the late Bishop Littlejohn, at 179 Joralemon street, is appraised at $1,775.

ACTIVITY AT POUGHKEEPSIE.

Building Operations Are in a Satisfactory State at Poughkeepsie.

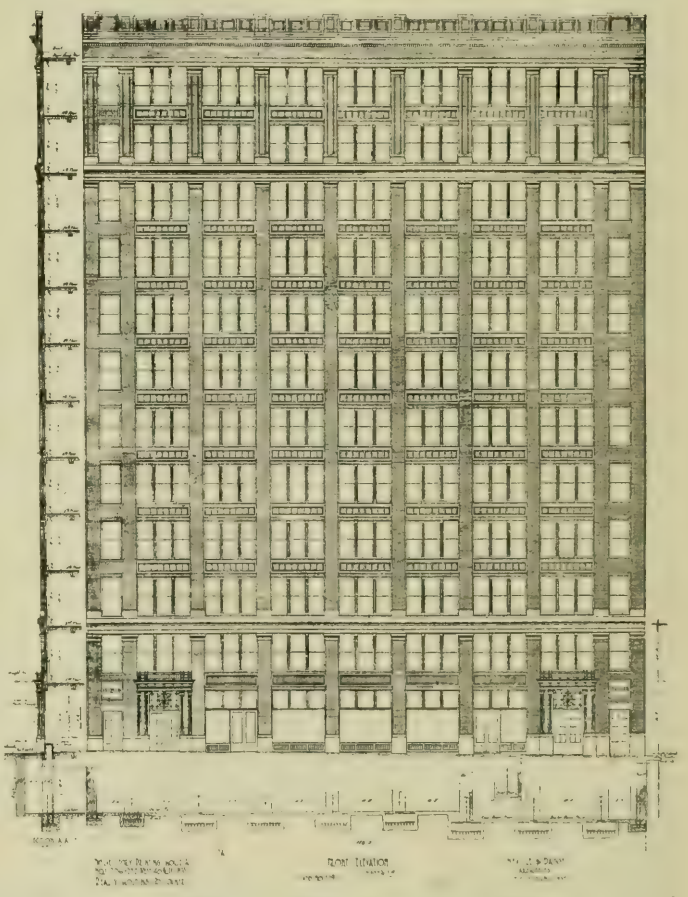
During the year 1913, the building permits issued represented $1,204,175, while those for 1914 total up $863,108, leaving a difference of $341,067 in favor of 1913. The difference is nearly offset by the cost of the new buildings erected by the Moline Plow Company and the Cohen Theatre, these two operations having cost approximately $318,000. During the year a total of 164 permits were granted, as against 208 of 1913. Provision was made for 298 families, while in 1913 provision was made for 266 families. More stores and business properties were erected in 1914 than in any previous year. The prospect for 1915 is reported to be bright.

For a New Borough Hall at Queens.

The Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce of the Borough of Queens adopted a resolution at its meeting on Thursday, urging the corporate stock committee of the Board of Estimate to take favorable action on the request of Borough President Connolly for an appropriation of $200,000 for the purchase of a site for the erection of a new borough hall for the Borough of Queens.

Plans for Hanover Square Building.

Alexander Baylies, 33 Bible House, is completing plans for the twenty-story mercantile building to be erected in the south side of Hanover Square, between Stone and Pearl street, for George Ehret, 235 East 92nd street. The site measures 71.7 feet in the square, 123.1 feet in Pearl street and 114.5 feet in Stone street. The cost of the operation is placed at $1,100,000. No engineer has yet been selected nor any contracts issued.



Competitive Sketches Wanted.

The Board of Education of Highland Park, Middlesex County, Postoffice address New Brunswick, New Jersey, will receive competitive sketches at once for two four-room school houses, to be so designed that they may at a future date be enlarged or converted into eight-room schools. The cost not to exceed $20,000 each.

Loft Building for Eldridge Street.

Morris Kulok, tailor, 39 Eldridge street, contemplates the erection of a six-story business building at 39-41 Eldridge street, covering a plot 50.3x100 feet. Max Muller, of 115 Nassau street, will probably prepare the plans. Work will be started this spring.

LATEST LOFT IN WEST 40TH STREET

AMONG the new business structures announced during the week to be constructed in the midtown section is the twelve-story store and loft building which the Realty Holding Company, of 907 Broadway (Nathaniel J. Hess president, Edwin H. Hess secretary) will erect at 206 to 222 West 40th street. Plans are being rapidly completed by the architects, Neville & Bagge, of 105 West 40th street, who will take full charge of construction. The building will be 128.3 by 98.9 feet in depth and is being designed especially for heavy loads, such as printing and lithographing establishments require to carry a live load of 250 pounds per square foot. It will be equipped with two passenger and three freight elevators, in addition to three interior staircases, and will be absolutely fireproof; that is, without any exposed wood being used in the construction, with cement floors and fireproof doors and windows. The front will be faced with granite, terra cotta and pressed front brick. The cost is specified at $600,000. No contracts have yet been placed.

The Pending Elevator Ordinance.

A campaign against the Elevator ordinance now pending in the Board of Aldermen is being carried on by W. E. D. Stokes, with the assistance of the hotel men's association, by means of letters and circulars. Meanwhile the list of elevator safety devices intended to accomplish the purpose called for by Section 10 of the proposed Elevator ordinance has been augmented by three devices, all of which are in operation in New York City. Two of these devices are electric, and one of them is in daily and successful operation in six large buildings. The third device is awaiting the issuance of a patent, and is in operation in one of the most important Wall street buildings. The list of buildings in which these safety devices have been installed, and that without reference to the ordinance, but merely as a proper precaution against preventable accidents, has grown from twenty-five to fifty, including a few in process of installation.

Whitney Company Awarded Contract.

A general contract for the erection of a private residence at 11 East 95th street for Mrs. E. S. Fabbri was awarded this week to the Whitney Company, 1 Liberty street. The plans and specifications for this house were prepared by Grosvenor Atterbury, architect, 131 East 70th street. The house will be of brick with limestone trimmings and will be four stories in height with basement and sub-basement. It will cover a plot 90x62 feet and will cost over $125,000.

New Apartments for Jersey City.

Maximilian Zipkes, 405 Lexington avenue, Manhattan, has been commissioned to prepare plans and supervise the construction of a high class apartment house in the middle west side section of Jersey City, to cost about $150,000. The building will measure 150x100 feet and will accommodate forty-five families. The Zermann Realty & Construction Company is the owner.

What Architects Call For

An office building designed for architects means the last word in construction and service detail. Such is the case with the "Architects' Building" at 101 Park Avenue. It stands for office perfection—and since the time of its opening it has depended on Central Station Service

The men back of the enterprise took no chances. They knew the only perfect electrical supply; and they knew! that their tenants knew. If you are facing an electrical service problem, think this over. Your phoned or written request for estimates will receive the painstaking attention of our engineering experts

JANUARY DEVELOPS $16,546,695 IN GROSS LIVE PROJECTS AS AGAINST $9,426,792 IN 1914 AND $8,158,395 IN 1913

Big Plan Filing Movement Makes Builders Optimistic—Market Strong

SURVEYS made of leading architects' offices in Manhattan, Bronx, Queens and East Jersey this week showed:

1. Money is easier.
2. Deferred plans are being figured.
3. Approximately $16,500,000 in building projects are actually under way in New York alone.
4. About $1,891,300 is current in new East Jersey plan figuring.
5. A definite disposition is developing among builders to take advantage of present prices before cold weather forces brick, stone, gravel and crushed stone upward.
6. There is an improving call for skilled union labor in the building trades.
7. Building material agents are deferring their usual midwinter vacations because of expected favorable changes in the local building material situation.
8. Manufacturers have worked off their reserve stocks, have completed inventories and are ready to base market prices on current manufacturing cost.

In the money market interest rates are unchanged, but more brokers have available funds for building investment, hence the premiums are not so high as they have been. The slump in steel stock has helped to strengthen the mortgage market.

There was on January 1 approximately $50,000,000 represented in deferred building construction work in the district. The fact that $5,391,300, or 10.7 per cent. has been released since the first of the year, in addition to the $11,555,195 represented in plan filings for new operations since the first of the year including the $2,500,000 industrial building in Pennsylvania station zone reported this week tells its own story.

Dodge reports reflect the same upward tendency practically everywhere east of the Mississippi. Commercial report companies, like Bradstreets, also look for a marked improvement in building construction. January's national report will show at least a narrowing of the per cent. decrease from December's figures.

Salesmen for big material distributing concerns, like Sayre & Fisher and others, are cancelling their usual mid-winter vacation trips in anticipation of possible sudden changes in market requirements.

This is one of the most significant features of the market to-day. It concerns itself with the fact that reserve stocks in most mills have been worked to a low level. The advent of cold weather may immediately change the tenor of the brick, lime, plaster and quarrying markets, all of which are being carried in low stock here now with low stocks at manufacturing centers. This is particularly true of lumber. Producers are holding back to help distributors here get nearer to list quotations.

New building plan filings in January of last year totalled $9,428,792. This January the total estimated value was $11,555,395. The amount for January, 1913, was only $7,662,173. Adding the $5,391,300 in deferred building plans now actually under way to the actual plan filings for the month just closed we have a grand total of $16,546,695 in live current building operations.

Plan filings for new buildings in the corresponding week in last year were 121 with an estimated value of $1,792,337, a mark considerably below that for the current week just closed.

IRON AND STEEL.

Trade Giving a Better Account of Itself as Building Improves.

STRUCTURAL steel at Waverly is quoted at 1.85c. This is for plates and shapes. Structural bars are listed at 1.80c. These are the prices that specifying architects are being quoted now. The price is steady to firm with a tendency to move up as spring advances.

Pig iron is reported to be in better tone. There were no advances over the previous week. Neither were there any declines. Bars in Philadelphia and Chicago moved up, however, but they dropped in Pittsburgh.

NEW JERSEY EXHIBIT.

Participants in Newark Museum Display of Clay Products Announced.

JOHN COTTON DANA, secretary and director of the Newark Museum Association, has announced the names of the following firms which will be exhibitors in the clay products exhibition to be held at the Newark Public Library, in February and March:

American Clay Products Company, South River, Middlesex County; American Enameled Brick and Tile Company, South River, Middlesex County; American Encaustic Tiling Company, 16 East 40th st, New York City, plant, Middlesex County; Atlantic Terra Cotta Company, Perth Amboy, plant, Middlesex County; Atlantic Terra Cotta Company, Rocky Hill, plant, Somerset County; Jonathan Bartley Crucible Company, plant, Trenton, Mercer County; C. W. Boynton, Inc., Sewaren, Middlesex County; Camden Pottery Company, Camden, Camden County; Cook Pottery Company, Trenton, Mercer County; Crescent Brick Company, Red Bank, Monmouth County; Didier March Company, Perth Amboy, Middlesex County; Ford's Porcelain Works, plant, 113 Gordon street, Perth Amboy; Fulper Potter Company, Flemington, Hunterdon County; J. E. Gautier & Company, Jersey City, Hudson County; German American Stoneware Works, Hudson Terminal Building, N. Y. C., Middlesex County.

Emil Grossman Manufacturing Company, Trenton, Mercer County, 651 Brunswick avenue; National Fire Proofing Company, Perth Amboy, Middlesex County, offices, Flatiron Building, N. Y. C.; National Fire Proofing Company, plant, Lorillard, Middlesex County, Fulton Building, Pittsburgh, Pa.; National Fire Proofing Company, Keasby, Middlesex County, office, Fulton Building, Pittsburgh, Pa.; National Fire Proofing Company, Woodbridge, Middlesex County, Fulton Building, Pittsburgh, Pa.; National Fire Proofing Company, Port Murray, Warren County, Fulton Building, Pittsburgh, Pa.; National Fire Proofing Company, plant, Keyport, Monmouth County; New Jersey Company, plant Monmouth County, Room 2724 Whitehall Building, 17 Battery Place, N. Y. C.; New Jersey Terra Cotta Company, Perth Amboy, Middlesex County offices, 2 Catherine street; New York Clay Products Company, Warren County, 1 Madison avenue, N. Y. C.; Pardee Works, Perth Amboy, Middlesex County, Market street; C. L. & E. C. Poillon, Woodbridge, Middlesex County; Ritger's Excelsior Pottery, Newark, Essex County, 495 Fifth street.

Sayre & Fisher Company, Sayreville, Middlesex County; South Amboy Terra Cotta Company, South Amboy, Middlesex County, 150 Nassau street, N. Y. C.

Standard Sanitary Pottery Company, Elizabeth, Union County, 1122 Elizabeth avenue; Star Porcelain Company, Trenton, Mercer County, Muirheid street; Strait & Richards, Inc., Fabyan place and Selvage street, Newark, N. J.; Trent Tile Company, Trenton, Mercer County, Klaess avenue; The Trenton Potteries Company, Trenton, Mercer County, 309-11 North Clinton avenue; M. D. Valentine & Brothers Company, Woodbridge, Middlesex County; Walter K. Watson Yorkstown, N. J.; Woodbridge Pottery Company, Poillon Pottery, Woodbridge, Middlesex County, Rahway avenue; Lenox, Inc., Trenton, Mercer County, Mead & Prince streets; John Maddock & Sons, Trenton, Mercer County, Muirheid street; Matawan Tile Company, Matawan, Monmouth County; Mercer Pottery Company, Trenton, Mercer County, 30 Muirheid street; Mueller Mosaic Company, Trenton, Mercer County, Cedar and William streets; Thomas Maddock Sons Company, Trenton, Mercer County, 106 Ewing street.

REMARKABLE BRICK HANDLING.

John P. Kane Co. Rides 3,500,000 Brick to Job Under Difficulty.

ONE of the most remarkable performances in the way of brick handling in winter weather was finished on December 15, when the John P. Kane Company finished riding approximately 3,500,000 Sayre & Fisher brick from the dock to the Brooklyn Hospital, at Dekalb ave and Raymond street. Considering the time of the year, this is a noteworthy record in efficiency in this particular line of endeavor. The riding was difficult, even under ordinary circumstances, but a hampering influence was the fact as at times the streets were icy and others the temperature extremely low, making it hard on horses as well as teamsters. The work was handled by J. H. Saunders, superintendent for the John P. Kane Company, from barges brought down the Raritan River and the Kill Von Kull across the Upper Bay to Brooklyn docks. The first cart was loaded on November 1 and the last of the 3,500,000 brick were delivered, at the job, on December 15.

LUMBER.

Outlook for the Year Fundamentally Sound.

"SUPERFICIALLY, the outlook for 1915, in the lumber business, is not encouraging, but fundamentally the indications are that it is to be a year of greatest real development the lumber business has ever known," according to R. B. Goodman, widely known as a national authority on the lumber situation. He said:

"Trade conditions during the last six months by their cumulative effect have at least brought the lumberman to a realizing sense of the problems that confront the lumber industry. It is forcing him to stop waste. This means less price cutting."

COMMON BRICK.

Cold Weather Keeps Market Stiff at New Levels.

COLD weather has put common brick at ease on the new price level. The unloading movement this week was hampered by rain, but sales were good at the wholesale docks. Builders were more inclined to take advantage of current prices, although stacking is not being done to any great extent. There is little prospect of much brick being sold below $6 before long. It is not quite so easy to find brick at $5.75. More of it is being sold at $5.87½. The general run of the market, however, in both Hudsons and Raritans is closer to $6 than to any other figure. Brick being sold at $6.25 is of a special grade, representing isolated cargoes and are not by any means the market price. If the demand for basic material increases in the coming week as it developed this week buyers may expect to pay a shilling over the present base price if not more.

Fire brick interests are reporting a heavy call from cement plants, indicating that there is a widespread renovation movement. There is a big business developing in steel and iron foundries. A Brooklyn firm said its business in fire brick was heavier than it had been in two years. Most of it is for stack and kiln lining. There is some export business developing in fire brick and fire clay. The Krupp interests in Germany have been in New Jersey market.

Official transactions for Hudson River brick covering the week ending Thursday, Jan. 28, in the wholesale market, with comparison for the corresponding period last year and a comparative statement of Hudson brick unloaded from barges for consumption here, follows:

REAL ESTATE RECORD AND BUILDERS GUIDE.

NEW LABOR LAWS MENACE REAL ESTATE

Real Estate Board Objects to the Larger Powers Conferred Upon the State Industrial Board, and Denounces Safety Agitators

A LARGE part of the present Labor Law, and particularly its fire-prevention provisions, was enacted in response to the cries and demands of a hysterical part of the populace after an awful fire calamity, which would probably never occur again even if no laws were passed.

The far-reaching effect of this law, and its broad and unreasonable requirements, were hardly even discussed, the conservative element of the community being afraid to plead for a modification, knowing that the alarmists had created such an atmosphere that the Legislature dared not refuse to approve any measure or demand regardless of the motive or reason for it.

As a result we have a labor law which goes far beyond the rational requirements of the situation. To say that the law is absurd, ridiculous, unreasonable, unwarranted, irrational, confiscatory, reactionary and even harmful to the laboring classes themselves, would be characterizing it very mildly.

The community, settled down to its general calm condition now appreciates that the law passed during the excitement are unnecessary to accomplish the protection desired, and that they affect disastrously both labor and business. Therefore it is demanding that the laws be made logical and reasonable.

Should Ignore Safety Agitators.

Now, if it is the desire of the State Factory Investigating Commission to revise the labor laws and make them sane and treat both labor and business men impartially, it should ignore the clamorings of the so-called safety agitators, recommend that Home Rule prevail and that cities of the first class, which have established efficient building bureaus, be exempted from the provisions of the law in reference to the construction, alteration and structural changes in buildings.

It is an unquestionable and undeniable fact that such bureaus understand building conditions in their respective cities much better than any general State Department possibly can and that they know the needs of the people of the community more intimately than a Legislature which is composed of members who come from all parts of the State, and who are admittedly not conversant with the conditions existing in the different cities.

The absurdity of giving to the Department of Labor jurisdiction over building construction in New York City is fairly demonstrated by the fact that it sends all plans submitted to it to the local building bureaus for examination and approval and as to their conformity with all laws and ordinances, including the Labor Law. What argument can be made against giving the bureaus that do the actual work original jurisdiction, and thereby saving the needless expense of the round-about procedure, which accomplishes nothing; to say nothing of the useless loss of time and money occasioned our citizens.

The commission should also recommend:

SOME time ago the State Factory Investigating Commission issued "for criticism and suggestion" its revised recodification of the Labor Law. On Thursday last the Real Estate Board of New York forwarded to the commission its criticisms and suggestions prepared by George W. Olvany, counsel. This brief contains a general suggestion for changes in the law and a detailed analysis of the proposed recodification, embodying the changes which the Real Estate Board, after a year's experience of the workings of the law and analysis of complaints made to it by its members, believes to be essential. The statement given herewith is from the brief.

1. Reasonable definitions as to what shall be classed as factories, factory buildings and mercantile establishments.

2. The specific fixing of the duty and liability of the owner and lessee and not have one or the other made criminally liable for matters concededly not under his control.

3. Common sense provisions for fire escapes, ventilation, dressing-rooms and interior stairways, etc.

4. That agents be not made criminally liable for the failure of the landlord or lessee to comply with the law. Such a provision would be unjustifiable in view of the fact that in almost every instance the agent is simply authorized to collect rents, or lease the property, and to do nothing more.

It is a fundamental principle of law that an agent can only legally do what he is authorized to do by his principal. To provide in a statute that an agent is criminally accountable if he does not violate his authority and commit a trespass for which he would again be criminally as well as civilly liable, means that the real estate broker must quit business unless he wants to go to jail and pay damages for trying to earn an honest living.

5. That appeals be allowed from orders of the department to a board with authority to modify them, if they are found to be unlawful or unreasonable.

6. That the Industrial Board should not have the right to make general rules which tend to extend the law. Such board could be given the power to adopt a special rule for a particular case to be based upon the facts as presented.

7. That not more than a given number of employees should be employed, instead of not less than a given number.

8. That fire-alarm signal systems should not be required in buildings equipped with an approved automatic sprinkler system.

9. That a reasonable time instead of a definite time should be allowed to comply with the department's orders.

10. That the civil penalty for a violation of the provisions of the law, or non-compliance with the department's orders should not exceed fifty dollars.

If the commission will treat with the subject as above outlined, we feel assured that much-improved labor, financial and business conditions will prevail, and that life and property will be fully safeguarded.

Amendments Proposed.

To deal specifically with the proposed revised recodification we suggest amendments as follows:

1. That New York City be exempted from all the provisions of the law which apply to the construction, alteration and structural changes in buildings, and that the Industrial Board have no power to make rules in reference to the same.

2. That the term "employee" mean a mechanic, workingman or laborer who works for another for hire in a factory or mercantile establishment.

The addition of the words "in a factory or mercantile establishment" would limit "employee" to those who are employed in those places and not include everybody who works in business places other than factories or mercantile places.

3. That the term "factory" be defined in the language of the Court of Appeals, viz:

"A factory is a structure or plant where something is made or manufactured from raw or partly wrought materials into forms suitable for use."

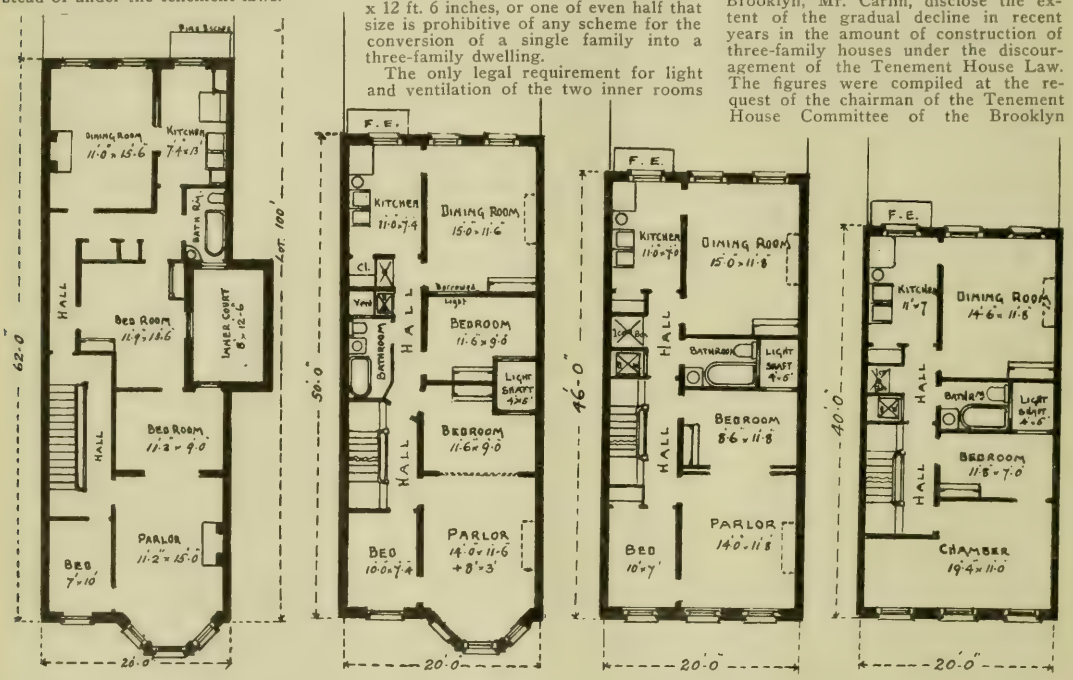
With the additional provision that any requirements of the law affecting structural changes and alterations and the installation of fixtures and apparatus should not apply to factories where less than fifteen persons are employed.

It seems unfair that the term "factory" should be so stretched as to become unrecognizable and include every conceivable business or occupation as is the apparent attempt now.

For instance: the insertion of the word "packing" in the law, under a strict construction, would include every retail and wholesale establishment in the State, irrespective as to whether any article was manufactured in those buildings.

The Industrial Board should not be given authority to make rules for structural changes and alterations, etc., where less than fifteen persons are employed, as they could arbitrarily defeat the intent of relieving the property owner from the burdensome provisions of this act, in that respect.

4. In the "factory building" section the same argument applies as to the provisions in reference to the Industrial Board.



5. That the term "mercantile establishment" be defined to mean "any place where goods, wares or merchandise are offered for sale at retail, and more than fifteen persons are employed."

The remainder of the board's statement to the commission is concerned with suggested changes, both as to substance and form, in a number of sections of the proposed recodification.

PRESSURE FOR TENEMENT LAW CHANGE

Many Large Private Dwellings in Brooklyn Would Be Altered and Made Marketable If the Law Permitted—Modifications Asked For

BROOKLYN business men are taking a decided stand in favor of obtaining modifications in the Tenement House Law that will countenance the remodeling of old-style private dwellings to meet modern city conditions; and they are also urging a change that will permit three-family houses to be erected under the Building Code instead of under the tenement laws.

PLAN A. PLAN B. PLAN C. PLAN D.

The Brooklyn Board of Brokers has the cooperation of numerous civic bodies in working for this change, and the Advisory Council has arranged a series of conferences with the purpose of reconciling the views of owners and builders on the one hand, and the special defenders of the law, on the other hand. Comprised in the Advisory Council's committee are Messrs. Frank Bailey, vice-president of the Title Guarantee & Trust Company; Edward C. Blum, of Abraham & Straus; Hon. William M. Calder, Frederick B. Pratt, Lawrence Veiller and Hon. Cyrus C. Miller. The chairman of the Brooklyn Real Estate Board's committee is A. J. Waldron.

Where the Law Interferes.

There is in Brooklyn an unfailing demand for pleasant flats and only a small inquiry for old-fashioned dwellings. The dwellings would do for three families if they could be remodeled. Why they cannot be remodeled under the present law, and why they should be in the opinion of many, is set forth below.

A main point to be considered in the proposed elimination of three-family houses from the Tenement House Law is the question of interior courts. The minimum size of an interior court under the law is 8 ft. x 12 ft. 6 inches, or in the case of adjoining buildings erected simultaneously such court may be divided equally between them, this giving an area of 4 ft. x 12 ft. 6 inches to each house.

This necessitates an additional 10 or 12 feet in the length of an ordinary 20-ft. front house, in order to give the same number of available rooms as could otherwise be had under the Building Code only, or than is provided every day in two-family houses.

The requirement of a brick court 8 ft. x 12 ft. 6 inches, or one of even half that size is prohibitive of any scheme for the conversion of a single family into a three-family dwelling.

The only legal requirement for light and ventilation of the two inner rooms of a two-family house, four rooms deep, is a 3 ft. x 5 ft. window. If that is sufficient for a two-story house, there certainly can be no adequate reason for requiring a court of the size given above merely for one additional story or family.

The diagrams submitted herewith were prepared by C. Whitley Mullin, of 189 Montague street, Brooklyn, former Secretary of the New York Society of Architects. They present (A) a typical three-family apartment house plan, 20 ft. x 62 ft., 6 rooms and bath, erected in Brooklyn under the Tenement House Law, as compared with (B) a plan of apartment 20 ft. x 50 ft., or 52 ft., giving practically the same accommodation as plan A. This is as the house might be built under the Code only, and substituting a 5 ft. x 4 ft. light shaft for the above mentioned inner court, which seems a fair allowance for the additional story. Mr. Mullin recollects that a 5 ft. x 4 ft. light and vent shaft was allowed under section 79 of the Tenement House Law, until said section was amended about three years ago.

At a conservative estimate a house built according to plan B would cost, Mr. Mullin says, about $1,150 less than by Plan A.

Plans C and D show what might be done in remodeling three-story dwellings, 20 ft. x 46 ft. and 20 ft. x 40 ft., and converting them into five and four-room flats, respectively, still retaining 5 ft. x 4 ft. light shaft in place of a brick court as above. The cost of work on Plan C would approximate $2,000, that on Plan D $1,800.

Official Statistics.

Figures which have been supplied by the Superintendent of Buildings in Brooklyn, Mr. Carlin, disclose the extent of the gradual decline in recent years in the amount of construction of three-family houses under the discouragement of the Tenement House Law. The figures were compiled at the request of the chairman of the Tenement House Committee of the Brooklyn Board of Real Estate Brokers, Mr. A. J. Waldron, and are as follows:

Year.	No. of Bldgs.	Estimated cost.
1903	63	356,600
1905	261	1,373,100
1906	508	2,580,700
1907	200	1,119,100
1908	106	581,800
1909	110	724,000
1910	300	1,659,350
Total, 10 years	2,061	$11,212,950
1912	119	713,200
	2,226	$12,208,700

Commenting upon the foregoing statistics, Chairman Waldron said: "When the Tenement House Law was first enacted none of the builders or architects seemed able to hit upon a plan that would be practical and workable under the law, and in 1902 (the first year after the law went into effect) only one three-family house was built in Brooklyn. In the year 1903 sixty-three were erected, which showed they had adopted a plan, and they continued to build experimentally until 1906, which was the biggest building year, and 508 of such buildings were built.

"They were not, however, and never

ARCHITECTS FAVOR "BUILD NOW" MOVEMENT

Technical Position of Market Warrants Resumption of Activities—Local Conditions Similar to Those Throughout Country

SO wide-spread has the "Build Now" movement become that it is extending, practically, from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast. All over the country the various builders' exchanges are advocating the resumption of activities and are urging their members to forward the movement. In many cases resolutions have been adopted urging contractors and private individuals to do all the repair work possible, at this time, so that steps can be taken toward the letting of contracts for new work.

The movement has a three-fold basis. In the first place, materials can be purchased at a price advantageous to the builder. Secondly, if building is given an impetus at the present time, it will mean employment for thousands of men, engaged in the building trades, but out of work, and lastly, building will have the tendency to stimulate general business conditions.

In Manhattan, during the last few weeks, there has been a decided uplift in the number of plans filed, though an influencing factor, as already published, is in the fear that legislation, affecting the height of structures, might be passed, and owners want to "play safe."

During the last week the Record & Guide made a careful canvass of many of the leading architects' offices and prints the opinions of several prominently identified with the profession. In many instances architects took the stand that now was the proper time to build, though declined to speak for publication. Following are some of the opinions:

Electus D. Litchfield: Business conditions are changing and decidedly for the better. The period of depression which we have just gone through is different in many respects than those of the past, and the great financial interests of the country are emerging from it with a strong feeling of optimism. Building for 1915 will be good, according to the present indications. Particularly is this true of structures of a mercantile nature. Here the demand has caught up with the supply and many new projects should be the outgrowth. The condemnation of the buildings on the site of the proposed new Court House has necessitated the removal of many concerns in various lines of business. These concerns have had to seek quarters elsewhere. No doubt many of them will have to erect buildings for their specific needs, or to make other arrangements for permanent quarters of some nature. The trend will probably be to the mid-town section, between 32d and 42d streets, Fourth avenue and the Hudson River. In addition to this, many of the smaller concerns, who are dependent on the larger organizations, will have to follow in their footsteps and make arrangements for quarters further uptown. They will have to be accommodated, and much new building will be the result. At any rate, the outlook is brighter than it has been for a long while.

Julius Franke, of Maynicke & Franke: Building loans are more easily obtained now for some classes of construction, particularly high-class mercantile buildings and factories, in locations that are improving and where there are not many existing vacancies. The consolidation of the various departments, having to do with supervision and inspection of buildings under one head, will also no doubt tend to induce owners to proceed, who in the past have held up their plans pending the consolidation. While the condition at present is somewhat discouraging, we are beginning to see light, and it seems as though we were on the eve of an era of great activity in the allied building lines.

C. Grant La Farge: The present time is a propitious one for the owner to improve his holdings. Care, however, must be exercised, all financial arrangements definitely concluded, and the certainty established that the kind of structure to be erected will meet the demand. Where a tenant can be obtained in advance for a building of a specific type, it is plain sailing. It is absolutely necessary, however, that no mistakes are made, for they will be most costly to rectify.

Arthur Gross, of Schwartz & Gross: The cloud of depression which has hovered over the financial affairs of the country and which has included all lines of building seems to be lifting and there is every indication that many building projects long inactive will soon come to life. Owners can build now and save money. All they need is the courage to start.

John M. Howells, of Howells & Stokes: During the last four or five weeks conditions in the building trades have changed greatly and there is no doubt but what we are on the eve of a much better condition than has obtained since the panic of 1907. Many building projects are being conceived which show the trend. The population of this country has funds to use for investment purposes, although they have in the past been quite willing to sit back and make a poor mouth. It looks as though this would be a good year for buildings of an investment nature. There always is and always will be activity in residential building, and institutions with large endowments are always ready to spend large sums for buildings and improvements. The greatest activity, however, will no doubt be among the builders who erect for the purposes of permanent investment, lofts, office buildings, high-class apartments and hotels, and these owners will reap the benefits to be derived from building now on account of the low prices for building materials and the desire on the part of contractors for work.

Kenneth M. Murchison: Now is the advantageous time for owners to improve their properties, because architects' offices, as a rule, are comparatively free from work and more time can be devoted to individual operations. Material prices are low, and, on account of the dearth of jobs, the best of labor can be procured.

William Van Allen, of Severance & Van Allen: Because you can build cheaper today, contracts can be let now at prices ranging from 10 to 20 per cent lower than those obtained six months ago.

Andrew C. McKenzie, of McKenzie, Voorhees & Gmelin: I consider this a very opportune time to build, because the great scarcity of work has made contractors quite willing to figure and accept a very nominal percentage of profit. The contractor has a better chance to select only the best mechanics. Mills can turn out the work quicker. In fact, all building can be accomplished more expeditiously and this saves expense to the owner. Now is the right time to build well at reasonable prices.

Frederick S. Benedict, of York & Sawyer: Because every contractor is so hungry for work now that contracts are often let at cost or even below cost for the purpose of keeping plants working and good mechanics and employees working. Another good reason why this is a very good time to build or to prepare to build is because the architects as a class have not been overburdened with work, and consequently they are in a position to give more time and thought to the details of planning than is possible when the building business as a whole is more active. The man who builds now has an opportunity to build well at the minimum cost.

Goodhue Livingston, of Trowbridge & Livingston: At present building materials are slightly lower in price and the cost of labor has remained stationary. These facts in conjunction with the one that competition is keener now and contractors ready to guarantee and give the most efficient service, the owner reaps the benefit of both. It is surprising to know what low figures have been submitted for work simply to keep competent mechanics.

Donn Barber: Things are looking up. Particularly is this true of buildings erected as private residences. It is a good sign to see people with reserve funds expending them for the purpose of building new houses or improving their old ones. It proves that there is considerable money lying dormant that was only waiting for the right time to be put into circulation for the general improvement of business conditions.

William L. Rouse, of Rouse & Goldstone: There are two well-defined reasons why owners should decide to build now. The primary one would seem to be because they can build now at a more reasonable figure than they have been able to in the past and also receive better service from the contractors who, when not flooded with work, are able to give better attention to individual projects. The second reason is that impending changes in the building code is likely to effect some classes of operations, and it is desirable that they be started under the existing code.

Charles F. Post, of Clinton & Russell: Contractors are sharpening their pencils now and figuring much closer than they ever have before. This has been necessary by the keen competition of the last year. The contractor does this to keep his organization together, and the man who builds receives the full benefit. The fact that building materials are in some instances lower than they were a year ago no doubt also helps.

Ernest Flagg: Now is the time to build if you have the money, but nobody has any. Materials for building are somewhat lower in price and the contractors all need work. Building in the city has been overdone, and the greatest activity is likely to be in outlying districts where tenements and factories will be erected.

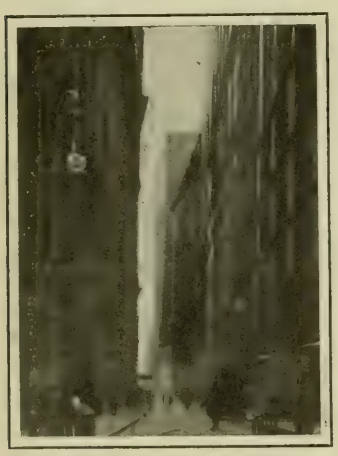
Geo. Fred. Pelham: There has been so little work started or projected during the late autumn and winter that competition among contractors and material men has grown very keen. Building materials are slightly lower in price now than they have been for some time, and unemployed labor is anxious to work.

C. P. H. Gilbert: There is no difference in the cost of labor, but contractors are able to make better selection in employees and mechanics on account of the fact that so little work is being done. With more carefully selected mechanics, builders are able to figure closer and give better results as well. Materials are slightly lower now than they were one year ago, but not enough to make a striking difference.

Burt L. Fenner, of McKim, Meade & White: Because prices are low, materials are cheaper and contractors are willing to take jobs at a price that will guarantee their overhead charges. They are willing many times to break even for the purpose of protecting their organization.

A PHASE OF BUILDING HEIGHT LIMITATION

Apprehensions Concerning the Effect of the Ordinance in Extremely Narrow Streets—Will There Be Any Real Injury to Land Values?

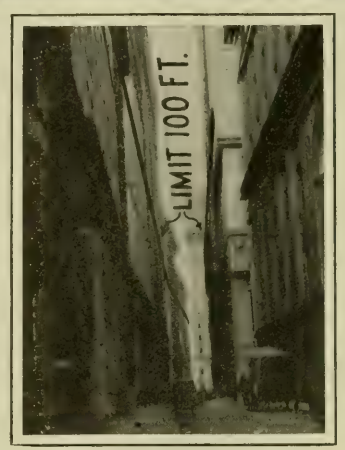


GREAT public interest continues to be manifested in the ordinance limiting the height of buildings, which is awaiting the approval of the Board of Estimate. The weight of opinion is decidedly in favor of the measure. When enacted the ordinance will form part of the Building Code. A new phase of the discussion has developed since Charles F. Noyes appeared in opposition at the second hearing and directed attention to the state of affairs in the very narrow streets downtown, especially those where land values are high. Mr. Noyes represents large interests in that section.

Nassau street is but 36 feet wide; William, about 40 feet; Exchange place, 23 to 50 feet; Cedar, 35 feet; Pine, 31 feet; Liberty, 46 feet; Fulton, 54.6 feet; Thames, 21 and 30 feet; New street, 40 feet; John, 45 feet; Cortlandt, 49 feet. The ordinance permits buildings hereafter erected to rise without a setback to twice the width of the street, and above that level they must set back one foot in every four.

Mr. Noyes' Amendment.

Mr. Noyes says those who have paid for their property or have inherited their property at a value of fifty dollars per square foot ($125,000 per lot) and upwards, where the property is positively worth this figure, and who have believed that they owned to the sky, would suffer heavy loss by these restrictions. He has therefore advised that the ordinance be amended to read:



"On any block where before enactment land has sold or is valued by competent appraisers as worth fifty dollars a square foot, a building one hundred and fifty feet high may be erected, and if the value be seventy-five dollars a square foot ($187,500 per lot) that a building two hundred feet high may be erected."

NEW STREET, SOUTH FROM WALL.
Most of the offices use artificial light all the time.

Such a provision, he says, would save many from great financial loss and would work a hardship to no one, because property valued at such figures indicates a district now improved with such buildings, or capable of earning income on such improvements, which, irrespective of statements made to the contrary, are excellent paying investments if properly planned, and constructed along sound commercial lines.

"If I owned several, or only one, tall and well constructed building—office building, hotel or apartment of the American type—I, too, probably as a business proposition, would like to see this ordinance pass in its present form, although I would feel that later on the city would probably tax me higher for enjoying benefits received by legislation that other buildings in the same neighborhood could not possess. Many among the comparatively few owners of tall buildings feel that a monopoly of owning buildings of this type in the few business sections of this metropolis would give them a unique investment, second to none. Real estate is a commodity, and some owners feel that tall buildings protected by law in our business neighborhoods would represent a real estate investment which would compare favorably with Standard Oil among the industrial securities."

EXCHANGE PLACE.
Limitation 100 feet on street line; setbacks above, 1 to 4.

Mr. Marling Favors Reasonable Limitations.

On the other hand, other prominent real estate agents in the district consider the pending ordinance a reasonable one. Alfred Marling, of H. S. Ely & Co., has written to President McAneny as follows:

"I believe there is an overwhelming public sentiment in favor of the restriction of the height of buildings. If something is not done to prevent the further erection of skyscrapers, the conditions of congestion, lack of sunlight, and danger from fire and panic will be increased. Individualism has been allowed to go to extreme limits, and if we are to have a safe, healthy and beautiful city, some changes are imperative.

"The bill under discussion is a reasonable one. It provides that the height of a building shall bear some relation to the width of the street on which it fronts. This plan has been, I understand, in successful operation in other cities, and I believe will prove successful in New York.

"It may well be that in given instances property values may not reach the highest limits, but there will be a tendency to spread the values over a larger area, so that the sum total of the value will, in my opinion, be greater rather than less under the operations of this proposed law.

"The Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests, of which I am a member, and also the Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, have considered the bill, and have, in the main, given to it their endorsement. It is a step in the right direction, and while there are certain details in the bill which can be improved (which have been more fully set forth in the report of the Advisory Council) it is, on the whole, worthy of the most favorable consideration.

"The moderation of the bill is noteworthy; in fact, there are a number of people who have made a study of this subject for many years who feel that the bill could be improved by being more drastic, but evidently the committee having the matter in charge has thought that it was wise to be moderate at the present time, rather than to attempt to be too severe in this first genuine and intelligent effort to meet this problem.

"I understand from a compilation that has been made, that in the entire city there are only 117 buildings over sixteen stories high. If all the owners adjoining these 117 buildings should proceed to erect buildings of similar height, we can readily see how much harm would ensue, not only to those buildings themselves, but to the surrounding properties.

"I think it can be proved (and Mr. Lawson Purdy, the head of the Tax Department, who has intimate knowledge of the subject, has confirmed it) that these 'skyscraper' buildings do not, as a rule, pay the owner a satisfactory return on the investment.

NEW STREET, NORTH FROM BEAVER.

"Looking at the matter, therefore, from the standpoint of a property owner and from that of the private citizen proud of the city and solicitous for its future welfare, and in the interest of safety and relief from intolerable congestion, I am of the opinion that the principle underlying this proposed ordinance is sound, well justified by the present situation, and will prove to be an important factor in making this city a more habitable and pleasant place in which to dwell and to conduct business."

Alderman Hamilton Goes Higher.

The State Treasurer, James L. Wells, has appointed as his deputy Alderman James J. Hamilton, chairman of the Building Committee, which is now engaged in the important work of revising the Building Code. Mr. Hamilton will be greatly missed from the board, but the State gains a good officer. His successor as chairman of the committee has not yet been announced in the board.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT BILLS AT ALBANY

To Revise Salaries and Grades of Inspectors of Public Works—For a New Board of Education—Amending Workmen's Compensation Law

A GLANCE at the bills being introduced in the Legislature will go far to support the opinion that New York City is being treated as a mere administrative district of the State, without self-ruling power, rather than as a political entity, so numerous are the local government bills.

Even now while the Administration is considering an ordinance restricting the heights of buildings in this city, a bill has been introduced in the Legislature taking away the power of the Administration to decide the question.

All the real estate bodies have committees scrutinizing the bills coming before the Legislature and reporting thereon. The United Real Estate Owners have come out against the following among others:

Various pension bills; to establish local boards for child welfare; to prevent sale of liquor; to compel grantors to give notice of mortgages; to exempt clergy from tax; to construct recreation pier in East River; for two platoons for firemen; for buildings to be assessed at half value; for courses of vocational studies; for temporary possession during condemnation proceedings.

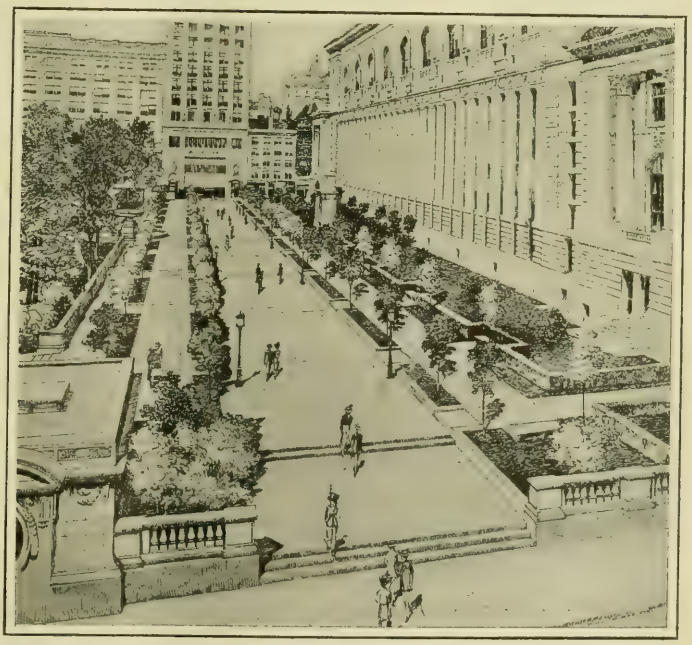
Assembly Bills.

390. (Evans.) Inserting in the General City Law a new article XII, and renumbering the present article XII to read article XIII, providing for the grading and compensation of inspectors employed by cities of the first class, whether under State or municipal control, having charge of and supervision over the construction of public improvements, and who have been appointed to their positions under the Civil Service Law. A schedule of compensation is set out in the bill. Such inspectors may be transferred from one department to another, irrespective of whether the same is under control of the State or city. Whenever it becomes necessary to abolish a position, preference must be given in the retention of inspectors according to seniority of service.

400. (O'Hare.) Amending the Tenement House Law (Section 15 and subdiv. 2 of Section 16), by making applicable to two-story tenement houses the provisions as to fire-escapes and means of egress now applicable to one-story buildings only.

402. (Smith.) Amending the Tax Law (Subdiv. 3 of Section 3), by providing that the taxation of property of a municipal corporation used and maintained for a municipal water supply shall be taxed at the value of the lands, exclusive of all dams, acqueducts, and other structures. (Same as Senate bill.)

419. (O'Hare.) Amending the Greater New York Charter (Section 949) by providing that pavements laid at private expense and accepted by the city prior to June 20, 1910, shall be deemed permanent pavements. That pavements laid and accepted since that day shall be deemed permanent pavements if so classified subsequent to April 18, 1912; and that all other pavements laid at private expense since June 20, 1910, shall be deemed preliminary pavements whenever any pavement is laid to replace a preliminary pavement, if the cost of replacing the pavement exceeds the cost of the replaced preliminary pavement, the excess must be assessed upon the property deemed benefited and the balance of the cost paid by the city. (Same as Senate Int. 358, Pr. 1234, of 1914, by Patten.)



420. (Gillett.) Inserting in the General Business Law a new article (19-a), in relation to the prevention of intemperance, pauperism and crime. The manufacture of intoxicating liquor is prohibited except for medical, chemical, mechanical and sacramental purposes. The sale of such liquor is also prohibited except for the above purposes. Violation is made a misdemeanor.

449. (McDonald, M.) Inserting in the Greater New York Charter new section (1101-a), providing that city employees receiving salaries not exceeding $900 a year, and who are required to wear uniforms, shall be furnished with such uniforms free of charge.

452. (Fertig.) Amending the Greater New York Charter (Sections 1055 to 1102 inclusive and new section 1102-a), replacing the present board of education by an educational department. The head of the new department is to be appointed by the Mayor for a four-year term at an annual salary of $15,000. The commissioner is empowered to appoint, and at pleasure remove, five deputy commissioners. The salary of each deputy commissioner is fixed at $7,500. The commissioner may also appoint a secretary at $5,000; a superintendent of school buildings, who shall have been an architect of experience and good standing, at a salary of $10,000; a superintendent of school supplies at a salary of $5,000; a supervisor of lectures at a salary of $6,000; an auditor at a salary of $5,000; a chief clerk at a salary of $4,000; and such other officers and subordinates as he may deem necessary. Any officer or subordinate may be removed for cause at any time, and may be suspended pending a trial on charges. There are other changes.

485. (Evans.) Amending the Workmen's Compensation Law generally. Among the changes made are the following: The time after disability within which compensation cannot be allowed is reduced from 14 days to 4 days; the amount to be recovered in case of total permanent disability is increased from 66 2-3 per cent. to 75 per cent. of the average weekly wages of the injured employee; the same increase of compensation is made in the case of temporary total disability, and the maximum amount to be paid is fixed at $5,000, instead of $3,500; an increase to 75 per cent. of the average weekly wages received is also made in the case of permanent partial disability, and a greater amount of compensation, for an indefinite time, is fixed for specific injuries; in case of death, the widow is to receive 50 per cent., instead of 30 per cent., of the average wages of her husband during her widowhood; and all penalties recovered for default in payment of compensation shall belong to the employee affected by such default.

A BRYANT PARK IMPROVEMENT

PROPOSED CHANGE OF PUBLIC LIBRARY PLAZA TO A PEDESTRIAN THOROUGHFARE CONNECTING 40TH AND 42D STREET AS SUGGESTED BY EWING, BACON & HENRY, AND DEVELOPED BY STARRETT & VAN VLECK, ARCHITECTS.

ON the west side of the New York Public Library Building in Bryant Park there is a plaza extending from 42d street to within fifty feet of 40th street. Entrance to the plaza, from either street, is shut off by stone balustrades on the street line. Consequently, a long detour is necessary in order to pass through the park from 40th to 42d street in either direction. It would be a great convenience if the public could use the plaza, and a number of property owners have, through Ewing, Bacon & Henry, agents, petitioned the Park Department to make openings in the balustrades and let pedestrians through. The cost of the slight alteration requested would be comparatively small.

Ten years hence the extreme optimist of to-day will be considered to have been very conservative in his estimate of future prosperity, says Judge Gary. Moral: Buy now, build now.

The present undersupply of jobs is mainly the consequence of submerging the individual, economists are saying: The business of the country is suffering from a depletion of the personal equation; it is losing personal conscience on the part of employers, and personal loyalty on the part of employees; too long have we bowed down to mere Bigness.

The office of the State Fire Marshal, with its corps of inspectors, and the Housing Law for Second Class cities, have been ticketed for the Legislative graveyard. The State Industrial Board had better watch out, for the upstate people are not very patient under tribulation.

If to drive poor people out of the city is the real object of some of the laws now on the statute books, as some estate managers suspect, the issue should be manfully stated and fought out. And if also there are socialists secretly working through the Legislature to make laws that will render real estate holding unprofitable, it would be more in accordance with American ideas for them to throw their hat into the ring and fight in the open.

While the department stores as a class are losing ground, small neighborhood shops are multiplying and prospering. Uptown bankers say they never saw so much money deposited by shopkeepers as during the past month. This is something for real estate men to think about, for there is evidently a growing public preference for the old-fashioned home trading, which will be expressed in part by a greater demand for business space at neighborhood centers from larger and more varied lines of trade.

Start to "Build Now."

The suggestion made in the Record and Guide of last week that the immediate present was a peculiarly favorable time for starting new building operations has met with a cordial response. In the current issue of this paper a large number of people who are particularly familiar with real estate and building conditions confirm the advisability of beginning to "build now" rather than later. The decisive consideration turns upon the fact that the peculiarly favorable conditions are not likely to last. Just now money is sufficiently abundant. Materials are cheap. Contractors are anxious to get work. But as prospective builders wait until business becomes more active, they are likely to pay more for their money, and more for their materials and labor.

The successful trader is the man who buys when prices are low and sells when prices are high. The reason why most traders are not successful is that they usually have not either the good sense to act independently of the prevailing business feeling, or else in case they see the opportunity, they have not the money or the credit to take advantage of it. Builders and operators who have the money, or the credit, to begin new building operations this spring will not only get their new structure cheap, but they will offer it for a rental at a moment when business is expanding and tenants are likely to be more than usually numerous. The longer they wait the more risk they take of a change in conditions in every respect for the worse.

The Proposed New Tax Levies.

At the present writing the report of the Mayor's Special Tax Committee has not been published, but something of its contents has come through. The report recommends (1) a levy of one-half of one per cent. on all salaries in excess of $2,000 a year, (2) an unearned increment tax on real estate, (3) a habitation tax, and (4) an occupation tax. It is estimated that the salary tax would yield about $3,000,000 a year, and that the other taxes would bring in about $16,000,000 more. The calculation is that what with the increasing demands of the debt service in New York City the large additional contribution which the city will have to make to the State treasury, as much as $20,000,000 more will be needed.

Of course the taxes which are scheduled above will be very unpopular. All taxes are unpopular, and they are particularly disliked when they are first imposed.

Our guess would be that the proposed method of raising additional revenue will be disagreeable to very many people, and that if it is ever officially proposed its unpopularity will result in its subsequent withdrawal. Moreover, there are grave objections to some of the abovementioned taxes, and the committee has failed to recommend the tapping of other sources which, if less abundant, could be diverted with a smaller amount of friction.

Nevertheless, the proposed levies, particularly the Habitation and the Occupation taxes, would constitute an enormous improvement on the existing system. They would make the inhabitants of New York actually realize that the government of the city costs money and that they have some responsibility for its economical and efficient management. At present they know nothing about municipal finances and have not the slightest interest in voting for a sound and prudent Board of Estimate. There is always a lot of talk about economy during a municipal election, but it does not influence very many votes, because the number of people who are aware of the fact that the government is costing more or less money are so very few. Occupation and habitation taxes, provided they were not sufficiently heavy to drive population and business away from New York, would have the great social and political advantage of broadening the basis of taxation. This class of tax levy is universal in Europe, and it undoubtedly contributes substantially to the comparative economy, with which European cities are governed.

Perhaps the mere proposal of these taxes will do something to make public opinion in New York realize how serious the situation is. The great trouble is that no one at the present time, except a few city officials, realize that New York is facing one of the most difficult problems which ever confronted the financial management of a great city. After years of steady increase in taxation, the city is confronted by the relentless necessity of raising still more money; just how much can only be approximately calculated as yet, but it may amount to $20,000,000. To levy this additional sum on real estate would be ruinous. Other sources of taxation must be devised, and the consequence is that people who now escape a direct taxation will be forced to pay. But as yet no adequate attempt has been made to acquaint the public with the full extent of the difficulty and the inevitable necessity for larger contributions to the municipal treasury. When they are asked to pay there will be an enormous hullabaloo, which may be sufficient to wreck any plan, no matter how carefully contrived. Real estate associations should guard against this contingency by beginning a publicity campaign, which will enable the non-taxpayers to understand how critical New York's financial situation is.

Heights of Building Limitations Generally Approved in Principle.

The recent hearings which have been held on the proposed regulation of the height of buildings has demonstrated the truth of one important condition of future action. There is no substantial opposition to the principle of regulation. People who agree upon the principle will, of course, differ as to its application. The Record and Guide believes with some authorities that the regulation ought to go farther than the proposed ordinance provides. But that is a matter of detail. The ordinance as now drawn will meet the immediate difficulty. It will prevent the erection of enormously high buildings on very narrow streets except under conditions which secure a maximum of light and air and protect abutting property. It will prevent the erection of very high buildings on low-priced property situated in the same neighborhood as high-priced property, and which carries on a demoralizing competition with existing buildings. We believe that this ordinance will bring about such an improvement in real estate and building conditions that it will be followed by still more rigorous restrictions. In any event the great majority of real estate owners and builders who formerly were opposed to restriction are now in favor of it. They have come to see that in the long run a wholly unregulated condition is as inimical to their interests as it is to that of the whole community. There seems to be no reason why the very moderate measure of restriction proposed by the ordinance should not be passed by the Board. The sooner it acts, the better, because property owners are already beginning to file plans so as to prevent the ordinance from being effective in the case of their own property.

On the Distribution of the Increment.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

Your readers are indebted to you for printing the interesting articles of Messrs. Harmon and Parish on the question of the future retardation of the real estate values and interest in our city; and the statements of Mr. Harmon are exceedingly valuable in giving the viewpoint from which he prognosticates our decadence. It is perfectly safe to say that New York City can forge ahead, increasing in population and wealth, while its real estate is declining in value. Of course, this would result from allowing the tax to offset or absorb the increment. And the city can increase in wealth and population if the tax be shifted, so that industry is not overburdened with unnecessary taxes. We can raise potatoes in hot-houses, but they will grow larger outdoors, and our industries may expand and multiply if we give them outdoor treatment by taking off the taxes, as we do from our churches, hospitals, schools and libraries.

Many years ago, in Portland, Oregon, where I was in the real estate business, I found that William S. Ladd, the richest man and the largest land owner in the far Northwest, was anxious to exempt all industries from taxation, because such exemption would increase their number, which would increase population and the production of wealth, and thus increase the value of his vacant "developments." The enlightened "developer" may soon see that the best way to keep the goose alive is to feed her full of untaxed industries.

No city in the Union today gives her taxpayers so much for their money as they get here in parks, boulevards, libraries, museums, hospitals, colleges, schools, playgrounds, bridges, subways and public buildings. And no city reflects these blessings in real estate values as we see them reflected here. And the things we have not paid for, but which are the gifts of nature, to wit, the ocean front, the Lower and Upper Bays, the Sound, the two rivers, the hills and plains and the glorious climate, and our pre-eminently commanding position on the highways of the commerce world, must make every taxpayer feel that he is a resident of "no mean city."

Just now we are like the man who is erecting a twenty-story hotel that is being roofed. Soon the inside trim will be on, the decorations and furnishings in, and its doors will be opened to accommodate a public that has long waited its completion. In two years our barge canal, our subway extensions and many other municipal improvements will be earning money for our taxpayers—directly or indirectly. Then the tax burden will be comparatively lighter.

The question of municipal extravagance needs closer investigation by our real estate interests. The investors in outside holdings could never realize the values expected without the extravagance they deprecate, nor could the inside choice spots maintain their values but for such extravagance. New York would be as dull as Philadelphia, and her real estate about as valuable, if we were to inaugurate the municipal economies advocated by Mr. Harmon.

A 2 per cent tax rate on increment is far preferable, with 3 per cent for the owner, than no increment at all. Just lately was published a statement that lots in 46th street, between Broadway and Sixth avenue, had increased $50,000 in the past ten years. This is in the theatre and "lobster palace" district. Can it be denied that municipal extravagance in New York is but a forced distribution of the unearned increment that would otherwise go to the owners of our big estates? Can it be gainsaid that our city leads all the others as "a market for brains" and for general attractiveness because the salaries paid here are a little higher than elsewhere? Chicago and Cleveland are not confronted with the same conditions, and any comparison between them and New York as to municipal expenses is invidious, for no other city in the Union has so many great landed estates as we have in New York, and a policy of forced distribution of excessive increment is nowhere so necessary as here. The theatres and restaurants and department stores would fare very badly if our municipal employees were reduced to the "living wage," so much discussed.

Our real estate values do not depend entirely upon the size of the population, nor upon the class of the population, but, more than anything else, upon the amount of wealth the population produces. There is not much class to the population of Pittsburgh, but miles of residential property on her Allegheny waterfront was torn down to make room for her furnaces; and her real estate values are partly maintained by the brain and brawn of her workers therein. Her increment will exceed her tax rate while her furnaces glow. We could create like increment here by removing the taxes and workingmen's compensation burdens from our industries. It requires nerve and statesmanship, but New York will soon pull herself together and furnish these. Certainly, she will not take a second place in our day.

Amortization of Mortgages.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

Of all the evils that New York realty has become heir to, the most serious and insidious is that known as the amortization of mortgages. What investor will place his money in property with the knowledge that after a few years he will be forced to put his hand in his pocket in order to reduce his mortgage?

It is all very well for the loaning institutions to state that investors shall lay aside (as a "sinking fund") a certain amount of the profits each year to reduce said indebtedness, but to the already over-burdened and harassed owner, this is found to be impossible, especially if the property is an investment on which he lives. Thus, the small investor, who is supposed to be the "backbone" of the market, disappears, and the resultant stagnation of the present real estate business continues.

An investor in realty should be as free from assessment as the investor in bonds, and not look forward with fear and trembling to a legal confiscation or foreclosure at the expiration of his mortgage.

S. T. LEYWOLF.

Tax Commission's Recommendations.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The State Legislature now being in session, it is of the utmost importance, that measures for the relief of real estate, be not only devised, but actually introduced, and vigorously pushed to a conclusion.

This can best be accomplished by selecting strong representatives in both branches of the Legislature, who, with the aid of the allied interests, can bring about decisive results.

The commission heretofore appointed by the Mayor, to consider and devise measures to increase the revenue of the city, to meet the ever-increasing budget, has completed its labor, and filed its report. It has submitted tentative plans, which are not inspiring.

Its chief recommendations are supposed to be:

1. A tax on incomes exceeding $2,000.
2. A habitation tax.
3. An occupancy tax.
4. A tax on unearned increment.

These additions will possibly increase the anual revenue $12,000,000, an amount that can readily be saved by an economical administration.

The members of the commission, all able representative men, cannot fail to understand that we are confronted with a serious condition, that cannot be met by a paltry addition of taxes.

The recommendations of the commission are futile, and from all gathered information will receive little, if any support, from the Mayor and the Board of Estimate.

Taking up its recommendations seriatim, our analysis shows:

1. A tax on incomes of $2,000 and over, in face of the United States tax, would not be advisable, and would fall heavily on those least able to pay.

2. A habitation tax, imposed on all tenants paying $600 or more rent, would simply mean an increase of rent, which in, these times of busines depression would be burdensome.

3. An occupancy tax, to be paid by the occupant of a store, loft or business place, could not be regulated equitably or imposed with any degree of fairness.

4. A tax on unearned increment, is but the entering wedge for a "single tax," and at best, will be an incentive to the commission of perjury.

None of these suggestions are effective, and the adoption of any one of them would be a detriment rather than a benefit.

It has been well suggested that much may be accomplished by an economical administration. The interests of the city should be safeguarded in the first instance at Albany, so as to prevent continuous assaults on the City Treasury.

Mandatory legislation, ordering extensive improvements and excessive expenditures must be minimized, if not entirely abolished. There can be no hope of material economy until city government is left free.

New York City, the Greater New York, is worthy in population, wealth and world prominence to be created into a separate State. Its interests are definitely separated from the rest of the State. It is not only the metropolis of the State but of the entire Union. We have no benefit from the State, but are of incalculable assistance by being mulct in the major portion of the State taxes.

In the City of New York, there is annually collected approximately $20,000,000 for liquor certificates, in some years as high as $40,000,000 for inheritance tax, and several million dollars for mortgage tax, of which gigantic sums, the city retains but 50 per cent. If we could secure the whole sum for ourselves, the tax problem would be easy of solution.

So long as the rural members of the Legislature outnumber our representatives there is but little hope for a separation or home-rule government. Constant agitation, however, may eventually bring about a result. Inaction will lead to nothing.

We cannot emphasize too strongly that the situation calls for immediate action, and that some relief may be found—

1. In an economical administration.
2. By taxing other industries besides real estate.
3. By the enactment of a more liberal law applicable to second mortgages.

Statistics will readily show that all of the city departments are over-manned. Greater efficiency would result by conducting the departments on a business basis, and not as political machines to furnish meal-tickets for leaders and their hench-men.

The various departments, having coordinate jurisdiction over real estate employ a large number of inspectors, whose chief recommendation is the endorsement of the district leader. Their work is cumulative, and under the present system six men do work ineffectually what might better be done by one.

Much revenue could be derived by taxing telephone and telegraph companies, floating equipments, corporations, garages, franchises, moving pictures, dance halls, cabaret shows, theatre tickets, advertising signs, automobiles, vehicles, fruit-stands, non-residents, and all forms of luxuries.

A second mortgage as a rule, affords precarious security. The lender must at all times be prepared to meet the demands of prior claimants, and his equity in the property is always from 10 to 15 per cent. less than that of the first mortgagee. An extra charge, over and above the regular interest charge would be reasonable, but in view of the many late judicial decisions on usury, lenders are loath to enter this field of enterprise. A law, similar to that now prevailing among banks, and Wall Street operations, allowing a free rate of interest, would open an investment field that would be of far-reaching benefit.

It is incumbent on the allied interests, to actively urge legislation, that will be effective in meeting the increased municipal expenditures, and to guard against real estate being further oppressed. This can and must be done energetically

JOHN FINCK.
198 Broadway.

—Borough President Marks has given preliminary notice of the inevitable widening of the Lexington avenue roadway and sidewalks. The subway digging has so undermined stoops and fences that it would be a measure of economy for owners to make the final alterations now, and perhaps even to anticipate the time when all the ground floor space along the avenue will be needed for stores. This should be the beginnng of the transformation of Lexington avenue and consequently of a real estate boom.

WILL WATCH INDUSTRIAL BOARD.

Advisory Council Appoints a Committee to Advise Property Owners.

Inasmuch as the provisions of the Labor Law are being re-codified by the State Factory Investigating Commission, the Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests has decided to analyze and thoroughly study the proceedings of the Industrial Board in the future, especially its interpretation of the different requirements of the re-codified law as it will be finally passed by the Legislature. In order to obviate difficulties which have arisen under the application of the present Labor Law, the Advisory Council feels that it is absolutely necessary for real estate interests to be thoroughly advised by the best legal and technical authorities of the city upon the various rules and regulations adopted by the Industrial Board. The formation of an Industrial Code is considered of such significance to all real estate interests that no section should be incorporated into this code until it is thoroughly examined and tested by the best experience in the past. Consequently, the council has formed an Industrial Code Committe which consists of Julius Franke, architect, chairman; Louis J. Horowitz, builder; Frank Pattison, engineer, and Evarts Tracy, architect.

This committee will meet regularly to learn of any individual or specific hardships that may confront our property owners under the application of the Labor Law, and also to consider the various conclusions arrived at by the Industrial Board, particularly in its efforts to form rules and regulations.

The various city and State departments having evinced a desire to mitigate any unwarranted injustice to property owners, the opportunity will be availed of to present to the various departments conclusions re-enforced by the best technical and legal authority in the city. Any special or individual cases that may seem to be oppressive will receive the careful and immediate attention of this committee, and every effort will be made to modify the requirements so as to relieve property of the expense and hardship therein entailed.

EIGHTY YEARS' RESTRICTION REMOVED.

A Covenant Which Prevented the Improvement of St. Mark's Place.

A judgment has been entered in the County Clerk's office dismissing the complaint of Herman Bruns v. David Wasser. The suit was brought to compel Mr. Wasser, who had erected a Turkish bath at No. 5 Mark's place, to remove the entire eight-feet front of his building.

Mr. Bruns based his action upon restrictions which Thomas Davis had put upon the property in 1832. At that time Mr. Davis owned both sides of St. Mark's place, between Second and Third avenues, and adjacent to that part of Second avenue which was formerly known as "Lovers' Lane," a well-known promenade for many years. Mr. Davis restricted both sides of St. Mark's place to private dwellings, to be situated eight feet from the building line, the eight feet to be devoted to grass plots and gardens, and for many years the elite of New York lived in this part of St. Mark's place or adjoining. In its day it was one of the fashionable sections of New York City. Gradually the neighborhood began to change, and Mr. Wasser considered it a good place to erect a Turkish and Russian bath.

A Change of Character.

The neighboring owners began to protest against Mr. Wasser's extending his property to the building line, and Mr. Bruns, who owned the adjoining property, filed a lis pendens against the erection of the building. The case was tried before Justice Bijur, who sustained the contention of Katz & Sommerich, the attorneys for Mr. Wasser, that the character of the neighborhood had changed; that the property no longer was devoted to private dwellings; that the garden plots had disappeared; that tenements and stores were erected, and that even before the time the restrictions were put on by Mr. Davis, there was a mortgage upon the property in question, which was foreclosed and that the purchaser at the foreclosure sale acquired the title which the mortgagor had at the time of the making of the mortgage, and before the restrictions, and that, under such circumstances, the placing of restrictions upon the property thereafter could not affect a purchaser who bought under the foreclosure.

Many of the owners of property upon the trial testified that in erecting new buildings upon the street, they kept their building back eight feet from the building line because the Court of Appeals had previously decided that the neighborhood was restricted.

Real Estate Board's Dinner To-night.

The Real Estate Board in its reservations for diners at the annual banquet, to be held at the Waldorf-Astoria this (Saturday) evening, has outdone all previous records. Reservations have been made for 1,004 places. The speakers will include Mayor John Purroy Mitchel, Dr. John Huston Finley, State Commissioner of Education; Hon. Dudley Field Malone, Collector of the Port; Commissioner Robert E. Dowling, Haley Fiske, second vice-president Metropolitan Life Ins. Co.; James V. Barry, assistant secretary Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., and Laurence M. D. McGuire, president Real Estate Board of New York.

Among the invited guests are the following: Hon. Wm. A. Prendergast, Hon. Geo. McAneny, Hon. Marcus M. Marks, Hon. Douglas Mathewson, Hon. Lewis H. Pounds, Hon. Maurice E. Connolly, Hon. Chas. J. McCormack, Hon. Lawson Purdy, Hon. Cyrus C. Miller, Gen. Lewis W. Stotesbury, Judge Frank Hasbrouck, Abram I. Elkus, Chas. D. Olendorf, Thomas Shallcross, Elbridge Gerry Snow, Hon. M. Mayer, Franklin Pettit, Geo. C. Boldt, Wm. C. Breed, Stewart Browne, Frederick H. Ecker, Wilbur C. Fisk and M. Morgenthau, Jr.

A Real Estate Company's Financial Report.

Conservative management and wise financing are shown in the figures of the twenty-seventh annual statement of the American Real Estate Company as of the end of its fiscal year now published. An increase of only slightly over $30,000 in its bond obligations and over $850,000 in paid-up preferred and common stock adds a larger margin of security to the holder of its bond obligations.

In view of depressed conditions in the real estate market, and in harmony with the company's well-known policy of conservative management, in the appraisal upon which the figures in the statement are based, it has taken up the values of its properties upon a basis which reduces the surplus about $500,000. The increase in new capital created during the year, however, leaves a margin of capital and surplus of over $3,500,000, or more than $300,000 greater than last year. The statement shows that all taxes, assessments, and interest due on mortgages payable are paid to date with a cash balance of over $327,000.

The total assets of the company are shown by the Statement to be $29,432,660.83. Against these assets rest underlying mortgages of $11,710,960 leaving a balance of assets of $17,721,700.83.

The company reports that notwithstanding general business conditions the past year was a successful one in its rental departments. Many of its buildings are filled to 100 per cent. of capacity. It has but few vacancies anywhere; even in the midtown loft district its buildings have fared well and several of them are fully occupied. Such well-known business properties as the Harriman National Bank Building at 527 Fifth avenue, and residential buildings as the Hendrik Hudson Apartment Houses at Riverside Drive and Cathedral Parkway are practically fully rented. In the Borough of the Bronx where the company has large holdings rental conditions are particularly strong. During the year the company added substantially to its holdings of vacant land for the most part at station corners along the lines of the subway extensions now under construction in the Borough of the Bronx, where a large increment in value is certain.

The business of this company appears to be in good shape today for return of activity in the New York real estate field which authority generally now anticipates. As in the past the statement of the company bears the certificates of recognized auditors and appraisers certifying to the valuation of its properties and the correctness of its accounts.

Court House Site Extension.

Abram I. Elkus, Henry Schneder and James B. Butler have been appointed by Justice Guy as commissioners in condemnation to acquire the property required in connection with land already purchased by the city for the new court house, and civic centre site. The needed land includes all of the block between Duane, Pearl, Park streets and City Hall place; half of the block from Duane to Pearl street, between City Hall place and Park Row, including St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Church, and nearly all of the block between Pearl, Park, Baxter streets and Park Row. In the latter block is the Five Points Mission.

THREE-FAMILY HOUSES.

have been since the Tenement House Law went into effect, a successful class of buildings. The plan with the outer court extension makes a very cold building, and I think particularly to be emphasized is the fact that dining-room or kitchen (most always the dining-room, and sometimes both dining-room and kitchen) faces a narrow court. The parties living in a three-family house practically always do their own work, and the lady of the house spends most of her time in the kitchen or dining-room. It needs no argument to see the monotony of looking out upon an open court all day and with little sunlight.

"From 1907 to 1911 a few more of these houses were built, but they were found so impractical, under the present possible layout, together with the restrictions, requirements and inspections of the Tenement House Law (which we think entirely unnecessary, where only three families occupy a building) that the builders have practically given up building them, and in 1913 only thirty-four were built, and in 1914 only thirteen out of a total of 590 tenements, or only 2 per cent. If this matter could be followed up I think you would find every one of these buildings built by the builder or owner of one or two lots so located and situated that nothing else could be built on the site. It is my best judgment that no speculative builder has erected any of these in the last three or four years, and those that were built in previous years are failures owing to the restrictions imposed by the Tenement House Law."

City Buys Easement.

The Public Service Commission and the New York Central Railroad are reported to have made an agreement regarding the acquisition by the city of a subway easement through tse site of the Hospital for Ruptured and Crippled children, formerly occupying the block on the west of Lexington avenue, from 42d street to 43d street. There will be a station on the Lexington avenue route at that point and the cost of construction and the easement rights will cost about $902,500.

"SIGNS OF THE TIMES" IN FLATBUSH

THESE three signs appear on a piece of property in Brooklyn, on Kings Highway near Flatbush avenue. Application for reduction of the assessment having been unsuccessfully made, certiorari proceedings were brought, experts heard on both sides, and a nominal reduction of nineteen thousand and some odd dollars was the relief the owner received; this in view of the fact that, although every effort was made to secure a purchaser for this property, no offer has been received during a period of two years aggregating even one-half of the valuation put on this property either by the tax commissioners or by the various city experts.

The large sign in the center shows that the owner is ready to sell at a price materially under the assessed valuation. The sign to the left indicates the experts' opinions of the property, while the sign on the right contains extracts from the decision of the learned Judge.

OVER-INSPECTION PROBLEM.

Hearings Begun at City Hall by the Mayor's Committee.

In pursuance of a desire, very generally expressed, that some effort should be made to harmonize the divergent views of the borough presidents, on the one hand, and the executive heads of city departments, on the other hand, in respect to the system to be adopted in consolidating the State and municipal departments charged with the duty of building inspection, Mayor Mitchel has appointed a committee to reconcile, if possible, the various interests.

The committee consists of Allan Robinson, of the Allied Real Estate Interests, as chairman; Alfred T. White, of Brooklyn, former Public Service Commissioner; William H. Childs; Rudolph P. Miller, former Supt. of Buildings, Borough of Manhattan; Lawrence Veiller, from the Tenement House Committee; Robert E. Simon, from the Conference Committee of Real Estate bodies in all the boroughs, and Peter J. Brady, representing labor interests. Mr. Miller has written to the Mayor asking to be relieved of the duty. Mr. Abram I. Elkus has consented to act as counsel.

A hearing was accorded to property owners and bureau representatives at City Hall yesterday afternoon. All the commissioners were present. ...

Andrew J. Kerwin, a large property owner, was one of the first to be heard. He testified that his experience with the present system of over-inspection was one that convinced him that something was wrong somewhere. He showed by extensive figures that he had been obliged to reduce his rents while his overhead charges had increased steadily.

Henry De Forest Baldwin testified that he had been compelled to make alterations only to have them ordered ripped out again by some other department. He characterized the present laws as offering a wonderful opportunity for blackmail, a statement which was hotly contradicted by Frank J. Pryor, Deputy State Labor Commissioner, who declared that the department was doing its best to carry out the law's requirements without working a hardship upon owners.

Many other speakers held the attention of the commission until late in the afternoon when it was announced that another hearing would be held next Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock at City Hall. At that time the heads of city departments will answer the criticisms of citizens.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

Interest in the real estate market this week was stimulated by the closing of several important deals. The improvement noted last week continued and while there was no remarkable increase in the amount of business transacted, yet enough was done to warrant a more optimistic view of the situation. That there are buyers to be found for well-located properties is evidenced by many of the sales to newcomers in the real estate field. Those brokers who are hunting for business are receiving the benefits of their efforts. Business, it is conceded, rarely comes unsolicited to an office. It has to be sought and those pessimists who condemn the market from their office-chairs and deplore the apathy of the buying public toward real estate, should profit by the example of the broker who has sold six houses since the first of the year, because he went looking for business and was not beaten before he started.

This week an important addition to the uptown Fifth avenue retail colony was made in the acquisition of a choice corner opposite St. Thomas's Church by a large fur firm, now established further south.

On the upper West Side, a new development in apartment house operations, which exemplifies the remarkable strides which that class of construction has made in recent years, attracted considerable attention. A seven-story house will be razed and in its place a thirteen-story multi-family structure erected. The transaction illustrates the rise in values on the West Side which has made a desirable corner too costly for a seven-story apartment house, which fifteen years ago was considered the finest possible type. In the immediate neighborhood the width and other advantages of West 86th street, have influenced builders to undertake another apartment house improvement in the street and a further step has been taken in the transformation of this thoroughfare from the private dwelling to the tall apartment house stage.

Of especial interest at this time is the report that one of the holdings of the late John G. Wendel on Broadway will be modernized. Mr. Wendel, during lifetime, frequently attached such restrictions to his properties that many deals were blocked, and properties have been permitted to remain practically unimproved.

The total number of sales reported and not recorded in Manhattan this week was 27, as against 24 last week and 22 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 9, as compared with 7 last week and 7 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 18, as compared with 17 last week and 15 a year ago.

The total number of convevances in Manhattan was 171, as against 136 last week, 25 having stated considerations totaling $1,725,525. Mortgages recorded this week number 100, involving $2,684,425, as against 66 last week, $1,922,632.

From the Bronx, 8 sales at private contract were recorded, as against 9 last week and 11 a year ago.

The amount involved in Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $377,221, compared with $814,400 last week, making a total for the year of $4,596,812. The figures for the corresponding week last year were $640,294 and the total from Jan. 1, 1914, to Feb. 7, 1914, was $5,943,515.

Will Raze Seven-Story House.

Jerome C. and Mortimer G. Mayer have bought, through Slawson & Hobbs, from the Alliance Realty Company, William H. Chesebrough, president, the seven-story apartment house, at the northeast corner of West End avenue and 80th street, on plot 77x100. The present structure will be demolished and a new thirteen-story structure erected. This is the first apartment house of such size on the West Side, to be torn down for another multi-family house operation. The present building was erected about fifteen years ago, under the supervision of S. Stanhope Phillips and the Alliance Realty Company acquired it in an exchange with Mrs. Phillips, last year, in which the dwelling, at 32 West 58th street, figured as part payment.

New Operation for 86th Street.

Julius H. Seymour sold to the Realty Company of America, Franklin Pettit, president, the three four-story dwellings, 304, 306 and 308 West 86th street, on plot 62x102.2. The houses were later resold to the 86th Street and West End Avenue Company, controlled by Mulliken & Moeller, builders and architects, who are at present building two twelve-story apartment houses, on the land adjoining on the west. The newly-acquired site will also be improved with a twelve-story multi-family structure.

English Duke Buys.

The Duke de Mora, of Essex, England, bought from Edward A. Schmidt, of Philadelphia, Jewelers Court, a twelve-story office building at 51-53 Maiden lane, on plot 36.6x139x irregular. It has been held at $750,000. In part payment, the buyer gave property in Philadelphia at Villa Nova, consisting of three large mansions and about 150 acres of land. The deal involves about $1,100,000.

$500,000 Triborough Trade.

Conditional contracts have been signed for the sale of 512 West 135th street, a six-story apartment house on plot 45.10 x99.11; of 475-491 West 159th street, two six-story apartment houses, occupying the block front on the north side of 159th street, between St. Nicholas and Amsterdam avenues, and of 1214-1218 Boston Road at the northeast corner of 169th street, four five-story apartment houses, on plot 158x131, by the Hudson Realty Company to the Skillman Realty Company, a syndicate of Utica, N. Y., investors. The buyer gave in part payment 98 lots in Long Island City on Skillman, Woodside and Middleberg avenues and in Fitting, Stone and Dixon streets. The deal involves about $500,000.

Heights Apartment House in Trade.

"Washington Arms," a six-story elevator apartment house at the southeast corner of Fort Washington avenue and 179th street, on plot 92.6x135, has been sold by the Henry Morgenthau Company to the Halton Realty Company, Barton Chapin, president, which gave in part payment, 163 West 34th street, a five-story business building on lot 25x98.9. The transaction involved about $425,000. The brokers were Arnold, Byrne & Baumann.

$250,000 Flushing Sale.

J. Harry Myers has resold the 116-acre Miller farm, on Flushing Canal in the Third Ward of Queens, to the Forest Hill Estates. Mr. Myers acquired the property last year from members of the Miller family which had owned it for sixty years. It is adjacent to the Cord Meyer, Sage Foundation and Kew Gardens tracts.

$300,000 Deal on Union Square.

Isaac B. Wakeman sold for the Kent estate, to F. B. Moser, the two five-story store and loft buildings at 26-28 Union Square East on plot 50.6x125. The buyer gave Brooklyn property in part payment. The transaction involved about $300,000.

Madison Avenue Church Sold.

The Central Presbyterian Church of 218 West 57th street will buy the property of the Madison Avenue Reformed Church at the northeast corner of Madison avenue and 57th street, on plot 74.5x150x irregular, which has been on the market for some time. The pew-holders will be invited to retain their pews.

Manhattan—South of 59th St.

BOWERY.—Citizens' Savings Bank bought through Jacob Finkelstein from the William Kramer's Sons Realty Co. 54-54½ Bowery, on lot 25x100, adjoining the bank. The buyer has no immediate plans for improvement.

CHRYSTIE ST.—G. Tuoti & Co. sold for the Lawyers Mortgage Co. the 5-sty tenement, 132 Chrystie st, on lot 25x100. The property was resold later in the week.

22D ST.—Agnes Segal sold 419-421 East 22d st, two 4-sty tenements on plot 62.6x98.9, to Nathan Gerberg, who gave in part payment the frame dwelling 369 South 3d st, Brooklyn, on plot 58x120.

35TH ST.—Bernard J. Foss sold for Rose M. Smith 436 West 35th st, a 5-sty flat, on lot 25x100.

39TH ST.—A. N. Gitterman Corporation resold 328 East 39th st, a 5-sty tenement, with store, on lot 25x100, for the Yen Realty Corporation to Lilla D. Bonney. It was acquired by the seller last month from Julia D. Tonnelle through the same broker.

Manhattan—North of 59th St.

ARDEN ST.—Hensle Construction Co. sold 23 Arden st, a 5-sty apartment house on plot 27x110, to Sadie W. Smith, who gave in part payment the 3-sty dwelling, 16 West 128th st, reported sold last week.

68TH ST.—Frederick Winant sold 38 East 68th st, a 5-sty dwelling, on lot 16x100.5, which he bought last July from Stephen C. Clark.

71ST ST.—Douglas L. Elliman & Co. have sold for the estate of William Orth 154 East 71st st, a 3-sty dwelling, on lot 20x100.5. The property has been in the same ownership since it was built, 42 years ago.

108TH ST.—D. H. Jackson Co. has sold the 4-sty flat 109 East 108th st, on lot 25x100.

180TH ST.—McDowell & McMahon have sold for George Schwegler to the Riverview Construction Co., Henry M. Bloch, president, the vacant plot 75x100 in the south side of 180th st, 175 ft. east of St. Nicholas av. The buyers will erect a 5-sty 30-family house. The seller has owned the property since 1894. McDowell & McMahon have been appointed agents for the new building.

VAULTS FOR VALUABLES

DAVID EINTRACHT, retired real estate dealer, died on Monday at his home, 2194 7th av, aged seventy. He was born in Cracow, Austria. He is survived by two sons and five daughters.

LOUIS W. GULAGER, a real estate operator and for forty years a resident of Far Rockaway, died on Sunday at his home there, aged seventy-eight. He was a sergeant in Company D, 17th Regiment, during the Civil War and was for 17 years employed with the United States Treasury Department in Manhattan.

W. G. PLATT, aged sixty-seven, a retired real estate operator of Long Island, died at his home, Rochelle Park, N. J.

REAL ESTATE APPRAISALS.

The following values were placed on real estate properties this week by the State appraisers in transfer tax proceedings, affecting Manhattan holdings. The amount specified does not in every case indicate the equity or interest of the decedent. It merely quotes the estimated market value of the realty, regardless of mortgages or other liens:

ANNIE P. CORCORAN.—108 West 61st st block 1132, lot 39, 4-sty flat, 40x100.5, $39,000.

JAMES R. COSTELLO.—419 West 21st st, Block 719, lot 29, 3-sty dw, 21.10x104.6, $14,000.

MARY S. CUNNINGHAM.—4 East 130th st, Block 1754, lot 67½; 3-sty dw, 16.8x99.11, one-third interest, $3,000.

FRANK J. McNICHOLS.—229 East 51st st, Block 1325, lot 16, 4-sty ten, 20x100.5, $10,000; 1332 1st av, Block 1466, lot 4, 4-sty ten, 25x75, $20,000.

REAL ESTATE NOTES.

MARSTON & CO. have moved from 477 5th av to 30 East 42d st.

PEASE & ELLIMAN have been apointed agents for 61 West 52d st.

SHAW & CO. have been appointed agents for 253 West 134th st, 1978 Madison av and 53 West 131st st, 25 West 113th st and 155 West 118th st.

POLIZZI & CO. were the brokers in the recently recorded sale of 509-511 East 13th st for the Mack Construction Co. to Francesco Di Lorenzo.

CLEMENT H. SMITH was the broker in the recently recorded sales of 1320 Brook av and the southeast corner of Grand Boulevard and Concourse and 192d st.

JOHN M. THOMPSON has obtained a mortgage of $21,500 for 3 years, from the Title Guarantee & Trust Co., for Miss Mary Jameson on 58 East 86th st.

ALBERT B. ASHFORTH has been appointed leasing agent of 42 West 15th st and 445 West 45th st; also managing agent of 254 West 31st st.

DOUGLAS L. ELLIMAN & CO. have been appointed agents for the 9-sty apartment house in course of construction at 114-120 East 84th st by the Surrey Realty Co., Samuel A. Herzog, president.

KURZ & UREN were the brokers in the recently recorded sale of the 6-sty loft building at the northwest corner of Greene and West Houston sts for the Helena Realty Co. to Thomas H. Roff.

C. GRAYSON MARTIN is the buyer of the property of the late Benjamin Altman at the northwest corner of 5th av and 50th st, reported sold last week. The brokers were Geo. R. Read & Co.

EUGENE J. BUSHER has placed a mortgage loan of $29,000 for Harry Isaacs on 430-432 East 155th st; also for Eugene Berry $2,500 on 1544 St. Lawrence av, and for Eugene Stratton $2,400 on 1690 Nelson av.

BERT G. FAULHABER announces that he will continue in the real estate appraising and brokerage business at 206 Broadway. Mr. Faulhaber recently sold his agency business at Broadway and 156th st to the Knap & Wasson Co.

TRINITY CHURCH has purchased for $31,000 from Eveline Zingseu the 4-sty building at the southwest corner of Hudson and Desbrosses sts, on lot 25x75. This was the only parcel in the block front between Vestry and Desbrosses sts which the church did not own.

HARRIS & MAURICE MANDELBAUM resold through the Charles F. Noyes Co. their one-fifth interest in 127-131 West 33d st, old 3 and 4-sty buildings on plot 75x98.9, and in 105 Broad st, a 5-sty business building, on plot 36.2x46.1x irreg, to the estate of Aletta M. Hegeman, which owns the other four-fifths.

JAMES K. HACKETT, actor-manager, who recently bought the former W. E. Woodend residence at 58 West 71st st, acquired title on Tuesday from Florentine Sutro to the adjoining house at 56. He now controls a plot 40x100.5. It is said that Mr. Hackett will convert the two houses into one large residence.

DEEDS have been recorded for the transfer of the Bijou Theatre property at 1237-1239 Broadway through to 502-504 6th av, by Alfred M. Heinsheimer and others as trustees, to Walter F. Hopper, of Isaac A. Hopper, Inc. The buyer will erect a 16-sty store, loft and office building, a $1,000,000 loan having been given by the sellers.

BULKLEY & HORTON CO., of Brooklyn, has recently installed a "Repair Department" for handling all repair work, except decorating, on the properties which they manage. They employ mechanics direct, buy their own materials, and have their own shops. Realizing that strict economy on repairs is the most essential thing in obtaining the maximum income from real estate they have carefully planned this department and figure on saving about 25 per cent. for their clients. It is practically a new idea for Brooklyn and should be well received.

GARFIELD REAL ESTATE CO.'S Illustrated Bulletin No. 36, which is just out, contains a selected list of shops, offices, lofts and factories to rent at Rochester, N. Y., for which the company is the sole agent, and in nearly every case it takes the landlord's place as manager. Both tenants and owners appreciate the completeness and efficiency of Garfield service. Its equipment is so large and so many experts are employed for the various parts of its work, that the tenant is certain of quick and efficient attention in any emergency and the landlord knows that every need of the property is cared for promptly and effectively.

AUCTION SALES OF WEEK.

Except where otherwise stated, the properties offered were in foreclosure. Adjournments of legal sales to next week are noted under Advertised Legal Sales.

* Indicates that the property described was bid in for the plaintiff's account.

The Auction Market.

William Ziegler, Jr., as plaintiff, became the owner of the six and seven-story buildings, at 4 and 6 West 37th street, on a bid of $215,000, which was $64,758 less than existing encumbrances. The premises adjoins the new eight-story building of Robert W. Goelet, at the southwest corner of Fifth avenue and 37th street, and this location attracted possible buyers, but the highest bid that an outsider was willing to make was an unsatisfactory one for the plaintiff.

Next week, probably on account of the holiday, will be a rather light one as far as offerings at auction are concerned. Six properties in Manhattan and seven in the Bronx will be knocked down to the highest bidder.

MAKING YOUR TENANT A PARTNER

By R. S. HAWLEY

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for The American Real Estate Co.

THE well nigh universal relationship of landlord and tenant is not ordinarily considered as one of close business partnership. At first thought the idea does not impress one as logical or congenial, yet reflection will reveal no more fertile ground for a business combination. It is patently evident that each is dependent on the other. The merchant's continued prosperity is contingent in large measure upon permanency of local and fair rental. The prosperity of the owner of property lasts only so long as he retains satisfied tenants who are making money and willing to pay rent commensurate with growing business.

Experience unfortunately discloses a sincerely held misconception in the minds of the renting public that rent money is all gain. The varied and heavy disbursements from this source of income are easily lost to sight.

Rental Space a Commodity.

Rental space is a commodity, unlike dry goods or jewelry which, if not sold today, may be disposed of tomorrow and which may be vended in constantly increasing volume from the same space. Rental space is a comparatively fixed quantity which, if not sold month by month, is total loss for that period, and when fully sold cannot be enlarged in volume.

Under the system by which the business of this country is operated, it is evitable that there shall be alternating periods of up and down in the commercial activity of any city. As leases expire they are renewed either at the low rates of slack times or at the bonanza figures of abnormally good times.

In the one case, the tenant obtains a rent ridiculously inadequate for the good times which are sure to follow the dull, and then the landlord becomes determined to make up the loss on the next renewal. In the other case, the tenant must pay a rental much in excess of what his business should support during normal business progress, with the result that at the next recession, rent assistance is asked of the landlord. This condition of affairs engenders a lack of harmony between the two not conducive to the best interests of either.

Appreciating the fact that the community of interest was not being realized on to the full, a solution was sought which would accomplish two things; first, assurance to the tenant of continued occupancy of location at a rental within his ability to pay; and second, giving to the landlord a progressive average rental as his location became more valuable.

A large number of retail businesses were examined as to volume, rental and expense of carrying on business. The investigation brought to light the fact that similar businesses could pay about the same percentage as rent (varying within reasonable limits) of their gross turnover.

Rents Based on Gross Business.

It was found that the average rent paid, based on gross business per annum, varied from just under 2 per cent. for vehicle stores to about 12 per cent. for motion picture houses. Between these extremes were found jewelers, dry goods merchants, shoe stores, haberdashers, clothiers, variety stores, grocers and other lines of business.

The statistics show that taking retail stores as a whole, the general average for rentals is approximately 7 per cent.; this conclusion being arrived at by ascertaining the average rentals of several dozen retail stores in different lines of business, located in various cities.

Ready-to-wear men's clothing dealers paid an average of 4.8 per cent. on their gross turn-over as rent. Haberdashers paid approximately 6.4 per cent. Meat markets average 3.9 per cent. High grade merchant tailors were found to be paying between 7 and 8 per cent. on their sales volume.

Results of Inquisition.

In this connection, the ratio of rent to total cost of doing business was studied with the following results: In retail dry goods shops, rent as an item of expense accounted for between 13 and 17 per cent. Furniture stores were paying about 14 per cent. of their total cost of doing business for rent. Of all the businesses under consideration, the average per cent. of rent to total cost of doing business was just over 15 per cent. The lowest rate was 10 per cent. and the highest 24 per cent.

It is said that a certain confectionery store figures 12½ per cent. of the sales for rent. A centrally located cafe gives 20 per cent. of sales to the landlord as a rental equivalent. A high-class restaurant that has occupied the same location for thirty years observes that the demands each day vary but slightly from 67 per cent. for liquor and 33 per cent. for food. Many first-class barber shops figure $10 per chair for rental.

A certain chain of retail cigar stores have given considerable attention to location problems. It is said that before they lease a store they ascertain the number of people who pass the door every hour, what proportion of the men use tobacco. They calculate upon the law of averages what percentages will be drawn to their store and the rental is figured to conform to this data.

Landlord a Contingent Participant.

Out of this study came the idea that the landlord should be a contingent rather than a preferred participant in the profits of the merchant. A schedule of rent based on a per cent. of gross volume of business was devised and put in operation. The results have been all that could be expected. Some tenants, of course, have not been able to produce more than a modest rental for the space they occupy. Others, however, have shown most encouraging growth, and some have paid much more than anticipated. It is evident that rents under this system will fluctuate, but the average should be better than under the old scheme. In dull times, rent profit will be moderate; in good times, it will be very generous, and to the tenant the rent tax is no longer a burden.

To put the idea into operation was the problem. At first prospective tenants were doubtful, feeling that the landlord was being given too intimate a knowledge of the details of their business. The objections were overcome and soon the scheme was a success.

New Chance Given.

One of the favorable instances may be of interest. A storeroom greatly needed a tenant. One day a man entered the office to inquire the rent. On being told, he replied, "Well, I had the courage to ask anyway." That was a queer answer and he was questioned further. He was a merchant on a side street, about to pass into the hands of the court. His stock was the best of its kind in the city and the man was a real merchant. His location was the only drawback. In the right store on the main thoroughfare he could not fail.

Negotiations with this merchant's creditors bearing an offer of rent on a percentage basis and rental credit for a year if need be, gave him a new chance. Among his stockholders he raised enough money to make the move and do some advertising. The rent credit had to be extended, but before the twelve months were over, rent was paid to date and was accruing month by month at a rate almost equal to that originally quoted. Since then this business has produced a rent much in excess of what could have been had on any fixed basis.

It stands to reason that fewer store buildings and upstairs spaces would remain vacant if the "average plan" of rentals was more thoroughly analyzed, and the tenant and landlord taken a little more into each other's confidence when the deal is under contemplation.

The Burglary Bugbear.

FREQUENT reports of burglaries or attempted entry in high class apartments have aroused the residents of certain sections of Harlem and the upper West Side. As a result, endless annoyance for renting agents and owners of tenant properties in the affected sections, has been created by tenants threatening to move unless they are better protected. Their specific requests for protection are for the most part impossible to comply with for a number of very significant reasons.

Tenants of apartments in these neighborhoods are making demands upon the owners for all manner of protective devices from burglar alarms to iron bars for all window openings. The very nature of these requests preclude the possibility of the owner to comply; and even, if he were willing, the cost of installation would be prohibitive as well as antagonistic to the provisions of the Tenement House Law.

To protect themselves from the importunities of nervous tenants, the owners of various properties in the affected areas have made an investigation of the conditions. In this investigation the police department and burglary insurance companies have co-operated and the results, so far as actual facts go, are somewhat unusual.

In the first place, real burglaries are no more frequent recently, than they were at other times. The newspapers with their three column heads "Burglars Infest Harlem" or "Upper West Side a Prey to House Breakers" have done much to spread terror in the hearts of householders however. These stories often make good reading but frequently have no real facts to substantiate them. Their effect on the community is quite noticeable.

A more serious condition than this does exist, however, in the same neighborhoods; and it is one which is more difficult to locate and eradicate. As a result of this condition the companies insuring against theft are often the losers. In these instances a burglary is deliberately framed up for the purpose of collecting the insurance and sometimes the policy holder has been able to get away with it. This game is an old one and quite simple in operation. An apartment is rented, furnished and occupied, and a blanket policy on contents taken out. The dishonest policy holder then removes articles of value from the premises and the stage is set to represent the result of a visit of a sneak thief or burglar and then the insurance company and the police department notified simultaneously. Oftentimes the "burglary" fools both police and insurance men.

VERTICAL TRANSPORTATION

Its Recent Development—The Gearless Traction Electric Elevator—Features of Security Explained

By R. J. HUNTINGTON
Pacific Coast Manager, Otis Elevator Co.

THE rapid increase in the height of the modern office building has demanded an elevator that has a practically unlimited car travel, and this demand has developed the gearless traction electric elevator. In this type of elevator, the working parts have been reduced to the simplest possible elements. The elevator engine consists of a motor, traction driving sheave and a brake pulley, the latter enclosed with a pair of powerful springs actuated electrically released brake shoes, all compactly grouped and mounted on a heavy iron bed plate.

Instead of the high speed motor used with the geared electric elevators, a slow speed shunt wound motor, designed especially for this service, is used. The armature shaft, which is of high tensile steel, of unusually large diameter, is also the driving shaft, and on it are mounted the brake pulley and the traction sheave. The introduction of the direct drive, and the consequent doing away of all the intermediate gearing between the motor and the driven member results in a machine of remarkably high efficiency, and the use of the slow speed motor, together with the carefully designed controller, gives starting, accelerating, retarding and stopping features unequaled by any other type of elevator.

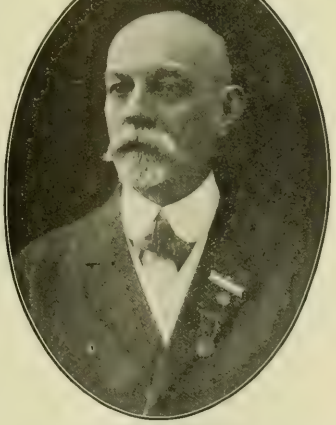
The driving cables, from one end of which is supported the car, and at the other end the counterweight, pass partially around the traction driving sheave, continuing over or under an idler leading sheave, thence again around the driving sheave, forming a complete loop around these two sheaves, this arrangement resulting in the necessary tractive effort for lifting the car. One of the striking advantages resulting from this arrangement of cables, and the method of driving same, is the decrease in traction which follows the striking on the bottom of the hoistway of either the car or counterweight, and the consequent minimizing of the lifting power of the machine until normal conditions are resumed.

Inasmuch as in any properly constructed elevator the parts are so arranged that the member (car or counterweight), which is at the bottom of the hoistway, must strike and come to rest before the other member can possibly come in contact with the overhead work, it will be readily seen that the above-mentioned decrease in tractive effort is a very valuable and effective safety feature inherent in this type of elevator.

The controller is so designed in connection with the motor, that the initial retarding of the car in bringing the same to stop is independent of the brake, the latter being requisitioned to bring the car to final and positive stop, and to hold it at the landing. The motor is also so governed electrically as to prevent its attaining any excessive speed with the car on the down motion, no matter what the load may be. In designing the controlling equipment, one of the features demanding greatest consideration—in view of the very high speed at which the cars run—was the automatic retarding of their speed and the final stop of same automatically at the upper and lower terminals of travel.

This result is very satisfactorily attained with the installation in the elevator hatchway of two groups of switches, located respectively at the top and bottom of the hatchway, each switch in the series being opened one after another as the car passes, each operation resulting in the reduction of speed until the opening of the final switch brings the car to a stop, applying the brake. This operation is entirely independent of the operator in the car, and is effective even though the car operating device be left in the full speed position. Failure of any one of these switches merely results in the stopping of the car, which cannot be run until the switch is put in commission again.

Another feature of security of the greatest interest and importance is provided in the oil cushion buffers. These are placed in the hoistway, one under the car and one under the counterweight and are arranged to bring either the car or the counterweight to a positive stop through the telescoping of the buffer—this telescoping occurring at a carefully calculated rate of speed which is regulated by the escape of oil from one chamber of the buffer to another. The buffers have been proven capable by test of bringing a loaded car safely to rest from full speed, and in this respect are unique among elevator safety features of comparatively low cost.



The usual safety devices installed in connection with the modern high-grade apparatus are used with this type of elevator, including speed governors, wedge clamp safety devices for gripping the rails in case of the car attaining excessive speed, and potential switches. To the advantageous features already enumerated should be added the simplicity of installation and economy of space, resulting from the use of this machine, especially if the machine itself be located over the hoistway, and the refinements which have been worked out have resulted in an apparatus which in the existing installations has given immediate demonstraton of its economy.

We have given a more detailed description of the gearless traction electric type, due to the fact that it is the most highly perfected elevator apparatus yet made, and forms the elevator equipment of the world's tallest business structures. A modification of this type is seen in the 2:1 roping gearless traction machine designed for car speeds up to 450 feet per minute, using a smaller, higher speed motor. The roping is arranged with sheaves on car and counterweight, so that these members travel at one-half the speed of the cables themselves. The gearless traction type of elevator for passenger service—either the 1:1 or the 2:1 roping, is unquestionably in a class by itself, and the rapidly increasing number of installations testifies to its extreme popularity among the leading architects, engineers and builders.

HOW SAFETY PAYS IN CONSTRUCTION

By T. HUGH BOORMAN, C. E.

AN almost endless theme would seem to be the question of how "Safety Pays in Construction." I cannot but think that the financial aspect has too frequently been overlooked by those having particularly the preparation of specifications for engineering and building construction. The carrying on of work being under the control of the constructors or contractors, who employ the men prosecuting the same, may lead some to drop from their minds the necessity of thought for the safety of the men engaged on the actual work and it may be thought that the Workmen's Compensation Act is cause enough for contractors to take every precaution against accidents.

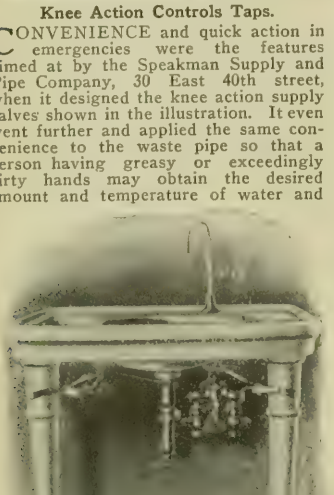
T. HUGH BOORMAN.

The passage of the Workmen's Compensation Law has added materially to the cost of all lines of construction. I know of one firm who claimed that the cost to them of this compulsory insurance was eleven per cent., so that the pay roll of 1912 of $100,000 was now $110,000—whether this was excessive or not I cannot state, as other concerns quoted eight per cent. as their added cost. That the change from the old style of Employer's Liability Insurance to the present method is a good and fair one, I trust no one will deny.

Under the old system the employer paid for legal protection against claims, and lawyers got more of the money paid when judgment could be obtained in the court for cases of death or injury from accidents. On the score of economy I contend that greater care than ever is now necessary to guard against accidents, as if the number is reduced, the rate of insurance can be decreased. Then, in the first place, safety pays as a cause for the reduction in cost of insurance and any suggestions by engineers or architects to the contractor looking to this end, will be appreciated by the contractor.

Safety and sanitation, if not synonymous, go hand in hand, and the health of the man must be a matter of the deepest consideration. This is on the line of strict economy that the better the physical condition of the man, the more efficient work you get from him. Going further, the better the moral condition of the worker, the better the results of his work. Colonel Goethals, at Panama, was careful to provide healthful amusements for the army of laborers, and mental and physical amusements, added to the good condition and powers of endurance of the employees of the United States Government there.

To engineers, particularly the matter of camp equipment must be an attractive study; time is well spent that is devoted to consideration of how to improve the condition of the workingman. The consideration for employees must be appreciated by the employed and better work obtained thereby. I recall that in the line of some of my road work I always insisted on having oatmeal placed in the ice water buckets and the men worked the better for that small thought for prevention of colic. I have heard of contractors giving their men hot coffee on the work in severe weather. That pays.



—Savings banks, after being out of the market for loans on mortgage for a long period, are again putting out money on such securities.

USEFUL APPLIANCES

Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration

Knee Action Controls Taps.

CONVENIENCE and quick action in emergencies were the features aimed at by the Speakman Supply and Pipe Company, 30 East 40th street, when it designed the knee action supply valves shown in the illustration. It even went further and applied the same convenience to the waste pipe so that a person having greasy or exceedingly dirty hands may obtain the desired amount and temperature of water and lave himself without actually touching with his hands any fixture. The value of this device in hospitals where hands of surgeons and nurses must be sterile is apparent.

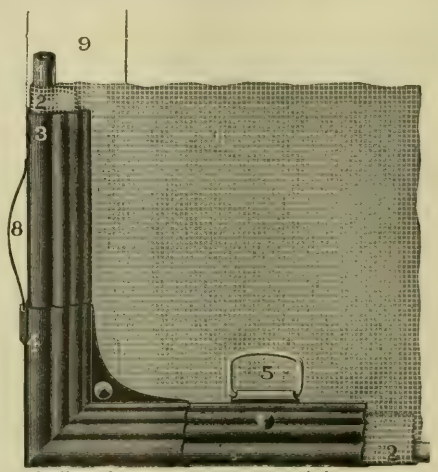
The picture shows a regular clinic lavatory fitted with knee action mixing valves. These fixtures are secured to the wall by heavy brackets, making them substantial and easy to install under any ordinary lavatory. The operator has positive control of the inflow or outflow at all times. The lever does not have to be held in position, but stays in any position in which it is placed.

Composition Flooring.

FEW persons know what composition flooring really is or why this material is more desirable in certain classes of buildings than any other floor covering. This is due in part to the comparatively recent discovery of its process of manufacture, and also to the secrecy with which the business itself has been conducted in this country, says Herbert E. Gernert, in Safety Engineering.

Composition flooring is what might be termed a magnesium chloride cement. When commercial magnesite is mixed with a strong solution of magnesium chloride, it dries or sets in a few hours into a firm, hard mass, capable of receiving a high polish. Certain fillers and coloring matters are always added to give to the finished product attractiveness, resiliency, elasticity and other desirable qualities.

This material is laid in a plastic slate and bonds directly to wood, concrete or metal. It takes its initial set in from two to six hours and may then be troweled to a very smooth and even finish. After 24 or 36 hours it may be walked upon, but it is advisable to protect it against constant and heavy traffic for at least 48 hours.



Perhaps the most striking feature about composition flooring is the fact that it is sanitary. When properly installed its surface is smooth and unabsorptive. Unlike cement or terrazzo, it will not give off dust when walked upon. A room, no matter how large, may be laid in one continuous stretch without cracks or joints of any description. Moreover, a sanitary cove base may be readily installed with this same material so that all joints between walls and floors are germ and dirtproof. Little wonder it is then that these floors are in great demand for such places as hospitals, schools, restaurants and public buildings of every description.

Composition is also fire resistive. It will successfully withstand the action of heat to a temperature of from 1,500 to 1,800 deg. F.; at a higher temperature it will not burn, but will crack or burst, due to the formation of steam from the water which remains after the setting process is complete.

Resiliency must always be taken into consideration in estimating the value of a flooring material. It is that quality or feature of a floor which makes it either hard and tiresome to the tread or soft and rebounding. Cork, rubber and linoleum rank highest among all flooring materials in this respect, but among the fire and germproof materials, composition ranks higher.

The resiliency of a composition floor depends largely upon the fillers used in its manufacture and the method of its installation. It should be added, however, that a highly resilient floor is not necessarily, nor even generally, one which possesses a soft or penetrable surface. Composition ranks high among the standard flooring materials in both crushing and tensile strength. Some composition floorings laid ½ inch thick showed that its ultimate crushing strength was approximately 10,000 pounds a square inch. Its tensile strength is about 600 pounds a square inch.

Composition is inherently a non-slippery floor covering. It can be mixed and laid in such a manner that even on steep inclines there will be no danger of persons slipping or injuring themselves. It weighs less than 4 pounds a square foot after setting is complete. For that reason it is often used in old buildings where the supports to the floor are not strong. It is not absolutely waterproof, but shows an absorption of about 2 per cent after 48 hours of immersion in water. Thereafter, it will gradually take on more water and in time will soften to a point of disintegration. It is advisable, therefore, never to use composition where water is to remain on the floor for more than a few hours at a time, or where the foundation is damp or is likely to become damp.

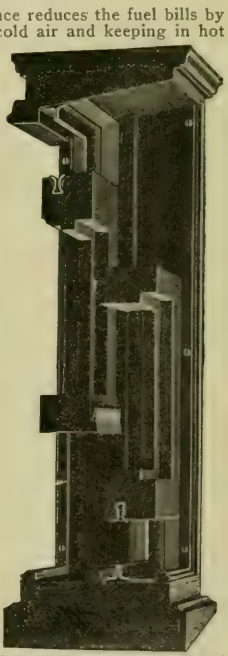
Composition does not cost much more than good linoleum and is cheaper than either tile, terrazzo or marble. Because of its reasonableness in price, its durability, sanitation, fireproofness and other advantageous qualities, it is being used more and more by the leading architects and builders who know its value.

Permanent Fortification.

THE Armstrong Cork Installation Co., of Pittsburgh, Pa., is issuing a novel booklet under the above title, but with a sub cognomen, entitled "At War With Heat." The booklet describes the fight that refrigerating companies are constantly called upon to make in protecting stock in cold storage from heat, incidently calling attention to the fact that cork brick and cork board as made by this company is meeting with increasing use by discerning specifiers.



A Self-Wringing Mop.

VARIOUS self-wringing mops have been introduced from time to time, but most of them have been rather complicated in their mechanism. One that differs from others in this respect, at least, is being introduced by the Gustav Franklin Company, of 8 South Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill. It is known as the "Dutch Maid" and its distinctive feature lies in the fact that one end of the mop-head is attached to a crank which passes through the handle. To wring the mop this handle is turned, twisting the mop-head and forcing all the water out of the device. The hands do not come in contact with the water. Another advantage is that with this mop a forward and backward motion is obtained so that there is no flopping of the mop itself to spatter furniture or baseboards, an important factor in the cleansing of office buildings and apartments. The mop presents fifty square inches of cleaning surface, which is said to be unusually large.

Weather Strip Windows.

HERE is a device that will appeal to tenants of apartment houses and residences facing upon territories where strong winds make it almost impossible to heat rooms. it is known as the Higgin all-metal weather strip, which makes a window dust-tight and draft-tight and at the same time makes the sash slide easily and without noise and prevents rattling.

The appliance reduces the fuel bills by keeping out cold air and keeping in hot air, and consists of two strips made of different metals—one, of zinc, forming a track on which the sash slides, is attached to the window frame, while the other, of phosphor bronze, is inserted in the sash. This latter has spring flanges which come in contact with the zinc strip and completely close up the space between the sash and frame. This method effectually seals the aperture. It also reduces the friction and makes an easy sliding window.

Another device manufactured by the same concern is an all-metal window screen which cannot shrink, swell or warp. It is adapted to any style of window and is shown in the accompanying illustration. The netting is carried around an inside round frame and therefore cannot bag or pull loose. There are no sharp edges to cut the netting.

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

$1,000,000 Multi-Family House Project For Southeast Corner of Park Avenue and 61st Street

WORK is rapidly progressing on the steel frame work for a high-class apartment being erected at the southeast corner of Park avenue and 61st street. The E. A. L. Park Avenue Company, Edgar A. Levy, president, is the owner and builder of the structure, and the plans and specification were prepared by Schwartz & Gross, architects, 347 Fifth avenue.

Foundations were built by the Godwin Construction Company, 251 Fourth avenue, and the following sub-contracts, for labor and materials, have been awarded by the owner, who is contracting separately for all work: Mason work, William M. Moore Construction Co., 516 West 139th street; structural steel, Hinkle Iron Company, 534 West 56th street; fireproof arches and concrete floors, A. G. Pierce Company, 103 Park avenue; cut stone, J. H. Young Cut Stone Company, 136th street and Locust avenue; elevators, Otis Elevator Company, 26th street and 11th avenue; granite, I. W. & C. Horn Company, 2514 Park avenue; ornamental iron, A. Perlman Iron Works, 1735 West Farms road; plumbing, Lasette & Murphy, 238 West 108th street. Other subcontracts to complete the structure will be awarded in the near future.

The structure will be thirteen stories in height, with basement and sub-basement, and is being erected on a plot 100x100 feet. Two families will be accommodated on each floor, with a total of 26 suites for the entire building. Each floor has one apartment of twelve rooms and four baths, and another of nine rooms, with three baths. The larger apartment occupies the corner and has a frontage on Park avenue for the main or community rooms, with master bed chambers arranged along the 61st street side. Kitchen and three servants' bedrooms front on a large interior court. The smaller apartment has two rooms on Park avenue, master bed chambers on a wide side court, and servants' department on the interior court.

There are two passenger elevators, one serving the twelve-room apartments and another for the exclusive use of the nine-room apartments. One service elevator, practically isolated from the balance of the building, opens on to the service hall and serves all apartments. The one stairway with which the building is to be equipped is practically for the exclusive use of servants, although it can be used as an emergency exit.

Much thought and study on the part of the architect is evidenced in the layout of the various rooms and their relation to one another. They are well grouped for the various purposes they serve and that has been accomplished without loss of space. Rooms are all well lighted and without exception have adequate facilities for cross ventilation. The rooms, which have outlook on generous sized courts and yards, are assured of good light and air.

Privacy for the family and its guests has been assured by completely isolating the rooms provided for servants from the community rooms and master bed chambers by solid partitions and an additional servants' corridor accessible only through the kitchen and the further isolation of the service elevator.

The kitchen in each apartment is most complete in its equipment. Each has gas range, sink, laundry trays and dressers and closets. The butler's pantry has additional dish closets, built in refrigerators and pantry sink.

E. A. L. Park Ave. Co., Owner and Builder. Schwartz & Gross, Architects.
NEW STRUCTURE AT PARK AVENUE AND 61ST STREET.

Plumbing throughout the structure will be of the highest grade and the fixtures to be installed will be of the best porcelain, designed to meet the fullest requirements of high-class tenants.

The rooms throughout the apartments are of generous size and well proportioned. In the twelve-room apartments there is a living-room, 26x19 feet, equipped with wood-burning open fireplace, reception room 12x19 feet and dining room 18x19 feet. These three rooms are intercommunicating and open directly from a foyer 19.8x9 feet. Passengers stepping out of the elevator enter a small square vestibule or entry, and thence into the foyer. Four master bedrooms are arranged along a private hall. The two main chambers have a common dressing room with bath. The other two bed rooms are each equipped with private bath rooms.

The servants' department consists of three bedrooms and bath and is isolated from the balance of the apartment. One doorway from the private hall gives entrance into the corridor serving the servants' department. The kitchen is 22.11x15.7 feet and is designed as a servants' dining hall as well as a kitchen. Between the kitchen and dining room is located a good-sized and well-equipped butler's pantry.

An item worth particular mention in connection with this structure is the fact that all the space has been made good use of, and the apartments abound in built-in closets of unusual size. The twelve-room apartments alone have at least a dozen built-in closets in addition to built-in wardrobes in servants' bed rooms, dressers, dish closets, refrigerators, etc.

The rooms in the smaller suites are of approximately the same size and proportions as those in the larger ones. The reception room has been omitted and there is one less master bed room and only two servants' rooms. The servants' rooms are entered directly from the private hall and not through a separate servants' corridor.

In the finish of the building only the finest of hardwoods will be employed. The decorations will be according to the individual tastes of the various tenants who will select fabrics and colors. According to the present plans the building will be completed and ready for occupancy about August 1, 1915. Apartments will rent from $3,700 to $6,000, according to the number of rooms selected.

STATE BUILDERS MEET.

Resolutions on the Subject of Workmen's Compensation.

At the annual convention of the New York Builders' Association at Utica, C. G. Norman, of this city, was elected president; E. M. Gregory, of Corning, first vice-president; E. A. Keeler, of Albany, second vice-president; James M. Carter, of Buffalo, secretary-treasurer, and Lewis Harding, of this city, chairman of the executive committee. The convention discussed fully the matter of compensation law and uniform contracts, and a resolution was adopted recommending that the Governor and State Compensation Commission consider certain important revisions of the existing act. The compensation committee, of which William Crawford is chairman, was retained for another year's service. The convention adopted a resolution favoring the equality of union and non-union workmen so as to relieve the unemployed situation as far as possible.

The resolutions on Workmen's Compensation read in part as follows:

"That we do not favor paying to alien dependents of deceased workmen large awards and benfits under compensation.

"That this convention believes that the best interests of all parties concerned is served by permitting the four forms of insurance as now allowed under the existing compensation law. This convention further believes that it is not to the best interest of the public that the limit when compensation begins shall not be reduced from 14 days to seven days.

"That this convention recommends that the existing compensation law be so amended as to absolutely secure compensation for injured employed in all building industries protecting them particularly against employers not carrying workmen's compensation insurance.

"This convention would further recommend to the Compensation Commission a consistent revision of the rates as applying to the contracting fraternity, and we further recommend that insofar as possible the merit rating of contractors' risks be allowed and that this merit rating apply to all contractors.

"This convention further recommends that the best interests of the employes, as well as the insuring public would be best served by separating the State fund from the commission and placing same under the jurisdiction of the commissioner of insurance in the State of New York. In other words, the same supervision being given said State fund as is given to all stock and mutual companies."

Exit Facilities.

The Building Committee of the Board of Aldermen has taken up the work of drafting an ordinance regulating exit facilities in buildings. When enacted the regulations will apply only to buildings thereafter erected, other than tenements and factories, and only in part to private dwellings. Tenements and factories are regulated by other laws.

As the ordinance is yet in the formative state, it is not ready for publication, but in a general way it can be said, that the regulations will cover doors and doorways, the construction, strength and material of stairs and their enclosures. In buildings exceeding thirty-six feet in height and occupied by more than fifty persons above the first story the stairways shall be enclosed with walls and partitions of fireproof material and construction. The stairways in buildings of less height will have partitions of approved slow-burning material and construction. It is understood that smokeproof towers will be required in certain buildings where the fire or panic hazard is prominent. Horizontal exits will be specified for certain other buildings. Of churches, theatres and other places of assembly it will be required that the aisles and seats shall be arranged to facilitate egress in case of fire or accident.

State Compensation Commission.

The New York office of the State Workmen's Compensation Commission continued business as usual, notwithstanding the exhaustion of the appropriation, but the expectation is that the department will eventually be reorganized and made a bureau in the State Insurance Department. Meanwhile a temporary appropriation will be made to continue its work. A legislative investing committee heard testimony early in the week.

The Housesmiths and Structural Iron Workers of New York and Vicinity, Inc., have sent resolutions to Gov. Whitman protesting against many provisions of the Compensation Law. The resolutions say the law has by no means proved to be the undiluted blessing its makers pronounced it. It has aroused among workmen a great deal of honest criticism and discontent.

Degnon Company to Erect Building.

Albert Thompson, architect, 1133 Broadway, is preparing preliminary sketches for an office building to be built on Van Alst avenue, Long Island City, by the Degnon Contracting Co., Michael J. Degnon, president, 30 East 42nd street, Manhattan. The structure will cost about $200,000.

Contract Awarded for Newark Market.

Essex Construction Co., 85 Academy street, Newark, N. J., has been awarded a general contract to erect the Center Market, at Broad and Canal streets, Newark. The plans and specifications were prepared by Hooper & Co., 118 Market street, Newark, and the structure will be erected under the jurisdiction of the Common Council of the City of Newark. The building will be constructed of brick, steel and reinforced concrete, two stories in height and will cover a plot 127x205 feet. It will cost in the neighborhood of $700,000.

Proposed West End Avenue Apartment.

Mayer & Mayer (Inc.), 30 West 29th street, who recently obtained the property at the northeast corner of West End avenue and 80th street, contemplate improving the site with a modern, high-class apartment house, probably thirteen stories in height. The owners have not retained an architect as yet, nor have they determined upon any except the most important details of construction.

BRONX BUILDING PROJECTS.

January's Filings Substantially Larger Than in Corresponding Periods.

WITH so many non-employed, particularly in the building trades, it will be encouraging to learn that the record of new building plans filed in the Bureau of Buildings, Borough of the Bronx, during the month of January, 1915, shows a substantial increase over the record of the corresponding month in the years 1913 and 1914, as the following figures will indicate:

Plans for January, 1913, 1914 and 1915.

New Buildings.—Bronx, No. in 1913, 54; estimated cost, $1,577,426; in 1914, 49; estimated cost, $1,316,850; in 1915, 63; estimated cost, $2,072,250.

The plans last month included one public school at a cost of $275,000 on Spofford avenue, from Coster to Faile streets, in the Hunts Point section; one club house at a cost of $240,000, on Washington avenue, from 160th to 161st streets, for the Young Men's Christian Association; one hospital building, at a cost of $200,000 for the Montefiore Home and 30 apartment houses to cost in the aggregate $1,259,000.

The building industry is an important factor in this community and a revival of business spells prosperity for the Bronx. While conditions generally may justify to some extent the pessimistic view that everyone seems to take of the situation, the time is about ripe for a slice of optimism. A little encouragement and a concentration of endeavor will accomplish more real good than lamentations.

ROBERT J. MOOREHEAD,
Supt. of Buildings.

Mulliken & Moeller Plan New Apartment

The Eighty-sixth Street and West End Avenue Company, controlled by Mulliken & Moeller, architects and builders, 103 Park avenue, has acquired the property at 304-308 West 86th street, 62x102.2 feet, and contemplate the improvement of the site by erecting a modern, high class apartment house. The structure will be twelve stories in height and will be similar to the one the same company now has under construction on the adjoining property at 320 West 86th st.

NEW EDUCATIONAL EDIFICE IN THE BRONX

Midtown Construction Co., General Contractor. C. B. J. Snyder, Architect.

FOUNDATIONS have been completed for the Evander Childs High School, now being erected by the Board of Education in the south side of 184th street, from Crescent street to Fields place, Bronx. The building is of brick and limestone, five stories in height, and in dimensions approximately 200x132 feet. C. B. J. Snyder, architect for the Board of Education, places the cost of the structure at $500,000. The Midtown Construction Co., 148 West 36th street, Manhattan is erecting the building under a general contract. Subcontracts for work and materials have been awarded as follows: Structural steel, Hinkle Iron Co., 534 West 56th street; cut stone, David Miller Co., 315 East 103d street; terra cotta, Atlantic Terra Cotta Co., 1170 Broadway; plumbing, P. F. Kenny Co., 33 Old Broadway; ornamental iron, Standard Iron Works, 540 West 58th street; roofing (slate), Hecla Slate Co., 205 Lewis street; sheet metal work, Eagle Cornice & Skylight Works, 211 East 117th street; interior marble, Cerussi Marble Works, 271 East 135th street; tiling, G. Pardee Tile Co., 45 Grove street; fireproof doors, United Metal Covered Sash & Door Co., 2052 Bronx street. Additional subcontracts to complete the structure will be let soon.

Cauldwell-Wingate Co. Awarded Contract.

A general contract for the erection of the Y. M. C. A. building to be located at the southwest corner of Washington avenue and 161st street, has been awarded to the Cauldwell-Wingate Company, 381 Fourth avenue. Louis E. Jallade, 37 Liberty street, is the architect. The building will cost more than $225,000.

Post & McCord Low Bidders.

Post & McCord, Inc., submitted the lowest bid on Thursday, to the New York Municipal Railways in the general contract for elevated extension to the Brooklyn subway. About 13,000 tons of structural shapes and plates will be required. The second lowest bid received was from Snare & Triest, and bids were close among fourteen competitors. The steel order will probably be placed with the American Bridge Company when the general contract is formally awarded.

New Madison Avenue Loft.

Jardine, Hill & Murdock, 3 West 29th street, are the architects for a twenty-one story store and loft building project to be erected at 309-313 Madison avenue, adjoining the southwest corner of 42nd street. The structure, as designed, will have an extension at 28 East 42d street which will be four stories in height. The building will have frontages of 52.6 feet on Madison avenue, 23.6 feet in East 42nd street and will have a maximum depth of 118.6 feet. The site is owned by August Heckscher and the improvement is estimated to cost more than $350,000.

—Real estate men used to be interested in knowing the number of vacant parcels left in any given section. The tax records disclose that there are 7,202 vacant parcels in the Borough of Manhattan, valued at $160,000,000. In the entire city there are 454,095 parcels of vacant land, valued at $618,000.

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

PRACTICALLY EVERY COMMODITY STIFFENED PRICES DURING JANUARY—MORE ADVANCES EXPECTED—SHADING NIL

Cement Cuts Bring Little New Business—
Brick Strengthening—Hydrated Lime Firm

MORE changes in the list prices of building materials have occurred within the last month than at any time in a year and a half. Practically every change has been upward. The accompanying table shows the trend of the market. Changes are indicated in black face type.

On January 2 open cargo common Hudson brick was quoted at $5. This brick is not being quoted today. Covered brick is bringing $5.75 and $6.25. Raritan brick is quoted at $6 flat. Second-hand brick has shifted from $2.50 and $2.75 to $2.75 low. Newark yard prices are up a quarter a thousand.

Portland cement has been cut by certain interests without regard to the trend of local building conditions. A few sales have been made at a mill base below seventy-five cents, but the real market is clinging to an eighty-cent mill base. Practically every dealer has stacked and there is little cement moving at the insurgent rate. It is the plan of the standard companies to filibuster, not so much with the idea of inducing new business to come out at this level as to give the obstreperous ones a surfeit of unprofitable business. There is no change in sight, but none of the important companies are contracting far ahead at prices below $1.42 along side of dock, N. Y.

German cements are now procurable, but importers are not making quotations except on application. Crushed stone is off about five cents a yard from last month's quotation of $1 for inch and a half trap rock and three-quarter inch sizes. There is practically no inch and and a half blue stone available, hence it is not being quoted. Three quarter inch blue is quoted at $1.15 and —, but it is not plentiful.

Double thick window glass discounts have changed from 90-10 and 90-20 to 90-15 and 90-20 per cent. off jobber's lists. Plate glass discounts have changed from 90-30 to 90-25 per cent.

No change is reported in gravel, but screened Cow Bay sand, while nominally quoted at 50 cents, the same as last month, is weak at that figure. Hollow tile is without change in local quotations from last month. Lime is steady and hydrated finishing is still being quoted at $10.50 a ton. This commodity is fairly stiff at that figure. Linseed oil at 60 and 61 cents is likely to move up, following a sharp advance in the price of flaxseed at Duluth this week. An advance of ten cents is shown during the last month. Lubricants are showing signs of advancing on high grades.

Practically every department of lumber shows a slight change over last month's list as published in the Record and Guide. Lath shows an advance of from ten to twenty cents. Inch and a half round is still not a quotable commodity. This stiffening is usual at this time of the year.

Plaster quotations at —— and $10 last month has changed to $10 and ——, indicating that shading has been checked. In the slate market an upward movement in the price of Genuine Bangor may be reported at the first of the week. Otherwise there is no change. The table shows the range from $4.75 to —. Steel at Waverly is steady at 1.85c for shapes and plates and 1.80c for bars.

Plan filings for the week follow. In the corresponding week last year 196 new building plans were filed in the city, the estimated value of which was $2,774,410.

NEW JERSEY STRIKE LAW.
Relating to Advertising for Help To Take Places of Departing Men.

AMONG the bills introduced in the New Jersey legislature in the present session of the legislature is that state is Assembly No. 43, entitled: "An act to secure for mechanics and others payment for their labor and materials bestowed upon or for any building and regulating the creation, enforcement and discharge of their liens, therefor." (Referred to Committee on Judiciary.)

Assembly, No. 66, "An Act to regulate advertisements and solicitations for employees during strikes, lockouts or other labor troubles or disputes, and providing penalties for the violation of its provisions."

This bill makes it unlawful for any employer to advertise for labor to fill the places of strikers without stating in the advertisement that a strike or lockout exists, together with the date of its commencement, the name of the employer and the location of the factory, mine or plant.

Assembly, No. 63, "An Act to make lawful certain agreements between employees and laborers and to limit the issuing of injunctions in certain cases."

Assembly, No. 64, makes compulsory one day's rest in seven for all classes of labor, except certain employees, such as janitors, watchmen, etc.

COMMON BRICK.
Current Prices $5.75 to $6.25 Without Fluctuation or Shading.

BRICK is steady. Prices have prevailed at $5.75 to $6.25 for the week, despite interference with building operations by the snowfall and the requisitioning of trucks by snow contractors which interfered with riding.

Official transactions for Hudson River brick covering the week ending Thursday, Feb. 4, in the wholesale market, with comparison for the corresponding period last year and a comparative statement of Hudson brick unloaded from barges for consumption here, follows:

REAL ESTATE RECORD AND BUILDERS GUIDE.

REAL ESTATE BOARD'S ANNUAL BANQUET

Past Conditions Reviewed and Future Dwelt Upon by the Mayor and Other Speakers—Largest Gathering in Organization's History

REAL estate was "king" at the nineteenth annual banquet of the Real Estate Board of New York, held at the Waldorf-Astoria on the evening of February 6. Fully 950 people, prominently identified with real estate, were present, but the casual observer could not detect a trace of pessimism in their attitudes. To be sure, most of them had felt the recent period of depression, but on all sides expressions of optimism were heard.

Mayor Mitchel was the principal speaker, and he was followed by Comptroller Prendergast, Dudley Field Malone, Collector of the Port of New York; Robert E. Dowling, chairman of the Workmen's Compensation Commission; Haley Fiske, second vice-president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company; James V. Barry, Dr. John Huston Finley and Laurence M. D. McGuire, president of the board.

Budget of 1916.

Utmost importance was given the utterances of the Mayor, because many felt that their welfare hung on the attitude of the present administration. "The great problem that confronts the Board of Estimate in preparing the budget for 1916," said Mayor Mitchel, "is the proposed State tax, which the city could only meet by levying additional taxes on the already overburdened real estate. The budget for 1916 will have to be increased, and in order that this will not be excessive, we will have to practice the utmost economy and efficiency, as we pledged ourselves to do before we came into office.

"Some of the enormous expenditures that have kept the budget as large as it is are as follows: The Board of Education requires $41,000,000, but if we can get the Legislature to give us control of the education in this city we will have done away with one of the principal expenses.

"If the city were left to itself we would not need a higher budget. The direct State tax is variously estimated from $15,000,000 to $22,000,000, of which New York will have to pay about 70 per cent. In this lies the real problem of the next year's budget, and for this reason the taxpayers and people of the city should take more interest in the State budget.

$59,000,000 Written In.

"I want to tell you that we have written into our budget $59,000,000, which represents the present municipal debt, and which we have inherited from past administrations. I believe in absolute home rule. If the Board of Estimate had the same control over the county offices as it has over municipal offices, it would be able to make a marked reduction in the city's expenses.

"We must either increase the tax rate or develop some new sources of revenue, or reduce in amount or character the service the city government is now rendering. The first alternative I am loath to do, for I fear that real estate is carrying all the burden possible.

"In regard to the proposed taxing of incomes over $2,000, nothing definite has been accomplished, but something must be done, without increasing the present tax on real estate."

MAYOR MITCHEL.
Principal Speaker at the Real Estate Banquet.

Comptroller Prendergast followed the Mayor, and said that the people of the city need not become unduly disturbed about the State tax, that no reliable figures were obtainable, and that its only justification lay in the fact that the State found out that it cannot finish the barge canal under the appropriation already made.

"I can see no good and proper reason why the City of New York should be asked so abruptly to make up $15,000,000 or so, deficit in the State debt. If all the former appropriations for the canal were made on fifty-year bonds, why should those at Albany now turn to a direct State tax? United action must be taken to prevent this act being sanctioned by the Legislature."

Interesting Figures Given.

Mr. Fiske gave some interesting figures about the amount of money that the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company had out on mortgage in the city, and also stated that his company had not called a single loan for the purpose of increasing the mortgage rate. On the other hand, he stated that in several instances the interest rate had been reduced. "New York City will find itself again," said Mr. Fiske, "and when that time comes we will enter into the greatest era of prosperity that we have ever known. It is a law of economics that real estate is the last to feel the benefits from the turn of the tide. It is very like a valley lying to the west of a mountain which does not get the early morning sun, but receives its warmth and benefits long after its neighbors on the other side of the mountain are in darkness.

"The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company has about $208,000,000 of its funds invested in real estate mortgages all over the country, but of that sum between $170,000,000 and $175,000,000 is placed upon realty in New York City. This shows our confidence in the local market."

Mr. McGuire said, in part:

"It is estimated that the City of New York boasts 150,000 property owners, whose holdings are assessed at more than $8,000,000,000, yet it is a lamentable fact that until the present time these interests never have been organized satisfactorily. Labor and civic organizations and various societies have gained recognition from the city and State authorities, but legislation has been enacted at times without due regard and consideration for this vast army, representing the best type of citizenship in the nation.

"Only during the last year have the various real estate organizations, realizing not only their duty to themselves but, further, their importance to the community and the tremendous value of the interests entrusted to their care, given to public matters the consideration and attention which should have been given at all times. In this short period, for the first time in the history of the city, so far as I can discover, every important public meeting of the Board of Estimate and its committees, the Board of Aldermen and its committees, has had present a representative to watch and care for the real estate interests as a whole.

"In the past the meetings of the various official bodies were, as a rule, attended only by clamoring representatives of various self-interested district organizations, ever ready to commit the city to extravagant expenditures, or else by unorganized property owners, opposing specific measures affecting them personally.

"But there has come a change. Today the real estate interests are aroused and thoroughly organized, and I believe we can discriminate as between our enemies and our friends; we are determined to fight the one and to aid the other.

"We realize fully that the $8,000,000,000 invested in one form of wealth, while sufficiently tempting to invite attack, is also sufficiently valuable to be vigorously defended.

Politics Not Factor.

"In our relations during the last year with the city officials, as a whole, our recommendations and suggestions have been given the attention and consideration to which they were entitled. With all my strength, and with many members of the administration present, I wish to deny, in the most positive terms, that there has ever been a single act of the Real Estate Board inspired by political motive.

"Real property in the City of New York is still the best asset, conservatively purchased and conservatively managed, that a man can have, and is entitled to the same consideration that is given other forms of wealth by the community.

"The consensus of the board is that the situation as to real estate and to business generally has greatly changed; that the government of the city, State and the nation is about to shake off the influences that in the last few years have dominated; that the pendulum which swung too far toward regulation, inspection and governmental interference is swinging back again toward more sane procedure. These are the influences that largely have been responsible for the present financial condition of the country and the great number of unemployed.

"All that the property owners and the many trades allied with real estate want is efficient and economical government relieved from unnecessary regulations and officious interference.

"The owner of real estate, together with his agent and tenants, is in partnership with all the great loaning institutions, the building trades and associations, so that whatever may be done to injure real estate must to a degree injure all.

"The depositor in the savings bank whose money is loaned on real estate, the owner of a policy in an insurance company with assets consisting largely of real estate and mortgages, the depositor in a trust company, each trustee and heir of every estate is actually the partner of the builder or owner who borrows from these institutions to improve his property.

"I do not feel, however, that it should not be the policy of the city to extend its activities in lines which have not as yet proven necessary, so as to make real estate unproductive or to impair the value of so great a form of wealth."

WHAT CITY PLANNING CAN DO FOR REALTY

By Co-ordinating Public Improvements It Would Make Every Part of the City as Profitable as Possible to Property Owners

By GEORGE B. FORD *

AN office building is not paying very well. The owner goes to the real estate expert to find out what the matter is. The expert goes minutely through all the items of maintenance, upkeep and fixed charges. He looks for waste and possibilities of improvement in janitor, elevator or cleaning service. He goes into the cost of heating, lighting and power. Does he stop there? No. He examines also the physical plant of the building. Perhaps he finds that the boiler plant is antiquated, and that it would be a distinct saving to scrap the present plant and put in a modern one.

Perhaps a change in the type of lighting would considerably improve the rentability of the offices. Possibly a rearrangement of the office units would make them more attractive. Nor does he stop even here. He figures to see whether the present improvement is all that the location and land value warrants. He may find that it would be a distinctly better proposition to scrap the whole existing structure and build larger and in a more modern fashion.

In planning such a building the expert uses all of his accumulated data and experience. He lays out his plan so as to secure the greatest ease of access from the street to all parts of the building. He lays out his courts and yards so as to secure the maximum value in well lighted rentable space. He may even find it a net economy to secure a light easement over neighboring property. Furthermore, he looks to the future and very likely makes his columns and foundations strong enough to carry additional stories at such times as the demand may warrant and he provides for the possibility of adding to his power plant and elevator service without having to rip out the present plant.

What City Planning Is.

Let us substitute the city for this office building. The maintenance, upkeep and handling of fixed charges corresponds to the "administration" of the city's business. The rest is "city planning." The city with the suggestion and help of citizen bodies has recently been studying scientifically the whole problem of administration, with the result of effecting much economy and increase in efficiency. The Committee on the City Plan of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, with its advisory commission, is undertaking to do the same thing for the physical plant.

It would apply the same science and put the same business-like and broad-viewed order into the control of the improving of property, whether public or private, that the real estate expert puts into the design of his plant. This is city planning. It is not a squandering of the taxpayers' money or mere prettinesses. Heaven forbid! It is a regulating of the improvements which the city must make for a healthy normal growth, so that every dollar which the city spends will go where it will count the most as a sheer business proposition.

City planning serves to stabilize real estate values. Perhaps its first duty is to undertake to prevent, as far as possible, the demoralizing shifting of real estate values from which New York is suffering so acutely just now. Every energy is being bent to a study of this most important problem, to see what plans and control will best tend to put definiteness and evenness into the development and growth of the city. Careful studies are being made and essential data is being collected to show the trend of the growth of the city and to determine for what kind of development each portion of the city is best suited, so that the improvements undertaken, or the restrictions suggested in this district, may be such as will tend to help this development and to improve the real estate values of the neighborhood.

Prevents Duplication of Improvements.

Again, city planning prevents duplication of improvement work. It sees to it that the subdivision plan which the city accepts for a tract in Queens will not have to be done over again with a great waste of the taxpayers' money twenty-five years hence. It would see to it that the main thoroughfares do not have to be widened at great cost when the growth of the city demands more ample facilities for traffic or transit lines.

City planning years ago would have avoided the $7,000,000 for the extension of Seventh avenue. City planning would have avoided the spending of $5,000,000 for three little breathing spots in the lower East Side. City planning would have avoided the great land condemnation costs for a waterfront improvement in Manhattan or Brooklyn. It would see to it that every improvement was designed with a view not only to present needs, but, as far as it is possible to foresee, to the best interests of the city and the property owner when the population is double or treble what it is now.

City planning co-ordinates the improvements of the city. For example, in considering a waterfront terminal development it would see to it not only that the actual terminal plan itself was a good business proposition for all concerned, and that it was laid out as a thoroughly economical and efficient plant, but it would also take into account the problem of so designing the whole surrounding territory as to best fit it for its normal use in connection with the terminal. It would look into the layout of approaching streets to see if they are so located and of such widths, grades and surfaces as to best facilitate trucking to and from the terminal. It would see that there are proper transit approaches for those who work in or use the terminal. It would see that the terminal railroad facilities were co-ordinated with the trunk and belt line systems of the city.

Using Streets to the Best Advantage.

It would see that the lot and block, and street units of the immediately surrounding area were best suited to such factory and warehouse use as should go with the terminal. It would also consider the neighboring waterfront to plan for its future use as an extension of the immediate system. In short, it would make every part of the area as profitable as possible to the property owners. It would bring together into one harmonious scheme all the various improvements in each district and would bring together district developments into one comprehensive practicable plan for the city as a whole.

City planning would determine the relative urgency of various improvements and see that the taxpayers' money was spent in each case where it would do the most good. If a group of people in a part of Queens should try to induce the city to bring an extension of the dual subway system out into their district, the data of the City Plan Committee would show not only what territory, how many families, what business and industries, how many employees, etc., would be served by this extension, but it would also show by its figures how much more urgent was, for example, a certain extension in the Bronx, only in the latter case the citizens had not gotten together to urge their needs. Good business demands that the more urgent matter be undertaken first.

Would Fit Well.

City planning would determine a comprehensive practical plan for the development of the whole city, each part of which would fit in with every other part as in the ideal manufacturing plant. Each part would be best suited to its use. Each part could be extended as the business grew without disarranging any of the original plant and it would be elastic enough to permit of such changes in the plan as new conditions might demand.

To carry out a program as outlined above the city needs the co-operation of those who know real estate and real estate values. It is so largely a matter of getting the greatest use and value out of property that it is obvious that the city should have the advantage of the best real estate experience.

The real estate men owes it to his clients and to the city to help in every way he can.

Conference on City Planning.

The Fine Arts Federation of the City of New York held a special meeting on Tuesday evening in the Fine Arts building, to which representatives of real estate interests had been invited to discuss city planning. About two hundred persons were present, and more than half the number were real estate men.

Frederick Dielman, for many years president of the Fine Arts Federation, called the meeting to order and introduced Secretary Bard of the Municipal Art Society as the permanent chairman. Messrs. A. W. Brunner and Pine, represented the Municipal Art Commission. President McAneny and George B. Ford spoke for the City Plan Committee of the Board of Estimate, and R. E. Simon, Charles F. Noyes and Harold N. Phillips spoke for real estate interests.

Public Hearing on City Plan.

The Committee on the City Plan of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment will hold a public hearing on Friday, February 19, at 3 o'clock, in Room 16, City Hall, in relation to a tentative map, as amended, for the extension of Riverside Drive, from its present terminus at West 155th street to the Harlem River Ship Canal, Borough of Manhattan.

*Consultant to the Committee on City Plan of the Board of Estimate. Paper read at a conference between the Fine Arts Federation and representatives of real estate organizations, Feb. 9.

EDGEWATER AN INDUSTRIAL CENTER

Community, "Just Opposite Manhattan," In Thriving Condition—Need for Small Apartments for Artisans Employed in Factories

EDGEWATER, stretching for a considerable distance along the New Jersey shore, directly opposite the upper west side of Manhattan, is a flourishing manufacturing center. Most striking in a survey of its various fields of activity is the fact that no particular class of industry is conspicuous. There is no tendency in Edgewater, as may be noted in other manufacturing districts, for kindred and associated lines of business to be grouped together in one locality.

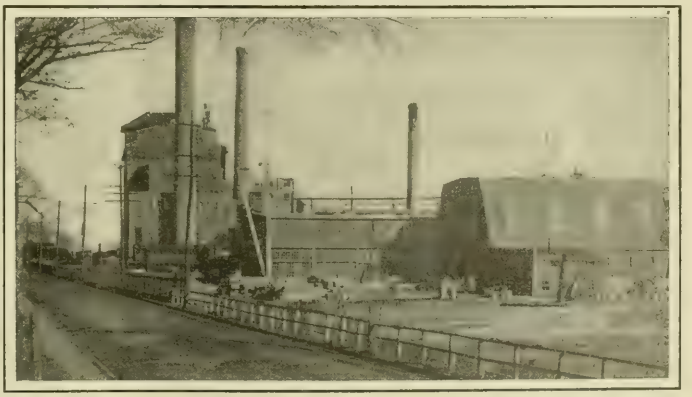
RESIDENTIAL STREET, EDGEWATER, N. J.

Beginning at the Interstate Park on the north, Edgewater extends south to the Hudson County line. Along the shore are located a number of large industrial concerns that have undoubtedly chosen their respective locations on account of the many advantages offered for easy shipment by water. To these facilities may also be added low taxes, good roads, and a railroad, a branch of the Erie system, which places it in close touch with New York City and all parts of the country, if shipment by rail is desired.

PANORAMIC VIEW FROM THE PALISADES.

North of the Fort Lee ferry the United States Government is deepening the channel to thirty feet, at an estimated cost of from two to three million dollars. The completion of this project will enable large steamers to dock at various points along the shore and open the northerly end of Edgewater for further industrial expansion.

Practically all of Edgewater's large factories are located south of the ferry. The Warner Sugar Refining Company is probably the largest of the many industries clustered there, and its huge stacks are visible from the New York shore and may be seen even far down the river.



Nearby are located the Undercliff Terminal & Warehouse Company, handling freight transportation to and from all parts of the country; Batterson & Eisele, marble dealers; the Valvoline Oil Company, Corn Products Refining Company, the General Chemical Company, the Barrett Manufacturing Company, tar products; Spencer Kellogg & Son, linseed products; Herman Knoetzsch, cleaner and dyer; Bulls Ferry Chemical Company; the Edgewater Hygeia Ice Company, John J. McGarry, general contractor; D. A. Higgins & Company, yarn dyers and bleachers; Sinclair & Valentine Company, lithographers and makers of printers ink; E. G. Kaufer, hay and grain; the Midland Linseed Products Company, refiners of linseed oil; E. H. Henners' Sons, planing and moulding mills; Otto Meyer, building materials and construction, and the New York, Susquehanna & Western Railroad's coal docks.

To this miscellaneous group of industries will be added next year the new plant of the United States Aluminum Company of Pittsburgh, a firm which will employ, according to report, between 1,500 and 2,000 men. It has purchased the tract of land just north of the Valvoline Company's property, on the River road. It will build next March, two and three-story factory buildings, including a rolling mill, piers and a reinforced concrete power house. Property adjoining has also been reported sold to a manufacturing company which will erect a plant for its own occupancy. The identity of this company or the exact nature of the contemplated improvement has not yet been made known.

Just north of the ferry, William Godstrey is building a two-story garage building, which will also contain three stores, and a short distance south Enoch J. Carlson will erect a two-story hotel and cafe building. His present property, opposite the Ferry House, has been acquired for public purposes by the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey.

This is certainly a varied field of endeavor and activity for a town which has a population of about 3,500 and which is so completely overshadowed by the Palisades that when one stands on the hill it is out of sight. The only signs of life are the dense clouds of smoke which pour constantly upward from the many busy manufacturing plants or the occasional faint whistle of a boat.

The workers in the many industries do not live in Edgewater, and in the opinion of a local "old timer" only about ten per cent. of its resident population work in the factories. The great majority of the residents are employed or engaged in business in New York City, within easy access by way of the Fort Lee Ferry connecting with Manhattan at West 130th street. The laborers in the factories reach Edgewater on the trolley cars of the Public Service Corporation from Union Hill, Cliffside and Shadyside, and other New Jersey towns within easy riding distance.

MATERIAL MEN URGE "BUILD NOW" CAMPAIGN

Early Construction Means Quick Consumption of Reserve Material—Mill Resumption Depends Upon Market Demand

The Record and Guide prints a number of interviews from important men directly connected with the building material field, and the consensus of opinion is that now is the time to build. Various reasons are given for this conclusion, but all agree that the principal influencing factors are the low cost of materials and the abundance of labor. Once the movement really gains headway, only a short time will elapse before prices are normal, or even high. During the last few weeks there has been a decided betterment of feeling in the trades, and practically no concessions are being made. Money can be obtained more readily now than since the commencement of the war, and loaning institutions are more willing to finance operations, where the demand seems to warrant the improvement.

SELFISHNESS is not the basic reason why building construction and material interests urge prospective builders to proceed to "Build Now." If they were looking only at their pocketbooks they would advise delay because an increased demand automatically would do away with current competition and narrower margins of profit. These interests urge early construction for various reasons.

First and foremost, early construction means early demand for material, and that spells speedy depletion of reserve stocks. Quick movement of stored material means prompt resumption of factory and mill activity, resulting in employment for those now out of work.

For every ten men out of employment in this city, count three idle in the country. Unemployment here means disruption of manufacturing and selling organizations. With systems set awry it costs more to produce and set building materials than it does to produce or assemble it with complete organizations. That is why the longer building operations are deferred the higher costs of materials will soar.

What Highest Steel Authority Says.

Judge Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of Directors, U. S. Steel Corporation: "This 'Build Now' movement is a good thing. Structural steel is at its lowest price. The next quotation will be a little higher and the market is going to move up as equipment orders are received. I call your attention to the fact that we are now operating 55 per cent. of our capacity, whereas we were using only 45 per cent. of it a month ago. It seems to me to be the best time for the purchase of steel. The year is going to be a good one despite the handicap all business is operating under, but now is the time to buy."

C. E. Cheney, Secretary of the National Erectors' Association: "Work can be done for less money if building construction is permitted to proceed. Generally speaking, there is a surplus of skilled labor. The best men are now available. The early builder gets the pick of the market. Better workmanship results and better buildings can be erected. That, to my mind, is the best reason in the world for going ahead with building construction now."

Cost Below Normal.

Louis J. Horwitz, President Thompson-Starrett Company: "The cost of construction today is about fifteen per cent. below normal. As the demand increases this construction cost will advance. Now is the time for persons who contemplate the erection of buildings for their own use and government or municipal institutional buildings to go ahead. It is not, however, in my opinion, a good time to go in for ordinary speculative building. New York ought to have an opportunity to let the renting demand catch up with the supply of rentable space. There is good reason for going ahead with the proper kind of construction now. Money can be saved by starting early."

Ernest R. Ackerman, President The Lawrence Portland Cement Co.: "It is reasonable to expect that the demand for cement will be as great in 1915 as it was in 1914, if, indeed, it is not greater. Such being the case, it is apparent that there is a decided advantage accruing to the builder who can proceed with his plans now."

C. J. Curtin, of the Farnham Cheshire Lime Company, said: "Lime, both common and finishing, is ranging at prices that encourage construction at this time. Those who can use this material in quantity will be able to save considerable in their construction cost. I believe it is time to go ahead with building work of all kinds."

Brick Prices Rising.

Harold Hammond, N. Y., Representative W. K. Hammond Brick Works: "The present low price of common brick and the gradual ascending tendency of the market certainly ought to be an inducement for proceeding with building construction. I think every builder should bear in mind the fact that there is not an over abundance of common brick in the Hudson river sheds. This means that high prices may be expected after the building season starts."

A. W. Tuthill, manager Red Brick Department, Savre & Fisher Co.: "I believe that the demand for brick this year will be in excess of that of 1914. At present the price of this material is low. Consultation with Record and Guide quotations will convince anyone, I think, that the trend of prices is upward rather than lower. This is particularly true of common red brick. Therefore, the man who can build now certainly will buy to greater advantage than he who delays coming into the market."

Prices Now Low.

"Any efficiency engineer will tell you," said an officer of the George A. Fuller Construction Company this week, "that when a working organization is disrupted the cost of production of the factory or mill product is increased at least 33 1-3 per cent. The price of all building materials is low now. This is because factories and mills have been operating below normal. Stocks have been accumulating even at that rate. As soon as this has been worked off it must be replaced, and if disrupted organizations are used it will cost more and additional cost must be borne by the consumer. Now is the time to build."

John B. Rose, President of the Greater New York Brick Company: "No better reason could be given for the immediate resumption of building construction than the fact that building materials are low. There is talk of over construction, but this is due to the great preponderance of antiquated business buildings in this city. New construction has been absorbed, but the blame for the lethargy shown by owners of out of date buildings has been hurled upon the shoulders of the progressive members of the community who are providing new and modern living and business quarters. All honor to the men who are behind this 'Build Now' movement. There cannot be a surplus of modern buildings. The trouble with this city is there are too many buildings that are not modern. Study the to-let signs and you will find that nine-tenths of them are on out of date buildings."

Opinion in Cement Industry.

William P. Corbett, General Sales manager, Alsens Portland Cement Company: "My answer is that now is the time to build because material prices are low. Furthermore, money is easier. Municipalities and government authorities ought to let every bit of construction work out at the earliest possible moment, first to help the unemployed situation and, second, to save money for the taxpayers through making purchases of materials while they are inexpensive."

Francis Hager, President of the Janusch Manufacturing Company: "In our line, that of wrought iron and decorative metal work, there is every inducement being offered to investors to build now. Our trade depends a great deal upon new building and alteration work. There has not been much of either during the last nine months, but things are picking up. At present the iron, steel and brass markets are low. Copper is about the only commodity that is high. For that reason ornamental metal work can be bought cheap. It is the right time for builders to take advantage of present conditions. Some are doing so already. But there is room for more activity in this direction."

Labor Is Plentiful.

Wright D. Goss, President of the Empire Brick & Supply Company: "If any one contemplates the improvement of their property now is the time to proceed. Construction work in large quantity has been withdrawn from the market within the last half year and in the meantime prices of materials have dropped from fifteen to twenty-five per cent. lower than they were when the market was first disrupted. Labor is more plentiful and money is easier than it was half a year ago."

John P. Kane, the John P. Kane Company: "We have been compiling a little data, with reference to the 'Build Now' movement, and the compilation convinces us that the great preponderance of new building work will be above 125th street this year. This seems to indicate that there is a demand for buildings to rent and, since money is easier, and cement and brick are perhaps lower than they will be again in a long while, this is the very class of construction that ought to move ahead now when conditions are so favorable toward the effecting of decided economies."

Will Save Money.

William Crawford, master builder: "I believe that anyone who contemplates building should get busy at once. It is possible to build from ten to fifteen per cent. less in cost today than at any time in the history of the building industry during the last ten years. This condition will obtain only so long as scarcity of work stimulates competition among builders, to the extent that they bid even below cost to obtain a job or two in order to keep their organizations employed. A job or two in the offices of the different builders, however, will soon change present conditions and the result, 'a steady rising market,' increasing as the work increases."

A BILL TO REDUCE BUILDING INSPECTION

Favors the Borough System and Anticipates the Mayor's Bill—Other Bills in the Legislature Centralize City Markets and Amend Title Registration

THE New York City market bill, which centralizes all the city markets in one department, has received the approval of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, and may be expected to receive the Governor's signature. It represents the culmination of the efforts of the committee of which Borough President Cyrus C. Miller was chairman to bring order out of chaos in handling the food products daily brought to the city.

No function not exercised today is required by the bill, nor does it call for the appointment of new officials, save only one Commissioner of Markets. Rather is it considered to be in line with various direct economies sought through simplifying the city systems of administration.

Statistics show that the average family in New York spends about 9 per cent. of its income on light and transportation, and the city has very important commissions to look after the 9 per cent., namely, the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, and the Public Service Commission. It spends about 20 per cent. of its income on housing, and we have the Building Department, the Tenement House Department and various other departments to care for the 20 per cent. It spends about 40 per cent. on food, but our care for the 40 per cent. amounts to nothing. This is almost unbelievable, but facts are facts. Until this market question is taken up in a scientific way the City of New York cannot claim to be an up-to-date city.

Unification of Inspection Departments.

Senator Lockwood, of Brooklyn, introduced on Monday the first of the bills designed to effect a unification of building inspection departments in the City of New York. His bill favors the borough system of administration as distinct from a single-headed centralized system for the whole city. The bill is supposedly backed by the Borough Presidents and anticipates action by the Mayor's committee which is seeking to co-ordinate views now in conflict.

The Lockwood bill takes from seven departments of the municipal administration and from the State Labor Department certain inspection powers now exercised over buildings, and concentrates those powers in the Building Bureaus of the several boroughs. The departments affected are the Tenement House Department, the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, the Health Department, the Police Department, the Department of Licenses, the Borough President's office, the Bureau of Fire Prevention and the State Labor Department.

The present Workmen's Compensation Law, while not opposed in principle, is decidedly unpopular both with employers and employees, though for different reasons. A largely attended public hearing was held at Albany on Thursday afternoon on various phases of the bill, particularly the Brown amendment, which gives employers the privilege of settling claims directly with their employees.

The Dunnigan-Evans bill, which certain labor interests are backing, raises the compensation for injuries from 66 2-3 to 75 per cent. of the average weekly wages, and increases the maximum limitations from twenty to thirty dollars per week for the loss of a hand, arm, foot, leg or eye.

Title Registration.

Senator Boylan has introduced a bill (Int. 339) amending the real property law in relation to registering title to real property. It sets apart permanently one of the Justices of the Supreme Court, in special term, to have supervision in two or more counties of his judicial district, to have general control of all the official examiners of titles, to advise, admonish, discipline and suspend, for improper official conduct or omission. A corporation, as well as an individual, may be licensed and admitted to practice as an official examiner of titles. But no official examiner may act as attorney or counselor in the matter, or be otherwise interested in it. The law is amended in numerous other respects as well, including a new section providing for registration under judicial sales.

Bills Favored by Real Estate Interests.

The Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests through its Law and Legislative Committee (Walter Lindner, chairman) endorses among others the following bills now introduced in the State Legislature:

The bill to amend the Tenement House Law with regard to heights of buildings by providing that the width of the street which measures permissible height be deemed to include any open space or park abutting on street in front of the lot. This bill corrects inequalities which exist. An example is this: On Park avenue, 140 feet wide, apartments may be erected 210 feet high, whereas on Fifth avenue, opposite Central Park, or Central Park West, the height limit is only 150 feet.

Bill to amend the tax law with relation to refunds on mortgage tax: This bill provides that whenever, through inadvertence or otherwise, mortgage tax has been paid on a mortgage on which no advance was ever made, the tax shall be deemed to have been erroneously collected and shall be refunded on verified application within ninety days after discharge of the mortgage. This bill should be favored because if no advance ever was made on a mortgage on which tax was paid, the object of taxation never existed and the refund is therefore proper.

Bills Opposed.

The Advisory Council opposes the following bills:

Bill to add a section to the real property law construing instruments affecting land abutting on streets and highways so that they shall release or convey the interests of the grantor in a street or highway unless the instruments shall expressly state that this interest shall not pass thereunder. This is an attempt to express the law as it has been construed by the courts, but without the necessary limitations upon the general rule.

Bill to change the time for the collection of taxes from May 1 and November 1, as they now are, to July 1 and January 1, thus deferring the time when the city gets its money by two months. This bill only imposes on the city interest charges for borrowing money for the additional two months, with no compensating advantage.

Bill to amend the real property law so as to provide that there shall be no personal liability on bonds accompanying mortgages, except for the cost of the action and expense of the sale.

The following have been introduced:

Assembly Bills.

590. (Blakely.) Inserting in the General City Law a new article (12), providing that all members of the police force of a city shall hold office during good behavior, and no member shall be removed or fined, except upon written charges, and after a hearing, but he may be suspended before trial in certain cases. The right of court review is granted in case of dismissal. The present article 12 of the General City Law is repealed.

616. (Brennan.) Conferring additional powers on the American Institute of Architects as follows: to carry on its business beyond the limits of the State; to establish branches or chapters in any other State, territory, dependency or the District of Columbia, and for that purpose to purchase, hold, mortgage and sell real and personal property without the State; to provide in its constitution and by-laws for annual and special elections, and for the time and place of holding such meetings; and to provide in its constitution and by-laws that during the interval between meetings of its board of trustees, the powers of such board shall be exercised by an executive committee chosen from the membership of the board.

636. (Kincaid.) Abolishing the State Department of Foods and Markets. All papers, property and office equipment of such department must be delivered on demand to the director of the State library.

Senate Bills.

424. (Lockwood.) Repealing title 2 of Chapter 9 of the Greater New York Charter, as amended, except sections 415 and 416. These two sections are made a new title 3 of Chapter 9, and a new title 2 is inserted. The amendment creates a Bureau of Buildings in each borough, the head of which shall be known as the Superintendent of Buildings and shall be appointed by the Borough President. Every superintendent of buildings must be a competent architect or builder of at least ten years' experience. His annual salary is fixed at $6,000 in Manhattan, $5,000 in Brooklyn, $5,000 in The Bronx, $3,000 in Queens and $3,000 in Richmond. Each superintendent may appoint a chief inspector of buildings. He may also appoint, subject to civil service rules, such other officers and employees as are necessary. The bill also creates a Board of Standards, to consist of the superintendents of buildings of the several boroughs. Among the powers of the Board of Standards is the right to exercise the powers of the Industrial Board of the Labor Department, under the Labor Law; to make, amend or repeal rules and regulations respecting factories and mercantile establishments within New York City. The jurisdiction of the Board of Standards is made exclusive in this respect. A board of examiners is also established. Such board is to consist of the chief of the fire department and certain other members named in the bill. The board of examiners is given power to permit variations from law or ordinance, or rules or regulations of the board of standards. It may also hear appeals from decisions or orders of superintendents of buildings. To Cities Committee.

466. (Cromwell.) Extending two years from December 31, 1915, the time of the New York Connecting Railroad Company to finish its road and put it in operation.

492. (Argetsinger.) Amending the Membership Corporations Law (Section 13), by authorizing a membership corporation to convey real property, without consideration, to a religious corporation. (Same as Assembly bill introduced today.) To Judiciary Committee.

The City of New York pays 70 per cent. of the State's expenses, but doesn't have 70 per cent. control over its own expenditures. "What's yours is mine," quotes the State.

An investigation of New York City's finances by the State Legislature will at least disclose how seriously the city has been injured in the past by mandatory legislation from Albany.

The Brooklyn Board of Real Estate Brokers, through a committee, is sending out a four-leaf circular entitled "Something to Think About, Concerning Three-Family Houses." Brooklyn is very much in earnest in the campaign for modifications of the Tenement House Law.

The importance of the automobile as an aid in the development of suburban realty is proven by the fact that no less than 347 garages were built in the borough of Queens last year, or about one to every seven dwellings erected within the same period. At the time there were erected 79 stables, 12 churches and 2,309 frame dwellings.

Some of the local public questions of the day are very old. A correspondent reminds us that the first bill in the Legislature to limit the height of building construction in New York City was introduced sixteen years ago this month, and that the files of the Record and Guide prove that the subject has been discussed for a quarter of a century.

Mentioning the subject of the New York State canals gives every good citizen a sour taste in the mouth. The latest canal scandal has generated from the discovery that the total amount of the damage claims already filed against the State on the score of property injured and destroyed, aggregate a sum almost as large as the cost of construction represented by contracts now let. These aggregate $85,000,000 roughly, while damage claims already filed aggregate $76,000,000.

The Difficulty of Finding New Sources of Revenue.

Mayor Mitchel's speech at the dinner of the Real Estate Board will be remembered by its hearers chiefly for two reasons. In the first place, he stated unequivocally that real estate could not stand any further menace of taxation and that when more income is imperative it will have to be derived from other sources. This is what the Record and Guide has long been saying and what real estate owners and operators have long known; but real estate men should realize that not even the sympathetic understanding by the Mayor of their difficulties may be sufficient to prevent a further increase of their burdens.

Two important influences are operating in favor of an increase in real estate taxation. One is the existing difficulty of finding alternative sources of taxation, which are capable of yielding sufficient revenue, and the other is that real estate is an easy victim because it cannot escape, and because the community is accustomed to piling burdens on it. Real estate owners should not underestimate the force of these adverse influences. The difficulty of finding alternative sources of taxation is indicated by the hesitation which the Mayor's Commission is showing in publishing its report. It looks as if the report when it comes will be deprived of authority by a lack of unanimity in reaching definite conclusions; and if nothing should come of the commission's report, and if more revenue has to be raised, where can it be obtained except from real estate? The real estate interests of the city should appreciate the seriousness of the situation, and should seek some agreement as to the recommendations which they will make for the purpose of obtaining revenue from other sources.

The other part of the Mayor's speech which stands out is his emphasis of the huge probable increase in state taxation. This increase has been estimated at anywhere from $15,000,000 to $22,000,000, and if it amounts to the larger sum, New York's share will be over $14,000,000. During the next few months the real estate organizations should devote all their efforts to an attempt to prevent or stand off the imposition of such an intolerable increase in taxable burdens. The effort may be unavailing because action at Albany is not influenced much by the interests or the opinions of the people in New York, who pay the largest proportion of the taxes; but it certainly should be vigorously made. Governor Whitman is a New Yorker, and should be familiar enough with conditions in this city to realize the loss and distress which would result to New York real estate owners if any such increase in taxation should be imposed upon them. In any event, the Mayor's recommendation that the real estate men of New York should pay more attention to the financial problems of the State is sound. The increase in State expenditure of late years has been enormous. The State has embarked on a policy of economic development and social reform which is proving to be enormously costly, and these vast sums of money are being spent without any adequate financial organization or any sufficient sense of responsibility to the taxpayer. The most effective immediate action to take would be to work persistently during the Constitutional Convention for the incorporation in the new State Constitution of a modern system of Budget-making.

Reorganizing the State Tax Department.

Governor Whitman's determination to reorganize the Tax Department is an evidence of his honest wish to do away with the worst defects in the State administrative departments. The Tax Department of New York has always been the victim of political mismanagement, and tax experts have always agreed that nothing could be done to improve it, unless it were taken out of the Comptroller's office and made responsible to the Governor. There is no reason for its subordination to the Comptroller, because its functions have nothing to do with the auditing system of the State. It is much to be hoped that the Republican machine will not support the Comptroller in his opposition to the transfer. The latter has no ground for opposition except a personal one, and the Republicans cannot afford to block a desirable and necessary reform measure. The Governor is receiving in his fight the efficient support of Senator Mills, who represents an east side district in this city. Mr. Mills' resolution calling upon the Comptroller for information a to the record of the department in the collection of Corporation taxes is prompted by a widespread impression that the Comptroller's office has been lax in levying corporation taxes and slow in collecting them, and it is likely to bring facts to the light which may result in the increase of revenue derived from existing laws. In any event the reorganization of the Tax Department may be accepted as one essential condition of a better financial system for the State, and in insisting on it Governor Whitman is fighting the battle of New York taxpayers. He should receive the support of the real estate associations of this city.

Revival of Shipbuilding.

Many circumstances have come to the light during the past week, which confirm the recent prediction of the Record and Guide of a considerable increase this spring of business activity. The President of the Steel Corporation, Mr. James A. Farrell, who talks but rarely and then always from a well-furnished mind, has stated emphatically his conviction that the tide has turned and he gave a good many facts to support his assertion. Since his speech was delivered there has been a marked increase of railroad buying which has been one great cause of depression. The most interesting and hopeful recent development, however, is the sudden outburst of shipbuilding. On the first of January the shipyards of the first of January the shipyards of the country were occupied with nothing but government and a little repair work. Now they are filled with orders. Two of them have enough business on their books to keep them running to the top of their capacity for two years. The vessels are being ordered so as to take advantage of the high freight rates now prevailing, but the expectation is that rates will remain high after the war and that American vessels will be able to compete advantageously with those of other countries. If these expectations are justified, the operation of these vessels will be of extraordinary benefit to American commerce and finance, and particularly to the port of New York. Their building is a plain indication of a return of confidence and is the first indication of the period of somewhat excited business activity, which is apparently in store for this country. The advent of a period of speculative business development will, of course, be of more immediate benefit to New York than to any other American city, because speculative enterprises, particularly in relation to foreign trade, have to be financed in this city.

The "Consolidation" Mix-up.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

Since August, 1913, for more than a year and a half, those having to do with buildings, as owners, lessees, builders, real estate agents and architects, have been hoping that somehow the absurd, inefficient condition of conflicting authority in the administration of building laws would be cleared up, and that all building laws and regulations would be consolidated into one department.

Just imagine what would happen if such an unnecessary, expensive and inefficient condition of affairs were to exist in a large corporation. Either the corporation would have to wind up its affairs and go out of existence or else it would have to adopt new and modern methods because of competition.

Unfortunately the city has no competitor, and may be as stupid and inefficient as it pleases, provided the people foot the bills, either by paying extra in the way of dollars and cents or by giving unnecessary time to all their dealings with the various and varying jurisdictions, which amounts to the same thing in many cases as paying actual cash.

Now, every one agrees there should be a larger measure of sanity introduced into the administration of our building laws, and that the most important and immediate need is that of "Consolidation," which has been so much discussed, with so little result. Although everybody is agreed that there should be consolidation, there appears to be a diversity of opinion as to how this consolidation shall be brought about.

There seem to be three groups actively interested in this subject; the first group is our statesmen, who cannot agree among themselves, one set of whom is advocating that there shall be but one head with deputies in the different boroughs, the other set maintaining that there shall be separate heads in each of the five boroughs, with a central board made up of the various heads to insure the uniform administration of the law and regulations in the different boroughs. The statesmen are accused of playing politics in this matter, each set trying to increase the patronage now under its control, at the expense of the other.

The second group is interesting in building matters only, and is also divided as to whether there shall be one head, with deputies in the different boroughs, or a separate head in each, with a board as above described.

The first set maintains that there will be more economy and more uniformity in the administration of the law. The second set maintains that the function of government is not only to see that laws are enforced, but also to assist the people in their endeavors to build, by shortening as much as possible the "red tape" incident to dealings with the building departments, and also assisting the people in building economically. This set maintains that the desired result can only be obtained by having a head in each borough, who will be in intimate touch with the needs of the people and the building interests in that borough. They claim that they wish to build solidly and substantially in every particular, but feel that the administration should help them rather than hinder them, which it would be doing by dealing with them at "arm's length," as it were, by having one head, sitting in the Borough of Manhattan, miles away from the scene of their activities.

The third group are those who are taxpayers and those interested in building matters, whose only desire is that there be a consolidation. They do not care much whether there be one head over all, or one head in each borough, so long as there is a consolidation.

The Factory Investigating Commission published some time ago a tentative scheme of consolidating the various departments. This has been approved of in substance by most everybody, the only differences being along the lines above indicated, but the final bill has not yet been forthcoming from this commission. There are many real estate associations which have committees with this matter in charge. Some of them have drawn up proposed bills, but no definite steps have yet been taken.

Then again, within the last few days, the Mayor has appointed a committee, known as the "Mayor's Building Inspection Committee," and hearings are being held "to afford an opportunity to taxpayers and others to present specific cases which may have come to their attention of over-inspection or needless inspection of buildings." This matter has been thrashed out and gone over and over again during the last year or more, and people are wondering why there is any need of further investigation on this subject, as everybody agrees that it is not so much the over-inspection as it is the conflicting authority which the various departments have and maintain in accordance with the Charter, the labor law, the ordinances and the rules and regulations emanating from all of the departments and bureaus, which is the cause of so much trouble.

All the various departments and bureaus having jurisdiction over building matters seem to have the authority to make rules and regulations which have the force of laws and ordinances, and all the different departments are continuously engaged in making such rules, some of which are published and others are not, altogether making a most confused and deplorable state of affairs.

This all produces unnecessary "over-regulation" with its consequent dissatisfaction. There is no city in the world which has had its building affairs so monstrously over-regulated as New York City. More orders have been issued for changes in buildings that have been erected in New York than there have been, I venture to say, in all the other buildings of the world put together, and this in the face of the fact that New York has, without exception, the best and safest buildings of any city in the world.

It is about time that the question of patronage and theories are eliminated and some consolidation is effected, to afford the necessary and much-desired relief.

What to Do With the Old Private House.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The old style, high stoop, three and four-story private house has little if any future as such, be it either modest or pretentious, speaking in a general way. The question is, how may we turn these old houses into income producers, for many have been vacant for months and even years.

What may be the best thing to do, of course, varies with the neighborhood. Many have already been altered into apartment suites of two rooms and bath, sometimes with stores in the basement and first floor, and have been successful income producers.

It is surprising the demand there is for these small suites in various parts of the city. If a studio skylight or studio window is added, and the suites be advertised as "studio apartments," their marketability is increased, especially in the artists' settlement north of Washington Square.

The average house lends itself to an alteration of two suites on a floor of two rooms and bath. The ones on the top floor have studio skylights. The writer of this article has altered houses of this type into four apartments to a floor, with two of the suites having sitting-rooms, a bed-alcove and bath, and two of the suites consisting of a single small room and bath. The small room with a private bath is much needed in the average boarding house, but is seldom found, even at a high rent.

With these small suites the great problem to be solved is, where to go for your meals. The hotel apartments provide these small suites and a public dining room, which is a satisfactory arrangement; but even here the table does not satisfy every one and is generally expensive. The smaller houses, such as the altered old residences, cannot all have private dining-rooms. A "tea room" in the basement, or meals served by the janitor or housekeeper, is one way to solve the problem.

Be it in an apartment hotel, with meals served in the rooms, or even in boarding houses, there is a great demand for provision for light cooking in the rooms. Cooking is done to a large extent over a gas jet, next to a window curtain, or in a clothes closet, regardless of any laws and regardless of the great danger from fire. Many people living in small suites want to get their own light breakfasts.

The Tenement House Law provides that a house where three or more families live independently of each other, and do their own cooking upon the premises, is a tenement house. One person is counted a family, and the law prohibits cooking in more than two rooms in any house not in accordance with the Tenement House Law. It is not practical to alter the old houses so as to comply with the said laws.

A great deal of cooking is done in this type of house, and the fact is known to the authorities. It is impractical to have an inspector in every room all of the time, and so the practice continues and grows. If a particular case is brought to the attention of an official, the cooking, of course, has to stop, and the owner is liable to a heavy fine. Consequently, an owner is not willing, knowingly, to take the chances, and so no provision for cooking can be made in the alteration.

In one case I have heard of, an inspector was examining a house of the type under consideration. In a bachelor's apartment he found a dining-room, elaborately furnished with all appointments. The inspector asked the colored valet where he did his cooking and the valet, with an offended air, replied: "We don't do any cooking; we have our meals sent in by Delmonico."

With the demand for the small suites, and recognizing the fact that people do cook in the rooms, would it not be far better for the authorities to modify the law so as to allow light cooking under reasonable conditions, and provide safe and sane means for it?

It would be an easy matter to provide a "kitchenette cupboard" or dresser with metal-lined compartment for the gas range, a suitable sink, a garbage pail, closet, etc., all properly vented. This would be a safe place to cook, convenient, and could be screened so as not to be objectionable in a small suite, such as we are considering, and would fill a great demand.

Now that we have a new State administration, a city administration which has declared itself in favor of consolidation of certain departments, and a new building law under consideration, is it not an opportune time for the real estate interests, the architectural profession and the building trades to join forces, work for and demand a change in the laws that will allow under better and safer conditions that which already exists?

HENRY H. HOLLY,
38-40 West 32d street, New York City.

The Tax Reform Bill.

The Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests has endorsed the plan for reorganizing the administrative side of the tax system of the State, as proposed by Governor Whitman, and provided for in the Hinman bill, and believes it advisable for all real estate organizations and taxpayers' organizations to co-operate with the Real Estate Association of the State of New York in its efforts to accomplish this reform. The proposed plan lays the foundation for a comprehensive system of taxation by placing the function of assessment of taxes in one department, similar to the tax department of the city, and leaving the collection of taxes to the State Comptroller, and the enforcement against delinquents to the Attorney General—quite parallel to the system obtaining in the City of New York.

At present, taxes are assessed not alone by the State Comptroller and the State Board of Tax Commissioners, but even by other departments. The proposal of the Governor at this time merely takes the first step in the comprehensive plan by consolidating the corporation tax bureau and the Comptroller's office with the proposed new State Tax Commission which takes over all the work of the present State Board of Tax Commissioners. Under the law at present, the State board assesses the special franchises of corporations, which assessment is based essentially on the net earnings of such corporations; the Comptroller now assesses these same corporations for their corporation franchise, and that assessment is essentially based on their gross earnings.

With this work consolidated, it could be done more intelligently and more economically than at present. In the report of the United States Commissioner of Corporations it is clearly pointed out that the old system of tax administration has been abandoned in many States.

REAL ESTATE NEWS OF THE WEEK

AN AGENT'S RESPONSIBILITY.

The Real Estate Board Wins an Important Test Case.

THE Real Estate Board of New York, which includes in its membership practically every prominent real estate agent in New York City, has just won an important decision affecting agents in their relation to the Labor Law. Many agents have been summoned to Court, and this fact caused the Real Estate Board to have it determined whether a law which makes it a misdemeanor for an agent to fail to comply with the Labor Department's order when he has no authority from the owner to do so, would be enforced by the courts.

The opportunity sought by the board to test the law presented itself recently, when Arthur R. Bastine, of the real estate firm of Bastine & Company, and a member of the Real Estate Board, was served with a summons to appear in the Magistrates' Court, First Division, 4th District, to answer a charge of failure to comply with a provision of the Labor Law. The order had been issued on a building in which Mr. Bastine's sole agency consisted in the right to collect rents and lease lofts. The case was tried before Magistrate Breen on Monday last. The Real Estate Board was represented by George W. Olvany and John F. O'Neil.

The counsel for the State Labor Department called as a witness, a labor department inspector, who testified that Mr. Bastine had told him that he was agent for the collection of rents and the leasing of lofts only, and that he had no authority to make repairs without the consent of the owner.

The Labor Department also called two tenants, both of whom testified that they paid rent to Mr. Bastine as agent, and one of them testified that his employer had asked Mr. Bastine to make certain repairs and had received a letter stating that the owner would not permit him to make repairs. The Labor Department also called the engineer of the building and the elevator operator for the purpose of showing that Mr. Bastine was in charge of the building.

Mr. Bastine was called to the stand and he testified that he was agent only for the collection of rents and the leasing of lofts and that he had no authority to make repairs without the consent of the owner. The Court stated that he did not think that the agent should have the right to spend the owner's money without his permission. The Counsel for the Labor Department stated that if the agent wished to be relieved from liability under the Labor Law he should resign his agency.

With this point of view the court did not agree and after hearing all the facts refused to hold Mr. Bastine, and dismissed the complaint.

Unprofitable for Builders.

Charles E. Rickerson, of 276 Flatbush avenue, a member of the Three-Family House Committee of the Manufacturers and Business Men's Association, this week definitely pointed out where, in the opinion of his association, the Tenement House Law stands in the way of real estate development:

"The law is so framed as to make it unprofitable for a builder to build a three-family dwelling from the fact of the size of courts which the Tenement House Law prescribes, when an interior air shaft would serve the purpose of the house of this kind just as well as a large open court 4 x 5 would. The fire-proofing of the staircase and general restriction that not more than 70 per cent. of the lot can be built on, works a great injury to the building of three-family dwellings, as these dwellings are mostly put up in suburban locations and are of such a character that they are easily sold and the rentals obtained from them are unusually small.

"To encourage the building of three-family houses, it should be possible to use at least 85 per cent. of the lot on the first floor, so that if a three-family house were constructed on a carline thoroughfare, the storekeeper could live in the rear of the store, thereby making it possible for him to operate the store by living in the rear.

"The two-story and store properties which were constructed previous to the Tenement House Law taking effect, the store tenants are prevented from living in the rear through the fact of it bringing the house under the Tenement House Law, requiring the building to be fireproof and airshafts to comply with the conditions of the law. A law making it possible for this style of house to be built, would encourage builders to fill up many of the vacant lots in the suburbs, thereby increasing the revenue of the City and build up our outlying territory which is now lying idle.

"In many sections of the city a three-story and basement house has had to be converted into a two-family house, rather than to have three families in it, owing to the requirements of the Tenement House Law. With a modification as I have suggested, it would be possible to make improvements in the ordinary dwelling house, so that the owner could use his property for another purpose when the house could not be rented for a private residence.

"I hope through the aid of your valuable paper that it will be possible to have a three-family house bill presented or an amendment so as to encourage people to invest on property and live in New York City, rather than to migrate to the State of New Jersey to find a home where they can live modestly and rent out the balance of the house."

Widening of Lexington Avenue.

The work of removing the encroachments on Lexington avenue, between 41st and 61st streets will be undertaken in the near future by Borough President Marks. The need for this work has been long apparent and it is especially urgent now on account of the Lexington avenue subway construction, which has necessitated the displacement of sidewalk and street pavements on Lexington avenue.

Before these pavements are replaced, it is highly important that property-holders remove all encumbrances or encroachments so that the necessity of disturbing these new pavements may be avoided, as far as posible. Another reason is that, owing to the subway construction, the bulk of the Lexington avenue traffic temporarily has been diverted to the neighboring north and south avenues. Thus, the work can be done now with the least amount of consequent annoyance to pedestrian traffic.

A letter has just been sent by President Marks to owners and lessees of property on Lexington avenue not only in the section where the work is first to be undertaken, but also in the other sections along Lexington avenue, in order that the owners or lessees of property in these sections may have the advantage of the opportunity of removing the encroachments at this time, if they so desire.

Washington Heights District.

The Local Board has approved of the following resolution:

Construction of receiving basins adjacent to the northeast corner of West 132d street and Lenox avenue and the northwest corner of West 132d street and Fifth avenue, at an estimated cost of about $810. The assessed valuation of the property within assessment area is $1,534,500. The report of the engineer in charge of sewers states that these basins are required in order to improve drainage conditions.

Laying out an extension of West 187th street from Fort Washington avenue to Overlook terrace.

Kips Bay District.

The Local Board has approved of the following resolution:

Alteration and improvement to sewer in 53d street from a point about 50 feet east of Third avenue to Third avenue and in Third Avenue between 53d and 54th streets, at an estimated cost of about $27,700. The assessed valuation of property is $401,600,000. The proposed improvement is due to the fact that the condition of the existing sewer is very bad throughout. The crown has a very heavy crack and dirt is entering; bricks are missing at frequent intervals. At one location for about 30 feet in length the inner ring has fallen entirely.

Yorkville District.

Alteration and improvement to sewer in East 70th street, from the bulkhead line to a point about 75 feet westerly therefrom. Estimated cost, $1,900. Valuation of property within assessment area, $818,000. This work is necessary in order to improve sanitary conditions at the outlet where the existing box sewer is broken down.

A Realty Dinner.

The local members of the Real Estate Association of the State of New York held a monthly meeting and had a dinner at the City Club, Brooklyn, on Thursday evening. Comptroller Prendergast was the guest of honor and principal speaker.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

Despite the fact that the present week is a short one, a number of deals were closed. Several will involve or concern new building operations, with the attendant benefits to all concerned in such undertakings. Everywhere the spirit of confidence is growing and the feeling of uncertainty and hesitancy is being replaced by a conviction that the tide has turned for the better.

The placing of a large loan this week at a 4½ per cent. interest rate is an indication of the present attitude of lenders and exemplifies the tendency toward the improvement of the market. The Record and Guide has learned on good authority that the lender was a savings bank, and the significance of this fact has not been lost. The release of $450,000 at a moderate rate, or what was formerly considered a normal rate, by an institution such as a savings bank, in the face of all the talk that these lenders are holding off on loans, should go a long way toward dispelling the illusion.

Savings banks, for many months, have been compelled, on account of their well-known conservative policy of management, to be ready for any emergency which may arise and as a consequence, cash has been accumulated. As time went on, and the war scare lessened and the timid bank depositors realized that the institutions were strong, money began to be redeposited.

As a result, these emergency funds have probably grown to large proportions and are now ready to be released. The placing of this loan, while it is an individual transaction, may be regarded as indicating a possibly newer and more liberal tendency on the part of lending institutions.

The fact remains that a well-located piece of real estate, and well maintained, is the most stable and reliable of investments for its owner; for the holder of a mortgage, it is practically a guaranteed investment. This latest development, coupled with signs of improvement in other branches of the market may be regarded as most encouraging.

The total number of sales reported and not recorded in Manhattan this week was 17, as against 27 last week and 45 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 7, as compared with 9 last week and 7 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 10, as compared with 18 last week and 38 a year ago.

The total number of conveyances in Manhattan was 110, as against 171 last week, 13 having stated considerations totaling $217,300. Mortgages recorded this week number 79, involving $1,512,721, as against 100 last week, $2,684,425.

From the Bronx 11 sales at private contract were recorded, as against 8 last week and 11 a year ago.

The amount involved in Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $142,473 compared with $377,221 last week, making a total for the year of $4,729,912. The figures for the corresponding week last year were $295,079 and the total from Jan. 1, 1914, to Feb. 14, 1914, was $6,238,594.

Acquires Apartment House Site.

The Realty Company of America, Franklin Pettit, president, bought through Slawson & Hobbs, from Frank Bradley, 321 to 327 West End avenue and 303 West 75th street; also from Mrs. Clara Legg Bucknall, 305 West 75th street and from Mrs. Daisy P. Hodgman 307 West 75th street, making a plot 85 feet on West End avenue by 142 feet in 75th street. The plot was later resold to the Charmion Construction Co., Henry Mayer, president, which will erect a twelve-story apartment house for which plans are now being drawn. The land and building will represent a reported investment of about $1,500,000.

R. W. Goelet Purchase.

Robert W. Goelet has taken title from the New York State Realty & Terminal Co. to the northwest and southwest corners of Park avenue and 53d street. In acquiring the four dwellings at the southwest corner, Mr. Goelet squared out a plot which gives him the entire frontage, with previous ownerships, of the westerly block-front of Park avenue, between 52d and 53d streets, comprising 200.10x100. The northwest corner purchase comprises four private dwellings, on a plot fronting 66.8x100.5. Adjoining this corner are two houses, 386 to 388 Park avenue, owned by Mr. Goelet, which gives him a frontage of 140.5 on this thoroughfare.

Rumored West Side Deal.

According to current rumors on Thursday, the big plot at the southeast corner of West End avenue and 89th street, fronting 100.8 feet on the avenue and 82 feet on the street, is being assembled, for improvement with a high class apartment house. The properties include six private dwellings now held in various ownerships.

Long Island City Sale.

Wallace J. Hardgrove, of the Queensboro Corporation, reports the sale of fifty lots in Long Island City, on Thomson avenue, at Packard and Locust streets, to an investor. The property is near the Bliss street station of the Corona subway extension of the Dual System.

New Church for 68th Street.

F. Augustus Schermerhorn sold to the First Magyar Reformed Church, through the firm of Leonard J. Carpenter, the three vacant lots, 75 x 100, in the north side of 68th street, 175 feet west of First avenue. A new church and parish house will be erected.

REAL ESTATE NOTES.

MARSTON & CO. have been appointed agents for 29 Mercer st.

MARK CROSKIN has opened an office at 55 Liberty st, where he will specialize in leases and mortgage loans.

LEWIS H. MAY CO. has opened a branch office at the railroad station, Edgemere, L. I., under the management of John Agnew, for the transaction of a general real estate business.

WHITLEY P. WESTERVELT has placed a mortgage loan of $125,000 on the 6-sty elevator apartment house 618-622 West 142d st for the V. S. Building Co.

HUBERTH & HUBERTH have been appointed agents for 210 East 60th st, 166 East 83d st, 72 East 119th st, 117 West 120th st, 50 West 133d st and 227 West 134th st.

WILLIAM S. GREGORY, who recently bought the former Jacob D. Butler residence at 341 Convent av, through L. J. Phillips & Co., has conveyed it to the Lutheran Hospital of Manhattan.

REVILLON FRERES, who last week leased the southwest corner of 5th av and 53d st from Michael Dreicer, will pay a graduated rental ranging from $32,500 to $42,500 a year, for twenty-one years and two months.

PEASE & ELLIMAN have been appointed agents by the lessee, Barnet House, for 1 East 53d st, and also for the new 12-sty loft building to be erected at 44 East 25th st by the J. M. Slattery Building & Construction Co.

NEW YORK TITLE INSURANCE CO. has made the following loans: $70,000 on 690-692 8th av; $30,000 on 3173-3175 Villa av; $12,000 on 157 East 118th st; $10,000 on 126 East 44th st; $30,000 on 540-546 West 41st st, and $10,000 on 218 Centre st.

CHARLES F. NOYES Co. has negotiated a $450,000 loan at 4½ per cent. on the Temple Beth-el, at the southeast corner of 5th av and 76th st, on plot 100x150. The announcement is important, because it is the first large loan at the 4½ per cent. rate in many months, where, the broker states, no property was given in trade.

STANLEY W. DEXTER, as referee, has signed an order upon application of Weschler & Kohn, attorneys for James N. Rosenberg, trustee in bankruptcy of the New York Real Estate Company, requiring the creditors to show cause on Feb. 27 why there should not be a sale of all the real estate holdings of the company. If the auction is held, it will be one of the largest public sales of improved properties ever conducted in New York City.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made that the G. F. Hall Company, established since 1863 at 206 Centre st, and N. A. Berwin & Co., real estate, 18-20 East 41st st, have associated themselves under the name of Hall-Berwin Corporation, permanent address of which will be announced later. The organization and personnel of each company will remain the same as in the past. Consolidated service will provide for all branches of real estate, building management and operation.

OBITUARY

FREDERICK BALZ, a real estate dealer, died at his home, 595 Herkimer st, Brooklyn, aged fifty-nine. He is survived by four sons and two daughters.

WILLIAM FRANKE, president of the company which owns the Hotel Cecil property at St. Nicholas av and 118th st, and other New York City real estate, died in the hotel on Monday. He was seventy-two years old. He is survived by a widow and two children, who are in Dresden, Germany.

FRANK HAGAN, aged sixty-three, a real estate and insurance broker, died at his home, 372 West 57th st. He was a member of the Holy Name Society and the K. of C. of St. Paul's Church.

WILLIAM A. HAMILTON, sixty-five years old, a real estate dealer and active in civic affairs at Sayville, L. I., died at his home there on Tuesday evening.

ROBERT C. RATHBONE, founder of the firm of R. C. Rathbone & Co., and one of the best known insurance men in the city, died, aged ninety, at his home in the Wolcott Hotel. He retired from active work about ten years ago. In 1851 he became a general agent of the Mutual Life Insurance Co., and two years later he began a general fire and life insurance business which he conducted under various names until the establishment of the present firm. He was president for many years of the New York Fire Insurance Brokers' Board and also was New York manager for the Sun Fire Office of London. He served as sergeant major of the Seventh Regiment during the Civil War. He was a member of the Veterans' Association of the Seventh Regiment, of La Fayette Post, G. A. R., and the Exempt Firemen's Association. Mr.

Rathbone was a thirty-second degree Mason, one of the earliest members of Kane Lodge, and a member of Jerusalem Chapter, Coeur de Lion Commandery, the Scottish Rite, Adelphic Council and Mecca Temple. He is survived by his widow, one son and several grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

REAL ESTATE APPRAISALS.

The following values were placed on real estate properties this week by the State appraisers in transfer tax proceedings, affecting Manhattan holdings. The amount specified does not in every case indicate the equity or interest of the decedent. It merely quotes the estimated market value of the realty, regardless of mortgages or other liens:

MARY DANIEL.—441 West 43d st, Block 1053, lot 144½, 3-sty dw., 18.9x100.5, $13,000.

HENRY GOLDMAN.—522 West 151st st, Block 2082, lot 49, 4-sty ten., 40x99.11, $51,000; and 263 East 10th st, Block 438, lot 46, 5-sty ten., 25x94.6, $35,000.

MINNA C. HAGEMEYER.—1557 2d av, Block 1526, lot 27, 4-sty ten., 18.10x80, $13,000.

MINNIE H. ROCHE.—312 East 49th st, Block 1341, lot 45, stable, 25x100.5, $9,750; 319 East 49th st, Block 1342, lot 9, 3-sty dw., 17.6x100.5, $7,000.

JOHN RODENBERG.—523-527 West 42d st, Block 1071, lots 17, 18, 19, coal yard, shed and office, 75x100, $45,500; 428 West 44th st, Block 1053, lot 47, 3-sty dw., 20x100.5, $13,000; 444 West 44th st, Block 1053, lot 53, 3-sty dw., 18.9 x100.5, $12,500.

AUCTION SALES OF WEEK.

Except where otherwise stated, the properties offered were in foreclosure. Adjournments of legal sales to next week are noted under Advertised Legal Sales.

• Indicates that the property described was bid in for the plaintiff's account.

The Auction Market

There was spirited competition on one auction offering this week, fifty bids being registered before Julius Feinberg, became the owner of the five-story tenement, 24 Orchard street, for $34,700.

For the coming week, there will be an unusually large number of offerings, including practically every class of property. Not all of them, however, are to be sold as the result of foreclosure actions.

On Wednesday, Joseph P. Day will auction thirteen properties of the Yung Estate, in a partition sale. A similar proceeding will result in the offering on Tuesday, of a large tract of land in the Hunts Point section of the Bronx. It is known as Greenbank and runs from Hunts Point Road to the Bronx river.

A HOME in one of the Windsor Land and Improvement Co.'s properties in Nassau County, Long Island, is not only an economical comfort but a profitable investment for the man of conserving disposition.
Offering property as we do in choice locations, substantially improved, sensibly restricted and sold on a large scale reacts to the benefit of the man seeking betterment in home conditions.
Nine inviting properties—Valley Stream, Rockville Centre, Hempstead, Floral Park, Oceanside, East Rockaway, Lynbrook, Rosedale and St. Albans.

Modern Improvements

Isn't it true that ofttimes some small modern improvement goes a long way towards selling and renting your houses?

Take for example the plan that has recently been adopted by some builders of placing in newly built apartment houses electric washing machines and outlets in the kitchen for electric ironing and cooking.

Does any one doubt, all other things being equal, that these apartments are the ones that will be sold or rented first?

Families of today are educated to demand the comforts and conveniences of electric service, and they are quick to see the advantage of living in an apartment that will minimize the drudgery of housekeeping.

We have other ideas along these same lines. Drop us a line and we will talk them over with you.

IMPORTANCE OF NIGHT INSPECTIONS

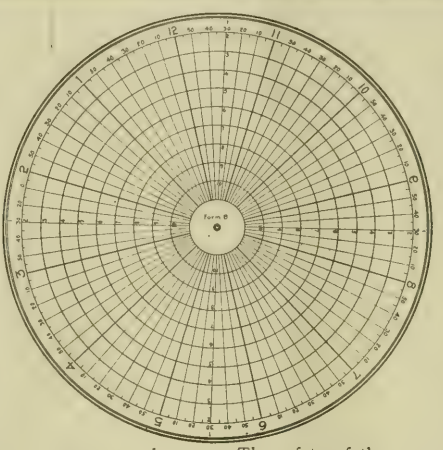
Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for the American Real Estate Co.

ONE of the most important phases of the up-to-date management of office buildings is a well defined and workable system of night inspection. Its need has long since been impressed upon and realized by building managers, and the systematic inspection of a premises under his care, has become part of a manager's schedule. The details involved in the care and management of the huge struetures which house thousands of workers daily are so many and varied that building management has become a science, and each department is handled scientifically in order that the greatest efficiency may be obtained. This tendency is reflected in the maintenance of the building after the usual closing hours. To the many responsibilities of the building manager has been added the further task of safeguarding the interests of the tenants after they have left their offices.

Practically all of the large office structures in New York City have inspections made by watchmen at regular intervals during the night. The hours for such investigations are usually from six o'clock in the evening until eight o'clock in the morning, when the day watchman takes up the work. His duties, however, do not include as much detail work as those of the night man. The day watchman is really a special policeman, whereas the night man combines the duties of this position with that of investigator, inspector and crime detector. He has a regular clearly mapped-out route to cover and his labors include a great many details which are further outlined below.

Night Inspection.

The system of night inspection, now in use in one of the largest office buildings in the city, and one which combines efficiency with simplicity, is operated in the following manner:



The building is divided into various districts, each one being patrolled by a watchman at regularly stated hours. On each floor there are one or more stations, where push buttons are installed connecting with the time clock in the office of the superintendent or building manager. After each patrol the watchman communicates with the office by pressure of the button which registers that "all is well."

On this page is reproduced a "paper clock" used to record a watchman's inspections. It is attached to the time clock and moves with the hour hand. On it are mapped out the hours and minutes of the night and the various stations, each one numbered. At the push of the button by the watchman the time of his inspection is recorded in the office on the "paper clock" in the column designating the particular station from which the message was sent.

Double Purpose Served.

This arrangement serves a double purpose. It enables the building manager to see at a glance whether his man is making the regular rounds, or neglecting his work. He can also determine at what time the watchman was at any station in the building and in case any question ever should arise in this connection he can always produce the paper clock which has faithfully registered every inspection of the night watchman and is almost irrefutable.

The advantages of a good system of night inspections are manifold not only to the tenant but also to the building manager and owner. The safety of the property of the tenant is practically guaranteed and he can leave his office with a satisfactory knowledge that his office possessions will be guarded not in a haphazard, slip-shod kind of a way, but along well defined lines. The watchman does not make a superficial canvass of the offices. While he is not required to make a minute and exhaustive examination of every foot of floor space in each office, yet his inspection comprises more than a cursory glance over the premises. His great function is, of course, the detection or frustration of any attempt at burglary. This probably is his chief duty and undoubtedly the most important purpose of the night inspection.

He has, however, other duties. He looks for open windows, and safes, unlocked doors, lost valuables. He investigates the whys and wherefores of burning lights, catches smouldering fires in waste baskets caused by carelessly thrown cigars and cigarettes or from other sources. He seeks to discover leaks or running faucets and other plumbing disarrangements. In most buildings he does not allow anyone to enter the building after certain hours without proper credentials, nor will he permit suspicious characters to leave the building until they have satisfactorily established their identity.

Making Report.

Each morning he reports back to the building manager all suspicious or unusual occurrences on his "beat." If the plumbing is out of order the building manager is enabled to effect an early repair. If a tenant has carelessly left lights burning, or left his office with the water faucets turned on, he will probably receive a brief cautionary notice to that effect and be politely requested to exercise a little more care. In this way the tenant is enabled to cooperate with the owner in order to keep down the cost of maintenance of building. There is a further bond established between the two which reacts favorably to both. The discovery of defective plumbing may be reported and remedied without interference with the office routine of the tenant and the general efficiency of the management of the building greatly increased.

Beneficial effects of a good system of night inspection are also felt by the owner of the building because the reduction in the computation of the rate of interest on his insurance is based on the precautionary measures taken by him with reference to fire protection. A better preventive for fire could hardly be obtained than the personal inspection of an alert watchman at definitely stated periods during the night.

It is evident that a simple, workable and not too expensive system of night inspection has become a necessity in the "curriculum" of every building manager. The comparatively few robberies and fires in the huge downtown office buildings bear witness to the successful operation of the system. There are other preventatives, of course, to fire and robbery in a building, but they are all automatic contrivances and cannot be compared with the advantages of a personal inspection.

Fire and robbery will probably never be entirely eliminated in a building, but adequate safeguards and precautionary measures should be taken to reduce the possibilities to a minimum. A good system of night inspection is a long step in this direction.

"Eternal vigilance is the price of safety" is an aphorism which every progressive building manager is bearing in mind when he is not neglecting or overlooking that branch of management which has to do with the night care of buildings.

Bronx Society Meets.

At a meeting of the Council of the Bronx Society of Arts and Sciences, held recently, a report was submitted from the Museum Committee to the effect that a conference and inspection of the Lorillard Mansion, at which plans had been formulated for the exhibition of paintings and sculpture to be loaned by the Metropolitan Museum of Art, had been held on Thursday afternoon, at which there were present Edward Robinson, Director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, Bryson Burroughs, Curator of the Museum, Dr. W. A. Murrill, Acting Director of the N. Y. Botanical Garden, under whose jurisdiction the Lorillard Mansion now is, and Albert E. Davis, chairman of the Council of the Bronx Society of Arts and Sciences. At this conference it was suggested that the Museum of Natural History be asked to make a loan exhibit in the large room to the right of the hall.

A letter was read from Robert W. De Forest, president of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, acknowledging the resolutions of the Bronx Society and saying, "It is true that I have taken the initiative in this matter, but the thanks for whatever may be done should go not to me personally but to all of our trustees."

Dr. Henry M. Brown, chairman of the Committee on Industries and Applied Sciences, reported that William W. Brush, Deputy Chief Engineer of the Department of Water Supply, will speak for the society in Christ Congregational Church on Thursday evening, March 18, on the "Old and New Water Supply of New York City," illustrated with many views.

It was resolved to hold a celebration on October 14, 1915, to celebrate the tenth anniversary of the organization of the Bronx Society of Arts and Sciences. The chairman was authorized to arrange for a Municipal Art Exhibit from the Bronx, in co-operation with Charles W. Stoughton, president of the Municipal Art Society. The applications of twenty-five new members were approved.

MAKING REPAIRS "AFTER HOURS"

Building Managers Obtain Good Results By Not Inconveniencing Their Tenants

IF there is one thing that the building manager wishes to avoid, particularly in the large office structures where there are a large number of tenants, it is the undue, unwarranted or uncalled-for interference with their routine of business. If any annoyance or inconvenience to the tenant, by reason of faulty or negligent service, or for other causes of any nature or description, can be traced back to the jurisdiction of the building manager, his chances for successful operation of the building are materially diminished, and he loses not only the respect of the tenant, but also the confidence of his employer.

In these days of constant additions to the already large number of tall structures, the task of the renting agent is rendered more difficult with each new skyscraper, and every building manager is faced with keener competition and a greater possibility of removals. Therefore, he is forced to exert every effort to retain the present occupants of his buildings.

Cleaning at Night.

As a general proposition, it is conceded that the mechanical and sanitary departments of a building must be operated with the least possible discomfort to the tenant. For this reason, building managers have realized that most of the cleaning, with its resultant clouds of dust, pails of dirty water, piles of dirtier rags, etc., may be better done at night, when the tenants are less liable to be annoyed.

For the same reason, the innumerable repairing jobs constantly becoming necessary in the large building are also being attended to in the evening after the tenants have departed, unless the break is of such importance that immediate action is imperative.

In the night the carpenters and plumbers may hammer and otherwise make a noise without a possibility of disturbing the man in the "next office."

There is nothing more annoying to a busy man than the entrance of a more or less untidy mechanic, with an imposing array of tools, who begins to tinker around and create havoc generally.

Catering to the Tenant.

In most cases of repairing, unless as has been said, the need is of immediate urgency, the mechanical ailments of a building can be remedied at night. The principal objection to such hours is the double wage scale, which may at the end of the month reach a higher total than the careful manager wishes to check up against his budget of expenses. Since the prime object of every real estate owner is to obtain reputable and desirable tenants, and since his income and, therefore, his return on the investment depends entirely on his rent roll, it stands to reason that he must make things pleasant for every rent-payer in his building. If the comfort of these people is to be a criterion of a satisfied tenant and a successful investment, he could not very well sacrifice it on account of double pay to a small number of mechanics.

The slogan in every business is "the greatest efficiency for the smallest outlay." It is generally conceded, however, that outlay "in a pinch" must be sacrificed in favor of efficiency, and it is usually considered good judgment, particularly in a large building, to add to the expense of maintenance rather than run the risk of losing good tenants.

Practically every detail of the mechanical operation of a building can be taken care of after closing hours. The cleaning, inspection and repairing of the boilers and engines and all the incidentals thereto; also of the plumbing, electrical fixtures; of the steam heat, ventilation and power plants, and the painting and partitioning of the offices and all matters directly affecting the offices can be relegated to the night time.

Repairing Elevators.

The matter of repairing elevators is another important consideration. The advantages of "after hours" work are many. The passenger traffic in the average down-town skyscraper is enormous, and the placing of even one car out of commission for a day may interfere seriously with the service. The cleaning of the cars at night is invariably an inspection at the same time, and a great many minor defects or breaks may be remedied immediately upon their discovery. There is as a consequence no delay and no necessity for hoisting the "Not Running" sign. The post of this sign is another development which the manager carefully seeks to avoid.

The timid traveler usually experiences a qualm when the car darts up or drops down through space and he realizes that he is absolutely "in its power." The repetition of the "Not Running" sign plastered on the elevator doors, even if not pertaining always to the same car, may raise a doubt as to the general safety of the whole outfit. If this idea is given time to develop it becomes almost a conviction and the results are obvious.

Then, again, the repairing of an elevator during the day in a busy building with its unceasing throngs passing back and forth is considered objectionable.

Must Obviate Dissatisfaction.

A squad of laborers with a formidable array of hammers, wires, bolts or grease pots, working industriously on an elevator, which carried you to the twenty-sixth floor yesterday, creates a rather uncomfortable feeling. The general atmosphere of a repairing job is distasteful, particularly on a carrier like an elevator, where so much depends on the seemingly slender cables and wires. The oiling of the apparatus is another matter which can be taken care of in the evening. A disgruntled passenger, be he tenant or visitor, is not likely to be soothed by being bespattered with grease.

The safety of the worker himself is also to be considered, and his feeling of security is reflected in his capacity to do better work. When there is no traffic, no bustle and excitement, he is himself more at ease and calmer and less liable either to "slip up or botch the job." There are no curious onlookers and he does not feel that he is on parade or under surveillance. He does not have to dodge, involuntarily, when a car shoots past him, not quite two feet away.

All things considered, while the expense may be for the time being somewhat larger in the final analysis, it will be counteracted by the greater efficiency in having repairs, whenever and wherever possible, made at night. It means greater comfort to the tenant, smoother sailing for the building manager in that it cements greater cordiality and pleasanter relations. In the long run, its benefits also accrue to the owner.

ADVERTISING REAL ESTATE.

To Be Considered by a National Committee of Seventeen.

At the meeting of the Executive Committee of the National Association of Real Estate Exchanges held in Akron recently, it was decided to organize a national committee on real estate advertising. This committee is to report on the ethics and efficiency of real estate advertising and to prepare an exhibit for the next convention, which will be held in Los Angeles in June.

President Thomas Shallcross, Jr., of Philadelphia has appointed the following committee, to which notices are now being sent by Executive Secretary Tom S. Ingersoll of Minneapolis:

L. D. Woodworth, chairman, Garfield Real Estate Co., 1 Exchange street, Rochester, N. Y.; H. P. Haas, Freehold Real Estate Co., 311 Fourth avenue, Pittsburgh; James Webb, J. W. S. Webb & Sons, 549 The Arcade, Cleveland; Paul Steinbrecher, Paul Steinbrecher & Co., 7 South Dearborn street, Chicago; William Pearson, Wm. Pearson & Co., Canada Permanent Building, Winnipeg; J. C. Nichols, 911 Commerce Building, Kansas City; Charles C. George, George & Co., City National Bank Building, Omaha; L. F. Eppich, 612 Eighteenth street, Denver; R. W. Hill, Hoge Building, Seattle; R. B. Armstrong, Guy B. Rush Co., 901 Story Building, Los Angeles; Forrest Adair, George & Forrest Adair, 208 Atlanta National Bank Building, Atlanta; Emmet Morris, vice-president, Mercantile Trust Co., Little Rock; H. B. Van Sickle, Toledo; E. G. Walton, E. G. Walton Co., 114 South Fourth street, Minneapolis; W. H. Stillwell, secretary, Chatham Real Estate & Improvement Co., 11 Bryant street East, Savannah; John Sinberg, 1218 Chestnut street, Philadelphia; John F. Watson, Roland Park Co., Baltimore; Secretary T. S. Ingersoll, Andrus Building, Minneapolis.

The committee is urging through the real estate and general periodicals that it be placed in immediate receipt of booklet, periodical or newspaper advertising pertaining in any way to real estate, all material being sent in duplicate as far as possible. Advertising managers are requested to send their most notable productions, and even "horrible examples" will be welcomed, especially when accompanied with a statement of the "reasons why."

The committee will be especially grateful for suggestions of any kind from experienced advertisers. All letters and material should be sent to the chairman at once.

The Supremacy of Broadway.

Older Broadway remains the natural channel of Manhattan Island life and commerce. Backbone of the city, treasury of its major traditions, pioneer of its growth, it still stretches straight and strong, as the most powerful symbol of New York City. Along its primitive paths and its pavements have passed the marching men and the greatest episodes of its career and that of the city. In a sense, New York City is Broadway. Indian, Dutchman, Britisher and American have left their indelible sign upon its atmosphere and its structure. It greets the newcomer, who is to bring greater power to his adopted country and to find the highest free civilization on the globe.

Through forests of towers on each side it inspires with the feeling of man's advance in the arts of human development for beneficent ideals. It has no trace of sordidness in the splendor of its plan. Up its lower reaches have gone, for 300 years, presidents, princes, patriots, heroes, leaders of men, armies and the troops of plain people that make the character of a nation.

Festivals and funerals have followed each other through its length. Washington, Lafayette, Hamilton, Clay, Webster, Kossuth, Lincoln, Grant, have heard the roar of a grateful nation well and swell between its walls of stone and its living walls of citizens. And here and there still appear religious reminders of the higher life, cases of sanctity, green jewelled lawns, strewn with white memorials of great and worthy souls in New York history, and lifting human thought from passing financial aims and ambitions to everlasting faiths.—Wall Street Journal.

USEFUL APPLIANCES

Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration

An Electric Water Heater.

WINDOW washers and scrub women and others requiring hot water in buildings will save the manager considerable time if he will place at their disposal electric hot water heaters, which may be attached to any lighting plug in the office or room. This device is on the market and has been tried with success.

This device was patented by an engineer, who made an exhaustive study of the problem of heating water quickly and thoroughly in quantities from 30 to 30,000 gallons. Installations can be made so that the device may be used as an auxiliary heater in hot water supply tanks situated far from origin of heat, especially after it has been pumped through the piping of a building and it is made small enough so that a scrub woman or cleaner can use the device for heating the water in his portable bucket. The cost of installation is considerably lessened by the special flat rates per month now being made by electric companies and based upon continuous operations. The heater itself occupies a space covering 3 by 30 inches and can be installed anywhere. It requires no attention nor even switches, according to the manufacturers, who say that it gives no trouble of any kind.

Measuring Wood Lots.

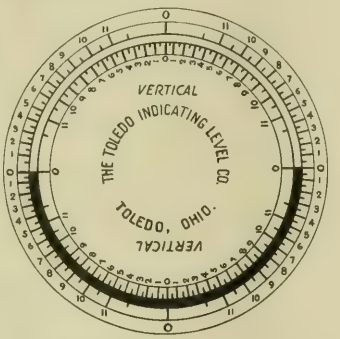
SO many suburban developments are going ahead on which standing trees are located that some of our readers may be interested in knowing how to compute the market value of standing timber. The New York State College of Forestry at Syracuse sends the following information:

"Most woodlot owners sell their standing timber for a ridiculously small price, because they do not know how much they have. By using the following method a fairly close estimate may be made:

Count all the trees in a circle 118 feet across; 1-4 acre. Select a sample tree as nearly average as you can. Determine how much of the tree you can saw (or use for any purpose) into 16-foot logs (8-foot logs count as halves). Add the top and bottom diameters inside the bark, and divide by two. (Only solid wood considered, bark excluded.) This will give you the average diameter of the used length.

Square the average diameter thus obtained, subtract 60, multiply by .8, and you will have the contents of an average 16-foot log. Multiply by the number of logs in the tree and then by four times the number of trees on your plot (since 1-4 acre plot was used), and you will have the contents of that area in board feet.

Basswood, 85 feet total height, can saw 40 feet of it (2 1-2 logs). Top diameter inside the bark, 10 inches; diameter of lower cut, inside the bark, 20 inches (average diameter, 15 inches).



15 squared=225; (225-60) x .8=132 B. F. contents of average log. 132 x 2 1-2 logs=330 B. F. contents of tree. 10 trees on plot 33 x 40=13,200 B. F. per acre.

By selecting 8-10 sample plots in different parts of your woodlot the average stand per acre may be found. Before selling the woodlot for a lump sum, get the correct acreage (measure, if necessary), take 8-10 sample plots and find how much you are being offered per thousand feet board measure.

The Level That "Talks."

HOLD on there, you are a quarter of an inch off to the foot!'" "How would you like to have a level that talked to you like this, checking up your work as you go along so that all the time you could be sure of proceeding with absolute accuracy?" asks the American Carpenter and Builder.

This is almost what the Toledo Indicating Level does. With this level, instead of guessing at it and then testing with the spirit glass, you simply raise or lower an eighth or a quarter inch or whatever the level says and the work is done. It is only necessary to refer to this indicating level once to be sure of accuracy.

It consists of a shallow pan filled exactly half way up with red unfreezable fluid. Over this pan of fluid is placed a heavy piece of frosted plate glass. On the face of this glass all lines and figures are in blue enamel and so very easy to read. The red fluid shows through only in the free circle inside the indicating marks. The reading is always the top line of the liquid.

Every figure on this dial has a practical meaning that is fully explained in the circular of instructions. Builders find this indicating level indispensable in laying walls, getting proper grade for cement floors, getting pitch of roof, and also for all leveling and plumbing work. In construction it is practically unbreakable, so simple it cannot get out of order; never has to be adjusted.

Proper Ventilation.

IT is generally assumed that the proper quantity of free air to be introduced into a room in order to obtain the accepted standard of purity is as follows: For offices and workshops where the work is light, 2,000 cubic feet of air per hour per person. In public halls, theatres and the like, 1,500 cubic feet of air per hour per person. In factories where the work is heavy 3,000 cubic feet of air per hour per person. The above figures are quoted from recognized authorities.

While the above figures are accepted as sufficient for proper ventilation, in summer months, when it is desired to cool as well as ventilate, more air must be exhausted. Where the source of heat is only from the persons at work, a change of air every 4 to 5 minutes is necessary. In factories, laundries, engine rooms, etc., in which there are sources of heat other than the employees, a change of air every 2 to 3 minutes should be figured, and in extreme cases as often as one change per minute.

The inside temperature can seldom be kept lower than 5 to 10 degrees Fahrenheit above the outside temperature (in the shade). However, the air kept in rapid circulation through being exhausted, will feel cooler to the body than the thermometer would indicate, due to the evaporation which is set up by moving air coming in contact with the body. For example: Air in motion at 90 degrees F. of 75 per cent. humidity will feel considerably cooler than still air at 80 degrees and the same percentage of humidity.

Ready Heating Rules.

FREQUENTLY in heating a church or school building it is the practice to use but one register placed imediately above the furnace, and the size of the pipe and register is usually determined by the heating contractor in accordance with the experience he has had with such work. In order to prevent the errors which might naturally be made by the inexperienced man, the Utica Heater Co., Utica, N. Y., has presented the following advice, according to the Building Age.

"When only one register is used immediately above the furnace, the following sizes of warm-air pipes and registers are recommended, the register faces in all cases to be without valves, so that it will be impossible to shut off the outflow of air heated by the furnace and permit the furnace to be excessively heated with disastrous results.

"An 18-in. fire-pot furnace will fill one 16-in. pipe which should be connected with a 24-in. round register or an 18x24-in. register.

"A 22-in. fire-pot furnace will fill one 20-in. pipe which should be connected with a 28-in. round register or a 24x27-in. register.

"A 24-in. fire-pot furnace will fill one 23-in. pipe which should be connected with a 33-in. round register or a 24x36-in, register.

"A 26-in. fire-pot furnace will fill one 26-in. pipe which should be connected with a 36-in. round register or 26x36-in. register.

"A 28-in. fire-pot furnace will fill one 30-in. pipe which should be connected with a 30x36-in. register.

"A 30-in. fire-pot furnace will fill a 34-in. pipe which should be connected with a 38x42-in. register.

A Batch Timing Device.

THIS attachment, called the Batchometer, consists of a small recording meter and an automatic signal bell, housed with necessary dry batteries in a metal case with glass doors 14 in. square by 4-in. thick. This case is shown in the accompanying view.

When the side loader is raised the short arm shown is also raised, operating the meter and at the same time raising the rod piston in the cylinder, which is filled with glycerin. After a definite time, which can be adjusted as required by a little contact point fastened by a set screw to the vertical rod, and has a range of from 3 sec. to 3 min., the bell is rung as a signal to the operator to dump the batch. The same signal can be used to control the operation of the side loader so that loading and dumping can be made practically simultaneously. Such an equipment eliminates guesswork from the time of batch mixing and should assure the uniform mixing of all the batches. At the end of the day there is also readily available a complete record of the total number of batches mixed.

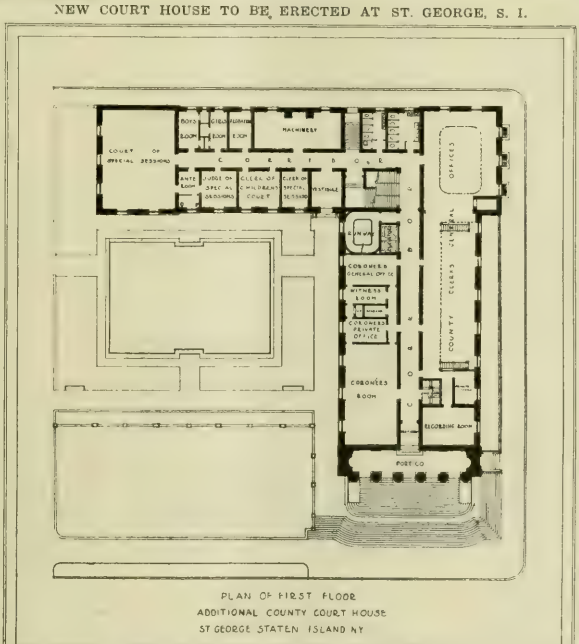
CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

New Richmond County Court House, at St. George, S. I., To Be a Monumental Structure, Costing About $500,000

THE Borough of Richmond as a community is growing rapidly, and improvements of various types, both private and municipal, have recently been started or are scheduled to advance this spring. The construction of the new Richmond County Court House, which has been under consideration for the last five years, now to go ahead, is an example that business activities of this borough of the city have outgrown their present facilities and have now made necessary the immediate erection of a modern court house for the city government. The site is located at DeKalb, Stuyvesant, Jay and Hamilton streets, St. George, S. I.



Carrère & Hastings, Architects.

NEW COURT HOUSE TO BE ERECTED AT ST. GEORGE, S. I.

Messrs. Carrere & Hastings, architects for the new court house, have completed plans calling for an expenditure of about $500,000, not including the cost of the site. Architecturally the building will be monumental in design, following closely in exterior detail to the Borough Hall, adjoining, the scheme being to form a group idea.

The general contract was awarded on January 6th to the John H. Parker Company, of 315 Fourth avenue, Manhattan, but no subcontracts with the exception of the structural steel which was awarded on Thursday, February 4, to the W. B. Shafer Company, Inc., of 105 West 40th street, Manhattan, have yet been placed. It is expected, however, that the balance of the awards will be announced at an early date.

PLAN OF FIRST FLOOR
ADDITIONAL COUNTY COURT HOUSE
ST GEORGE STATEN ISLAND NY

Carrére & Hastings, Architects.

The building will be L-shape, with dimensions of 127.8x192 feet, three stories in height. The main entrance in Jay street is entered through a portico on the ground and first floor, which is supported by six large limestone columns of Corinthian design, 40 feet high and about 4 feet in diameter. On this floor will be located the entrance vestibule, recording room, coroner's court, coroner's private office, coroner's general office, witness room, county clerk's general office, Court of Special Sessions, quarters for the judge of Special Sessions, boys' and girls' rooms, probation room, clerk of Children's Court, clerk of Special Sessions, toilets for men and women, a large steel vault and machinery room.

On the second floor, which is the main court floor, will be found the Supreme Court rooms for the Supreme Court judge and clerks, stenographers' room, main lobby, County Court room, quarters for the County Court judge and clerks, sheriff's general office, sheriff's private office, deputies' consulting room, Surrogate Court, surrogate's private office, record room, recording clerk's room, recording room for the chief clerk, secretary and stenographers' office and telephone booths.

The third story will be divided into quarters for the Grand Jury, and in the front wing a large law library, 62x64.9 feet, lawyers' room, judge's room, commissioner's private office, commissioner of juror's room, trial jurors' room, witness room, district attorney's office, and toilet accommodations for men and women.

Besides its monumental staircase there will be minor staircases built in marble throughout, and further vertical communication is afforded by two spacious elevators. There has also been provided a spiral or in-runway to serve all floors in easy access to all trial rooms. All floors throughout will be of marble with marble wainscotting, and the main lobby will be treated in an elaborate monumental manner. The plumbing and heating systems will be of the very best make, but the type has not yet been specified by the architects.

The exterior will be entirely composed of cut limestone with an ornamentation of pilasters and turned limestone balustrade. The roof will be of copper and all outside doors will be kalamein with cast mouldings and ornamental iron grills over the doors.

ARCHITECTURAL LEAGUE.

Opening of the Exhibition—Annual Dinner—Prizes Awarded.

The annual exhibition of the Architectural League opened last Saturday afternoon with a reception at the Building of the American Fine Art Society, following the annual dinner on the evening before. Cass Gilbert, president of the league, Arnold W. Brunner, Karl Bitter, Royal Cortizzoz, Charles Dana Gibson, R. Clipton Sturgis, president of the American Institute of Architects, and Henry Hornbostel were the after-dinner speakers.

The prize for architecture was not awarded this year. The medal of honor for sculpture was awarded to Robert Aitken for his "Fountain of the Earth" at the Panama-Pacific Exposition in San Francisco, a replica of a section of which is conspicuously shown in the galleries in West 57th street.

The collaborative competition, in which an architect, painter and sculptor unite in an ornamental composition, was awarded this year to Jerauld Dahler, Warren Dahler and Anthony T. Terizzi for a scheme of decoration for a terminal to a garden.

The Avery prize for sculpture was awarded to Hans Schuler for his small figure of a nymph which he made for a garden terminal designed by William Gordon Beecher.

The exhibition is exceptionally rich in paintings and sculpture. There are a number of decorations for the Panama-Pacific Buildings. Among the architectural examples represented by drawings, sketches, or photographs are:

Minneapolis Museum of Fine Arts and the McKinley Birthplace Memorial, by McKim, Mead & White; Morgan Memorial, Hartford, Conn., by La Farge and Morris; Arlington Memorial, Washington, D. C., by Carrere & Hastings; Municipal Building, Pittsburgh, E. B. Lee and Palmer, Hornbostel & Jones, associate architects; J. P. Morgan & Co. Building, by Trowbridge & Livingston; Lord & Taylor's store, by Starrett & Van Vleck; bridge connecting railway, Queens Boulevard, by A. W. Brunner, and Church of St. Vincent Ferrer, by B. G. Goodhue.

Quadrangle Club at Princeton, H. O. Milliken; alterations to residence of Theodore Boettger at Hackensack; houses at Englewood and New Canaan, by Murphy & Dana; house and grounds of Marshal Fry at Southampton, Aymar Embury II.; studio for Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney at Roslyn, by Delano & Aldrich; house at Westbury, by Peabody, Wilson & Brown; house of A. A. Fowler at Peapack, N. J., by Hewitt & Bottomley; pavilion for William Fahnestock, by Charles A. Platt; house for Paul Moore at Convent, N. J., by H. T. Lindeberg; residence for Eugene Van Rensselaer at Berkley Springs, Va., by Oswald C. Herring and Douglas Fitch; Trowbridge & Ackerman, Taylor & Levi, Alfred Hopkins, Hunt & Hunt, W. W. Bosworth, Wilson Eyre, W. F. Dominick, Bernhart Muller are other architects represented on the walls of the exhibition.

Small Houses Preferable to Huge Ones.

Albert E. Kleinert, builder, of 316 Flatbush avenue, said in answer to an inquiry concerning the three-family house problem, that if the Tenement House Law had not made a building occupied by three families a tenement house, the Borough of Brooklyn would never have been troubled by the congestion problem. Prior to 1902, the greater number of buildings erected as dwellings were three-family houses. After the passage of the act it was practically impossible to erect a three-family house or tenement on a 20-foot lot from an economic standpoint. This condition forced the erection of five and six-story tenements, containing from twenty-four to thirty families, on plots of 50-foot frontage.

"From every viewpoint which is better, a building containing three families, using a common entrance, or a building containing thirty families, using a common entrance? I believe that if the law should be amended to eliminate this class of dwellings from the Tenement House Act, and the Building Code amended so as to cover this class of buildings, it would provide all essentials necessary for the lighting and ventilating of the interior rooms, and bring the cost of construction to a paying basis. This would also make it possible to alter the present or existing three-story-and-basement private houses into three-family dwellings, which is at the present time next to impossible.

"Can one imagine a better dwelling than one of these former private houses (and probably now occupied by the same number of persons as a private house as it would be if converted into a three-family house) remodeled at a low cost into a comfortable three-family house?

"I am greatly in favor of improving housing conditions by use of the three-family house, and abolishing as much as possible the construction of those unsightly New York incubators (which, by the way, are a product of the Tenement House Act, especially as far as this borough is concerned), because, apart from the Borough of Manhattan, the rest of Greater New York has the land to accomplish it."

LOFTS ON THEATRE SITE.

Another Change for Middle Broadway—An Arcade Planned.

Workmen will soon start to demolish the old Bijou Theatre, on Broadway, near 30th street. On its site will be erected a modern store, loft and office building by Isaac A. Hopper, Inc., general contractor, as owner and builder.

1237 AND 1239 BROADWAY.
S. Walter Katz & I. G. Feiner, Archt's. Owner and Builder, Isaac A. Hopper, Inc.

110 West 40th street. The plans and specifications were prepared by S. Walter Katz and I. G. Feiner, associated architects, 505 Fifth avenue.

The proposed new building will occupy numbers 1237 and 1239 Broadway and run through the block to 502 and 504 Sixth avenue. The Broadway frontage is 39.11 feet and that on Sixth avenue is 41.1 feet. Plans of the structure call for facades of buff brick with limestone and terra cotta trimmings, designed in the style of a modified Gothic. The first floor will have an arcade, running through the building from Broadway to Sixth avenue, which will be lined with small shops. The structure will be remarkable for the fact that it is one of a very few buildings erected on so narrow a plot to such a height. The approximate dimensions of the plot are 40 x 240 feet.

Construction of the building will be strictly fireproof throughout and it will be equipped with automatic fire alarm system, a sprinkler system of 100 per cent. efficiency and other apparatus for the protection of life and property from the fire hazard. Five high-speed electric elevators will provide access to all floors. About $600,000 is given as the cost of the building and including the price of the land the operation will call for an investment of about $1,500,000.

The firm of Isaac A. Hopper (Inc.) has been long known among architects and general contractors in Manhattan and vicinity. An attractive booklet, which was recently published by the firm and circulated among architects and prospective owners throughout the city, describes in detail the organization of the company from its foundation by Isaac A. Hopper in 1883 to the present day. In it has been included a number of photographs of important operations erected by this firm during the years of its activity and a number of facts and statistics in connection with their business, which are interesting and instructive.

At the present time the affairs of the company are managed by officers who have been in the building business for many years. Walter F. Hopper, president of the firm, entered the building business in 1900 and has been actively engaged in it since that time. He personally closes all general contracts for construction, supervises all work and is in constant touch with the business of the firm. George B. Hopper, vice-president, has charge of all office work, purchases all materials, closes all sub-contracts, etc. Morris P. Altman, whose name has been associated with that of Isaac A. Hopper for the last eighteen years, has full charge of all finances and assists Walter F. Hopper in the supervision of construction.

BUILDING CODE REVISION.

New Ordinance on Strength and Quality of Materials in Preparation.

The Building Committee of the Board of Aldermen, acting through ex-Supt. Rudolph P. Miller, has in preparation a preliminary draft of an ordinance with respect to the materials used on the construction of buildings in the City of New York. When completed and enacted it will form part of the Building Code. The ordinance will provide for testing materials and will describe the qualities and proportions that materials and mixtures should possess. Mr. Miller is prepared to receive at this time pertinent criticisms and suggestions.

Memorandum from Lime Manufacturers.

Appreciating the desire of the authorities of the City of New York to enact a building code which will be fair to all the industrial interests affected, and which will at the same time tend to develop building along the lines of safety and permanency, the Lime Manufacturers' Association of New York, through its code committee, has put before the Building Committee of the Board of Aldermen and its expert adviser, ex-Supt. Miller, a memorandum which sets forth the ideas of the manufacturers with respect to the use of lime mortar in building construction. One of the signatures to the document is that of Prof. McGregor, of Columbia. An annexed petition contains the signatures of sixty or more builders.

It is claimed that the restrictions upon the use of lime contained in the code prepared by the preceding Building Committee and inherited by the present committee are arbitrary and not based on the results of physical tests. Thus in section 92 it is provided that walls in buildings over 75 feet in height shall be laid in Portland cement mortar to which no lime has been added. This is claimed to be arbitrary, unless it can be proved that a lime-cement mortar would not give the required strength.

The petitioners submit that in the light of experiment and practical experience lime mortar should be used under certain conditions, and under other conditions a mixture of lime and cement. They claim that in all cases a percentage of lime is beneficial, and that the percentage allowed in any case should be dependent upon the various conditions of its use. The memorandum then proceeds to the construction at length of the various sections in the code concerning the use of lime.

New Riverside Drive Apartments.

Plans are being prepared by Valentine & Kissam, architects, for an apartment house to be erected on the property of the L. W. Whitney Estate on Riverside Drive, near the 157th street station of the subway. The plot to be improved contains about 7,000 square feet and is situated on the new service road overlooking the old Riverside Drive about 250 feet north and west from the corner of Audubon place and 158th street.

Plans for McAlpin Addition.

Warren & Wetmore, architects, 16 East 47th street, are preparing plans and specifications for a twenty-five story addition to the Hotel McAlpin, which will be erected at 46-48 West Thirty-fourth street immediately adjoining the present structure. The addition will be on a plot 50x98.9 feet and will cost more than $500,000. With furnishings and equipment the improvement will represent an outlay of about $1,000,000. The addition will in design conform to that of the present hotel. Four additional elevators will be installed and much space in this section will be devoted to the exclusive use of women. Two hundred additional bedrooms will also be included.

New Building for Hampton Shops.

Plans are being prepared by W. L. Rouse, L. A. Goldstone and Jos. L. Steinam, architects, 40 West 32d street, for a modern store and loft building which will be erected for the Hampton shops of the Grand Rapids Furniture Co., 34 West 32d street, in East 50th street, opposite St. Patrick's Cathedral. The facades will be of Gothic design and will harmonize well with the surroundings. The structure will be eleven stories in height, on a plot 56x100 feet. The entrance to the new building will be through a loggia, setting well back from the building line. The first floor will be 25 feet in height, with galleries. Approximately $200,000 is given as the estimated cost of the building.

Proposed Hotel for Artists.

George Mort Pollard, architect, 127 Madison avenue, is working on plans for a nine-story hotel exclusively for artists. The building will be located in the north side of 67th street, one hundred feet west of Central Park West. The plot is 150x100.5 feet. The facade will be of brick and terra cotta designed in Gothic style. In plan this building will be unique in that the bedrooms will be on mezzanine floors, with studios connecting above on main floors. The first floor will contain two large exhibition rooms and on the second floor will be located the main dining room. The other seven floors will be devoted to studios. The owner of the structure is the Hotel des Artistes, Inc., Penrhyn Stanlaws, president. The cost of the project is estimated at more than $800,000.

NO ARCHITECTS SELECTED.

HUDSON FALLS, N. Y.—The Hudson Falls Public Library, Rev. C. D. Kellogg, president, 25 Walnut st, contemplates the erection of a 1-sty public library to cost about $5,000. No architect selected.

TROY, N. Y.—The City of Troy, Board of Contract & Supply, J. J. McLaughlin, secretary, contemplates the erection of a police station to cost about $35,000. Architect will probably be selected by local competition.

PLANS FIGURING.

APARTMENTS, FLATS AND TENEMENTS.

MANHATTAN.—Jacob Axelrod, 322 West 100th st, owner, is taking bids on subs for two 12-sty apartments on the east side of Broadway, from 88th to 89th sts, from plans by George F. Pelham, 30 East 42d st. C. J. Jeppesen, Inc., 62 West 45th st, steel engineer. Cost, about $200,000.

HOSPITALS AND ASYLUMS.

WEST HAVERSTRAW, N. Y.—Bids will close February 16 at 1 p. m. for a 2-sty hospital building, 60x100 ft., at the State Hospital for Crippled & Deformed Children. Lewis F. Pilcher, Capitol, Albany, State architect. Cost, about $35,000.

Garagemen Must Discriminate

Last month the Automobile Club of America opened an exceptionally well appointed 4-story garage on 72d street, near Avenue A. And even before the building was completed the management signed a contract for Edison Service

They reasoned thus: To be a success the building must have a reliable light and power supply. Moreover, this supply must be secured at the lowest possible cost. Therefore, the private plant idea was promptly discarded, and arrangements made with representatives of the Central Station company

You must reason along the same lines, Mr. Garage Owner, or your establishment will be a failure. Write or telephone us to-day and you can have an Edison Estimate on your desk tomorrow, if necessary

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

BEACON, N. Y.—Rasmussen & Wayland, 1133 Broadway, Manhattan, are preparing plans for a 2-sty high school on Fishkill av, for the Board of Education of Beacon, Union Free School District No. 8. Homer H. Stuart, president. Cost, about $18,000. The owner will advertise for bids about March 7.

PERSONAL AND TRADE NOTES.

THE LEHIGH PORTLAND CEMENT CO. has moved its New York offices from 261 Broadway to 30 East 42d st.

THE LIBMAN CONTRACTING COMPANY will continue business under the firm name of "The Libman Contracting Company, Inc."

STANDARD PAINT CO. will move its offices from 100 William st to the fifth floor of the Woolworth Building, Broadway and Park pl, about February 20.

C. HOWARD CRANE AND PERCIVAL R. PEREIRA, architects, have associated for the practice of their profession and have opened offices at 500 Fifth av.

SIDNEY DIAMANT, consulting engineer, 15 East 40th st, has been appointed a member of Citizens' Union City Plan Committee.

MODERN IRON WORKS, INC., 49-51 West 140th st, S. Wasser, president, M. Goldenberg, secretary and treasurer, is the reorganization of the Bleeker Iron Works which formerly conducted the business at same address.

GEORGE W. TILLSON, consulting engineer of the Borough of Brooklyn, New York City, has recently given a course of six lectures on street paving at Harvard University in connection with Professor George C. Whipple's course in municipal administration.

McDERMOTT & HANNIGAN, general contractors, of 103 Park avenue, announce that they have enlarged their offices and have provided a sub-contractor's estimating room, with every convenience for the comfort of their customers. A cordial invitation is extended to the building trade to visit their offices.

IMPERIAL TRIM COMPANY, INC., 103 East 125th st, manufacturers of a general line of interior woodwork, is the reorganization of the Niagara Woodworking Co. William B. Foster is the president of the new company and T. J. McCormack, who formerly was the manager for the Niagara Co., is general manager.

EDWARD M. HAGAR has resigned the presidency of the Universal Portland Cement Co., a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation, to become the head of a new company which he is forming to acquire a chain of Portland cement plants covering a large part of the United States. The headquarters of the new company will be in Chicago.

CONNORS BROS., general contractors., of 64 West 88th st, have introduced a novel, though entirely practical, scheme to the members of their profession. They have turned the third floor of the 88th st house into a combination office and apartment, and are now using it in that connection. Aside from its practicability, it also possesses an economical feature that should appeal to young architects just entering the field for themselves. As an indication that the venture is catching and likely to spread, the Record and Guide has knowledge of architects who plan similar arrangements by combining with another architect, or draughtsman, thus maintaining an office at night, equipped with lounging quarters, in order to facilitate hurried work and avoid tedious commuting at a late hour.

OBITUARY

JOHN M. HACKER, a mechanical engineer, died at his home, 267 Lembeck av, Jersey City, in his eighty-first year. He is survived by his widow, two daughters and three sons.

Hickey, Deputy Tenement House Commissioner; Simon H. Kugel, president of the Brownsville Board of Trade; Audley Clarke, Alderman Isidore M. Rosenblum, ex-Alderman Alexander S. Drescher and Assemblyman Nathan B. Finkelstein. The officers of the organization are: Joseph I. Aaron, president; Abraham Brumer, vice-president; Abraham Kaplan, treasurer; Jacob Oxfeld, secretary. The reception committee included Morris Weinburg, chairman; Abraham Kaplan, Abraham Brumer and Louis Halterin.

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

EDWARD M. HAGAR, EX-PRESIDENT OF UNIVERSAL PORTLAND CEMENT CO., BELIEVED TO BE BEHIND BIG 15 COMPANY MERGER

"Build Now" Movement Bearing Fruit
—Suburban Dealers Well Stocked

PRACTICALLY every building material distributor in the Metropolitan district is ready for spring specifications. A careful tour of the leading yards in New York and east New Jersey this week indicates that preparations are being made for an active building season. Some dealers, anticipating that the "Build Now" movement, which has been under way for several weeks, will catch them short of certain materials like yellow pine, common brick, sand and crushed stone, have placed supplemental reserve orders, so as to give their customers the advantage, as long as possible, of the present low price of materials.

Manufacturers' agents, however, are beginning to make restrictions in the matter of long term deliveries. Portland cement agents are not quoting $1.37 except for immediate or thirty-day options. Yellow pine interests are even more rigid and will not make quotations at present list longer than ten days. An advance in price is expected at any time, so quotations on this commodity are made subject to change without notice. A tighter discount on window glass is also expected, owing to increasing foreign orders.

The increased capacity reported by the United States Steel Corporation, and the re-employment of more men at some of the independent steel companies have given rise to the rumor that quotations on structural steel will not long remain at the present low level of 1.85c. for shapes and sheets and 1.80c. for bars at Waverly. At least a 5 per cent. advance in the pound is considered possible.

Suburban architects are authority for the statement that the "Build Now" movement is bearing fruit. Jersey City, Newark, Paterson, Elizabeth and Plainfield are all centers of improved activity in residential building. New York, especially, above 125th street is showing signs of much greater activity in speculative construction, especially in the eastern portion. Brooklyn is reported to be developing a larger quantity of two-family and small tenement houses, with here and there a notable apartment house operation along the line of the new subway developments. Queens building material interests are reporting an improved activity in fireproof house construction.

The situation with regard to crushed stone and gravel in this market is attracting attention. Some sizes are not being quoted. Quarries are being operated as full as weather conditions have permitted, but even so the demand is considerably above the supply. Sand, however, is weak, because it is a by-product of the gravel output, and as gravel is in greater demand than sand, owing to heavy subway requirements, the price is weaker than it normally would be.

Slate is also another commodity that is moving up. Genuine Bangor stiffened this week, subject to delivery conditions. Linseed oil is holding well despite the fluctuating condition of the flaxseed market at Duluth.

Common brick, for this time of the year, is doing well. The price levels now ruling seem to be well sustained, considering weather conditions, and riding is proceeding quite in conformity with that of last February. The next price movement promises to be upward. Most dealers are riding from stacks, which may account for the light buying and unloading reported by the big distributors. This is particularly true of the section north of the Harlem River and in such cities as Newark and Jersey City.

Another sign of an improving market was noted in the action of the National Tube Company in opening the week with a reduced discount on wrought iron pipe. The reduction was only one point, which is equivalent to an advance of $2 per ton for April delivery and a reduction of two points, or an advance of $4 a ton for May and June delivery. Announcement was made that Levering & Garrigues will furnish the 500 tons of structural steel for the Joseph T. Ryerson warehouse and the George A. Fuller Company has taken the contract for the Victor Talking Machine factory extension. This will require about 1,200 tons of structural shapes. The big printing building to be erected at Eighth avenue and 33d street will require about 2,000 tons of structural shapes. Another interest has placed orders for about 2,000 tons of concrete reinforcing bars with mills. Pending steel orders that have developed since the first of the month aggregate about 9,000 tons.

All this indicates that building projects actually are going ahead and that the trend of prices is unmistakably upward on deliveries covering periods longer than sixty days.

Plan filings in New York for the current week follow. In the five boroughs in the same week last year there were 152 new building plans filed, with an estimated value of $2,190,135.

PORTLAND CEMENT.

Some Rumors Concerning the Big Fifteen Company Combination.

HISTORY is believed to be about ready to repeat itself in the Portland cement situation, not only in New York, but throughout the country. And Edward M. Hagar, late President of the Universal Portland Cement Company, is the little giant who is playing the role of chief scythe swinger and hour glass holder for Old Father Time.

When a man who is accredited with pulling out a stipend, equal to that which Uncle Sam pays to the second man in the realm, voluntarily resigns, it is at least human nature to surmise that he has something bigger in mind. That is why all the Lehigh district, in particular, and the Atlantic seaboard in general is wondering what the big chief in the cement industry is going to draw on an unsuspecting cement public.

Harking back to the time when Atlas was taking the west by the twenty-mule team price plowing process, Mr. Hagar sat back in the president's chair in the offices of the Universal Company and calmly smiled. He knew that Atlas was getting the business, getting practically all of it, but at a price that did not leave much margin. Other companies that were not hep wrestled with the company that later was destined to make the Panama Canal famous and Atlas, true to tradition, was supporting the cement business of the world on its shoulders. But, it always has been a question regarding how much money they made out of this tremendous volume of business. The Atlas people apparently were satisfied to get an entry into the west and said nothing.

Mr. Hagar just naturally sat there, yawning and basking in the sunshine of complacency until he thought the Atlas had loaded up with about as much cheap business as it ought to have and then he stopped yawning. When the Atlas tried to buy cement to supply its trade there was considerable difficulty in getting enough to meet demands, but it delivered the goods as per contract. When prices moved up, it was the Universal that got into the game and took the big profits.

At least this is the tradition that has endured in the eastern trade ever since that occurred. Here in New York the conditions are similar to those in the west years ago. Somebody is cutting the very heart out of the cement market here. They are selling the product in New York at a loss. Others are biding their time.

It is quite natural to suppose that successful generalship in one big master business stroke will beget other master strokes in strategy. So when certain companies here in the east were asked recently what they valued their stock at and signs of corralling some fifteen plants, reaching from the Atlantic seaboard to the sunny slopes of the Golden West, were apparent to those on the insiue of the big doings in the trade, it seemed to be a plain open and shut guess that Mr. Hagar was getting his Big Berthas ready to bombard something and that something seems to be the cement business of the U. S. A. Cement guns will, however, not be used, but rather up-to-date business methods.

Down at Allentown the story goes that B. F. Affleck, who succeeded to the presidency of the Universal, dropped into the office of E. M. Young, the helmsman of the Lehigh company, and proceeded to shave himself. Now, it is an ordinary event for a man to shave himself, but when the president of one company uses the brain department of another company as a barber shop, the Sherlocks of Pennsylvania immediately rushed to the conclusion that there must be a streak of honey connecting the two.

Somebody asked Bert Swett, the sales manager for the Lehigh, if his company was going to adopt Mr. Hagar or be adopted by him and he proceeded to comment upon the weather. So it is all along the Lehigh line. Nobody has anything to say; in fact, they are so very politely evasive that it is the impression that all concerned are taking a special course in diplomacy.

It would not surprise the East to find that some important eastern company would ultimately be found to be numbered among those identified with the pending Hagar combination. At least that is what is being talked about in the Nazareth district and in the New York market.

Colonel Trexler's name has been prominently mentioned in the underground stories about the big thing that is to come. And where the Colonel's name or presence is the trade from past experience at once jumps to the conclusion that some monumental deal is on. Coupled with the name of Edward M. Hagar the trade expects colossal things. It is no wonder that a capitalization of several hundred million dollars, right or wrong, is the Wall street rumor of the size of the new combination.

The important cement trade in New York is looking forward with considerable gratification to the formation of this company because it believes that it will carry with it the ultimate solution to indiscriminate cutting of prices here in the east, and the periodical disruption of the market.

COMMON BRICK.

Ice Shuts Off Supply from City—Base Price Now $6.

BASE price quotations in New York's wholesale brick market run about $6. Ice has shut off the supply to this market from the Hudson district. Prices will trend higher. A total supply of only 15,000,000 brick is not excessive in a rising demand.

Official transactions for Hudson River brick covering the week ending Wednesday, Feb. 10, in the wholesale market, with comparison for the corresponding period last year and a comparative statement of Hudson brick unloaded from barges for consumption here, follows:

REAL ESTATE RECORD AND BUILDERS GUIDE.

TWO REPORTS ON BUILDING INSPECTION

The Majority of the Mayor's Committee Advise that the Estimate Board Should Regroup the Departments—Minority Report Favors Borough Plan

APPOINTED to devise a plan for the amalgamation of building inspection departments in this city that would provide a basis for co-ordinating and harmonizing divergent views, the Mayor's committee composed of Messrs. Allan Robinson, Robert E. Simon, Lawrence Veiller, Peter J. Brady, Alfred T. White and William H. Childs, has made a report, which is signed by five of the six members. There is also a minority report, which is signed by a single member, Robert E. Simon, who is chairman of the Conference Committee of the Allied Associations; and there is also an exception taken to the majority report by Mr. Brady.

As everybody understands, the need of unifying or consolidating the departments had been conceded. The real mission of the committee was to find an agreeable way of doing it. There has been a division of opinion whether there should be just one centralized department or one department for each borough; whether the Tenement House Department should be included in the grouping or left alone; whether the State Labor Department's duties in this city should be taken over or left alone, and whether the Fire Prevention Bureau should be taken over or left alone.

The majority report does not undertake to say whether the "borough plan" or the "city plan" should be followed, but it does confirm the need of combining bureaus and departments. It recommends that the Board of Estimate be empowered by an enabling act and charged with the duty of "regrouping" and "readjusting" all existing functions of the city and borough departments with respect to building inspection. In other words, the responsibility is put up to the Board of Estimate.

The majority report favors regrouping the following departments: Police, Fire, Tenement House, Health, Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, Public Works, Department of Licenses, the five Bureaus of Buildings and the State Department of Labor. Mr. Brady's exception is simply to the effect that he is not in favor of including the Labor Department, as the State Federation of Labor is on record against it.

Text of the Majority Report.

The majority report says:

We do not mean to suggest that there is overlapping of jurisdiction or conflict of authority with regard to all these departments, but any plan for the simplification of building inspection would be incomplete which did not consider the jurisdiction of all the departments or bureaus above set forth.

The committee has been deeply impressed with the fact that the questions involved are primarily administrative, not legislative, and we have been chiefly influenced in our recommendations by that consideration.

The committee has also been deeply impressed with the difficulties attending the drafting of any piece of legislation prepared hurriedly to adjust the present difficulties, in view of the serious danger that might arise from decreasing the efficiency of city government, increasing the expense of such government, and working possible and unnecessary hardships to property interests.

We are also impressed with the fact that the changes to be made in the jurisdiction of the various branches of the city and State governments should not be made all at one time, for in doing so there is serious danger of confusion and of loss of efficiency. In order to bring about a simplification of the present methods of government relative to inspection of buildings in this city, we recommend the following:

A simple enabling Act either in the form of an amendment to the Charter or a new statute, empowering the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to combine before January 1, 1916, the various bureaus of various boroughs or city departments that have to do with inspection of buildings, regroup them in departments different from ones they are now in, to abolish some, if necessary, to give to the newly combined or newly established bureaus the same powers and responsibilities that now attach to existing bureaus. In a word, to regroup and readjust all existing functions of the city or borough departments with regard to building inspection. The bill should be a very simple one.

Another bill should give the Board of Estimate and Apportionment power to place in control of city departments the functions now exercised by the State Department of Labor in so far as they relate to the construction or alteration of buildings.

The bills should safeguard existing rights and causes of action, and should make it clear beyond any peradventure of doubt that the powers conferred upon the Board of Estimate and Apportionment supersede all powers hitherto conferred upon various city departments and the State Department of Labor in these respects, whether contained in the Charter or in any statute.

Your committee conferred with the New York State Factory Investigating Commission and discussed with them the proposed plan which is outlined here, and requested them, if they saw fit, to recommend the same in their report.

This plan is in line with the principle of home rule and government of the City of New York. The Board of Estimate and Apportionment of the city represents the entire city and all its citizens and taxpayers, and is in close touch not only with the people of the city and their sentiments and desires, but with the administration and working of the various city departments and is in a better position than the Legislature, which must act through a committee and act during a legislative session, to properly devise ways, means and methods to do away with any unnecessary inspection or hardship in the enforcement of the laws referred to.

Respectfully,

MAYOR'S BUILDING INSPECTION COMMITTEE,

Lawrence Veiller, Peter J. Brady, Alfred T. White, William H. Childs, Allan Robinson.

The Minority Report.

The minority report to Mayor Mitchel signed by Robert E. Simon, contained the following:

"As a member of the committee which you appointed to consider and, if possible, reconcile the plans suggested for simplifying inspection of construction and alteration of buildings in this city, it is with great diffidence and sincere regret that I feel constrained to submit for your consideration this minority report.

"It is only my thorough knowledge of the intolerable conditions as they now exist; the fact that it is the unanimous opinion of all familiar with the subject that prompt relief should be granted; the evil consequences of unnecessary delay and the fact that the majority report does not give the information for which you asked, that gives me the courage to dissent from the action of my colleagues on the committee.

"When you asked us to investigate the remedies suggested I was willing to devote the time necessary to get at the facts and weigh the advantages and disadvantages of the plans proposed; to endorse either if the facts warranted, or to make every effort to devise a third plan which would reconcile the two points of view.

"There were two plans: one to create a single department under control of the Mayor, known as the 'Central Plan,' the other to consolidate such part of the functions of existing Bureaus and Departments having to do with construction, into the present Building Departments as now constituted under the jurisdiction of the Borough Presidents, known as the 'Borough Plan.'

"Your committee held two public hearings, one of which against my protest, to have presented cases of over inspection and conflict of laws. The necessities for a change were well known, and such a hearing could only develop a further onslaught on real estate without, in my opinion, aiding the committee in reaching a conclusion. This unfortunately proved to be the fact, as reflected in the newspapers comments the following morning.

"The second hearing for the discussion of the two plans was pertinent. The committee heard arguments in favor of both the Central and Borough Plans, but neither side in my opinion furnished at this hearing sufficient data on which to base a report.

"I handed our chairman a list of questions, seeking to obtain certain vital facts and figures from the various bureau and department heads, and requested that information as to actual conditions and probable effect of either plan if carried out be obtained. The questions were not, so far as I know, sent out; at any rate, no time was given for receiving or investigating replies.

"No consideration was given by the committee to the careful study of this subject made by the State Factory Investigating Commission.

"Only two executive sessions were held after the hearings; each for about one hour.

"I submit, therefore, the following:

"1. Not sufficient study has been given the subject by your committee to submit a report of any value.

"2. Nothing was said at either of the public hearings which justifies the majority report.

"3. It does not give you the information asked for, namely, a plan upon which you might proceed, but leaves the matter just where it was and dodges the issue.

"4. It throws the burden of solution back into the Board of Estimate and raises an issue in that body whose members have already expressed divergent opinions and leaves the likelihood of a solution very remote indeed.

"5. As the persons to whom this question was referred submit no solution, the community which is vitally interested has no assurances of relief, should the Board of Estimate be unable to agree upon a plan.

"6. I agree with the committee that the transfer of jurisdiction should be accomplished gradually; there were, however, absolutely no facts suggested which justify the statement in the majority report that 'the committee has also been deeply impressed with the difficulties attending the drafting of any piece of legislation prepared hurriedly to adjust the present difficulties in view of the serious danger that might arise, etc.' On the contrary, one of your personal advisors, Mr. Hammitt, stated at one of the hearings that a bill was being prepared, which would be ready shortly, providing for the single plan and which would be a complete bill."

THE QUEENS BOROUGH SUBWAY PROBLEM

Explained by the Advisory Council, Which Advises Building a Tunnel to Queens Rather Than Rebuild the Bridge

THE Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests believes that it would be wise for all real associations and property owners to urge upon the Board of Estimate the immediate extension of the elevated service over the Queensboro Bridge, and that simultaneously tunnels should be constructed under the East River for the accommodation of the subway service, instead of providing for such service by a reconstruction of the Queensboro Bridge.

The council thinks this improvement would be of advantage to real estate interests in Queens and prove beneficial to taxpayers in general. To connect the tracks of the Second Avenue Elevated to the bridge, as it now stands, and to construct subways under the river for the new route coming through 59th street, would give almost immediate relief to the congested traffic now going to Queens. The Department of Bridges has recommended that the bridge be remodelled to carry subway tracks for the new route through 59th street. The remodelling, as recommended, consists in dividing the present roadway in halves and using one-half for the carrying of subway tracks. This plan also contemplates putting an additional roadway on an upper deck. This roadway in turn should be divided and one-half used for elevated trains.

The council feels, as the Record and Guide is informed, that it would be a decided disadvantage to interfere with the present roadway on this bridge, which is now well-filled and, owing to the rapid development of the district at the east end of the bridge for manufacturing purposes, this roadway would soon be taxed to its utmost capacity. If it should be cut down to half width, as has been proposed, it will be possible to pass only two vehicles abreast so that each line would have to keep the pace of the slowest vehicle in the entire length, and if one vehicle should break down, it would immediately cause a serious blockade. It has been acknowledged by the city authorities that the proposed alteration to the bridge is only a temporary measure and is advocated simply because it could be done at slightly less expense than it will cost to build subways under the river, but that as soon as the traffic of the Bridge requires it, within a few years, the Bridge would have to be put back in its present condition.

It is estimated that it would cost $3,000,000 to remodel the bridge, according to present plans, while the cost of constructing the tunnels will amount to about $4,500,000. The Degnon Contracting Company has made a proposal to build these tunnels at this latter amount, and has reduced its contract for construction work on the Manhattan side of the bridge for subways by $500,000. Consequently, the difference will not be very great. It has been estimated that it would cost over $5,000,000 to carry out the present plan of the Bridge Department and then remodel the bridge in a few years, to accommodate traffic, when it is found necessary to construct subways.

It would require two and one-half years to make the alterations, whereas the Degnon Contracting Company has proposed to construct tunnels within the same time. The question presented to taxpayers is whether the city should at this time authorize an expenditure of between five and six million dollars for a temporary expedient, or whether at substantially the same cost it should immediately proceed with the work of placing tracks on the bridge for the elevated service and the construction of tunnels for the subway service, and thereby provide for permanent maximum traffic facilities between Manhattan and Queens and, in the case of the tunnels, securing a service capacity in traffic length and headway equal to that on the main trunk lines of the subway.

The Queensboro Bridge has cost to date about $12,500,000, exclusive of land and damages. It was designed as a double-deck bridge capable of carrying four elevated tracks and footwalks on the upper deck, four trolley tracks and vehicular roadway on the lower deck. The bridge has had a lamentable history which has resulted in a condition where the bridge now has a live load capacity of only one-half of that originally provided for in the contract. It is estimated by bridge engineers that the city had lost in the utility of this bridge, as measured by the actual carrying capacity, something between five to ten million dollars, in the total investment on land, foundation, and structure. Rather than commit the city to any further expenditure without compensating advantages, or results commensurate with the expense, the Advisory Council feels, as we are informed, that at this time the real estate interests of the city and of Queens would be greatly benefited by tunnel and bridge improvements which would be permanent and designed to accommodate traffic for many years, as well as to connect Manhattan with the two hundred foot boulevard from the Bridge to Jamaica.

The council further feels that every effort should be made to impress on the Public Service Commission the importance of operating the Steinway tunnels as soon as possible in the interests of the people of the Borough of Queens, and incidentally the real estate owners, for ready access from one part of the city to another tends to prevent the exodus of our population to Jersey and other places outside of our city. However, it reinforces the position taken by the Queensboro Chamber of Commerce to make a tunnel of real benefit it is necessary at as early a date as possible to make an easy connection with the existing Manhattan subways which it is understood is both feasible and has promised by the been practically Public Service Commission.

BUILDING REVIVAL IN SEVERAL BOROUGHS

Filings With Departments Indicate That Owners Are Taking Advantage of Cheap Building Material Prices to Improve Holdings

A MONTH ago the Record and Guide began supporting the nation-wide "Build Now" movement. In previous issues interviews with building material men of national prominence and well-known architects, were published, and they, with one accord, have advocated building at the present time.

With such sponsors to the movement it is not surprising that there has been an improvement in the building situation. Regardless of what scoffers and chronic pessimists may say regarding recent developments in the real estate and building markets, the fact remains that everywhere there is becoming apparent a freer spirit of optimism. This attitude is being reflected in the considerable increase in the plans filed and in the estimated cost of construction in new buildings in Manhattan, the Bronx and Richmond, for last week, as compared with the same week in 1914. A large increase may also be noted along the same lines in the period, from January 1 and February 10, of this year, as compared with the corresponding period of last year. While in Brooklyn and Queens recent filings do not indicate any increase, little anxiety is being felt in those boroughs on account of rapidly progressing subway construction. It is felt that those sections, benefited by the new transportation systems, will shortly experience an unusually large number of building operations.

All things considered, the real estate statistics in the Record and Guide last week showing increases in building plans, may be regarded as significant. The figures bear out the statement that there is an improvement. This viewpoint was substantiated by the Superintendents of Buildings in Manhattan, the Bronx and Richmond, respectively Messrs. Alfred Ludwig, Robert J. Moorehead and William J. McDermott, whose records show that there will be a larger amount of investment in building operations in their respective boroughs.

Manhattan Looking Up.

"During the month of January, 1915," said Alfred Ludwig, Superintendent of Buildings, Manhattan, "plans were filed for twenty-seven buildings at an estimated cost of $7,830,000, as compared with plans for thirty-four buildings, at an estimated cost of $3,511,100 for the month of January, 1914. During last month most of the filings concerned business properties. There were plans filed for ten store and loft buildings to cost $5,375,000 as compared with four similar improvements costing $800,000 for the same month last year. Last month plans were filed for two office buildings to cost about $1,300,000 as against one office building to cost $500,000 planned in January, 1914. From the manner in which the plans have been coming in, the fact has been pointed out that they are being filed in anticipation of the proposed ordinance to regulate the height of buildings. From a careful review of the plans I may say that this may be true only in a minority of cases. In the main these proposed structures could be erected even if a regulatory ordinance were already enacted and in force.

1914 Compared with 1915.

"The record of plans filed for January, 1914, so far as tenement houses are concerned, was better than that of January, 1915. Last year, during January, plans were filed for fifteen structures to cost $2,025,000, as compared with four to cost $480,000 contemplated during January, 1915. This cannot be taken as indicating any tendency, because our records for the first two weeks of this month show that the heaviest filings involve contemplated tenement house improvement. During this period, which includes from February 1 to February 13, plans were filed for nine new tenement houses to cost $1,335,000, as against two loft buildings to cost $425,000, and two office structures to cost $375,000. The total estimated cost of construction that will result from the twenty-one plans filed during the first two weeks in February will approximate $3,343,000, which is almost as much as the estimated cost of all the buildings contemplated for the whole month of January, 1914.

"Decreases in building have been noticed all over the country, and it is encouraging to note that New York City is showing such a marked sign of improvement. Conditions generally appear to be better and since the vast majority of buildings are financed by borrowed capital, the increase in projected buildings as indicated by the larger number of plans filed may be taken as a reflection of easier money conditions."

"In the Bronx," said Robert J. Moorehead, Superintendent of Buildings, "the increase in projected buildings, as indicated by your statistical table is exceeding even our most optimistic expectations. The sections of the borough, which are feeling the building trend, lie principally along the lines of the new subway routes in the eastern, western and northern sections. The operation of these lines will open for development vast new residential territories and the heavy filings of plans show that builders are evidently realizing what an opportunity is at hand. Since the first of the year plans have been filed for sixty-five apartment houses of the better type at an average cost of about $35,000.

"The recent police census of the Bronx reports a population of 723,000. If this estimate is correct and the enormous growth of the Bronx continues, at the same rate it has been maintaining in the last few years, the building of additional housing facilities for the incoming population must continue."

Steady Increase in Richmond.

"I can best explain the Richmond situation," said William J. McDermott, Superintendent of Buildings, "by pointing out that we have been experiencing a steady increase in both buying and building in the borough each year. We have begun to feel that we are immune from what has been called the stringency in the money market which has been given as a principal reason for the decline of new building operations. We are looking forward to even a greater increase than that indicated in your statistical table and recent developments warrant that expression of confidence. I might say that some of the new building operations may be traced to the 'Build Now' movement, because we find that there is a large increase in the number of brick structures contemplated, as compared to contemplated frame construction. It is evident that there are builders who are taking advantage of the current low prices, not only of brick but of other building materials, and are building now.

"There are numerous reasons which may be given in order to explain the advance in Richmond building operations. We built for 1,100 families last year. It was the first time in the history of the department that more than 1,000 plans were filed. This year we hope to receive 1,500 plans and to provide for from 1,800 to 2,000 families."

THE LOCKWOOD BILL GETS REALTY SUPPORT

A Compromise Between the Borough Plan and the City Plan—Five Borough Departments Linked Together By Two Central Boards

THE State Legislature is manifesting unwonted concern for the welfare of New York City taxpayers. Bills of a mandatory nature which would have the effect of adding to the city tax burden if enacted are being carefully scrutinized. Resolutions have been introduced to investigate the city's Department of Finance and kindred departments, the Charity Organization Society, the Palisade Park Commission and certain public service corporations.

The resolution for an inquiry into the Finance Department and the alleged squandering of city funds was introduced by Senator Robert A. Lawson of Brooklyn, with a view to ascertaining what changes are advisable in the interest of taxpayers. In a heated address Senator Wagner charged that millions have been needlessly spent for shore parks, school sites and for the new court house site. A bill that will appreciably reduce the city tax burden is the Mills-Smith measure, which prevents the taxing of real estate owned by New York City in the Catskill watershed at a higher rate than the assesment on adjoining property. The courts have recently decided that the assessments complained of are illegal, but the pending legislation will end all litigation and settle the question finally.

A hearing on the Mills-Flamman bill establishing in this city a Department of Markets in charge of a commission appointed by the Mayor has been set for Wednesday, February 24. All the public markets would come under the control of this department, by the terms of the bill, which has received the approval of the Board of Estimate. It also has the o. k. of the Advisory Counsel of Real Estate Interests. An additional Deputy Police Commissioner (which will make one for each borough) is provided for in a bill introduced by Senator Mills. This will add a sum to the city budget, but the Mitchel administration bill, to abolish the office of Coroner and transfer the duties to a chief medical examiner, will effect a considerable saving. On the score of expense, considerable opposition is gathering before the Cullen bill permitting the city and the railroads to go into partnership for building and operating a marginal railroad and freight terminal system along the Brooklyn water front.

The Smith bill, taking away from the New York City Board of Estimate the right to fix the height of buildings within certain zones and to assign trades to certain districts, will be opposed by the city administration. The Assembly Cities Committee, where the bill now rests, will hear arguments for and against the measure next Wednesday.

The Over-regulation Evil.

The State Labor Department, with its allies, which include the State Federation of Labor and the social uplift committees, is marshaling forces in opposition to the Lockwood bill, which has for its object the consolidation of inspection departments in this city in the hope that the over-regulation of business and domestic affairs, including construction, manufacturing and commerce, may be mitigated. The bill was prepared and introduced at the request of a large number of real estate, building, property and other civic organizations. Although the Lockwood bill in no wise changes the Labor Law, except to put its enforcement into the hands of the city authorities, the State Labor Federation has set itself squarely against any division of authority.

A conference on the subject of the Lockwood bill (Senate Int. No. 424) was held at the rooms of the Real Estate Board on Tuesday afternoon, at which Robert E. Simon presided. Mr. Simon was a member of the Mayor's committee which this week submitted a report on the subject of the consolidation of building inspection departments. The conference was of the opinion that it was advisable and expedient to support and press the Lockwood bill to its final passage, notwithstanding the opposition of the State Labor Department, rather than wait for action by the Board of Estimate, which might not be forthcoming, as the board, in fact, had already by a formal vote, expressed disinclination to undertake this task. The bill was taken up section by section and explained and amended, and a committee was appointed to arrange with the Cities Committee for a hearing on March 3 at Albany.

Copies of the Lockwood bill were received here during the week. Its cardinal principle is to join together all the building inspection systems in any and every borough in one department. That is, one department of building inspection in each borough, to take over the duties of supervision of

(1) "The construction, alteration, plumbing, drainage, removal of building and other structures completed or in course of construction, including the regulation of foundations, etc. (except bridges, docks, tunnels and subways).

(2) "The natural lighting, ventilating, construction, alteration and structural changes in tenement houses, to the extent that jurisdiction is now exercised by the Tenement House Department.

(3) "The installation and approval of gas and electrical equipment, apparatus and appliances in any building or structure, including electrical signs, to the extent that such jurisdiction and control is now exercised by the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity.

(4) "Structural changes in bakeries, confectioneries and food product factories, now supervised by the Health Department.

(5) "The construction of sidewalks, sidewalk elevators, and the granting of vault permits, now in charge of the Borough President's office.

(6) "Structural changes in theatres and other places of amusement, to the extent that the duty of ordering such changes is now exercised by the Board of Licenses.

(7) "The construction, alteration and structural changes in factories, factory buildings and mercantile establishments, the adequacy of exits therefrom, to the extent that jurisdiction thereover is now conferred on the State Labor Department.

(8) "Structural changes in buildings and the means and adequacy of exits, to the extent that control is now exercised by the Fire Prevention Bureau of the Fire Department."

The Board of Standards.

The Board of Standards is created to have power to make rules and regulations subject to the approval of the Board of Examiners. The board will be composed of the five Superintendents of Buildings. They will exercise the authority of the Industrial Board under the Labor Law so far as this city is concerned.

The Board of Examiners is also established, with power to hear appeals and permit variations from law or ordinance rule or regulation.

The Lockwood bill also provides that the height of buildings and structures to be erected may be regulated by ordinance passed by the Board of Aldermen and approved by the Board of Estimate. The Building Bureau in each borough as now established is continued. Laws or ordinances not specifically repealed by this title are continued in force. Thus, it will be perceived that the bill does not affect anything but the construction, alteration and structural changes in buildings; the maintenance or housekeeping laws and ordinances are to be enforced by the departments now in charge.

The following bills affecting real estate have been introduced:

Assembly Bills.

A. Int. No. 682. (Evans.) Amending the Laws of 1906 (Chapter 125), by providing for 80-cent gas in that part of the borough of the Bronx formerly contained in the town of Westchester outside of the villages of Wakefield and Williamsbridge.

A. 736. (Kincaid.) Inserting in the General City Law a new article (5-a, including sections 85, 86 and 87), providing that all streets in cities of the first and second class shall be divided into safety and danger zones. The pedestrian is presumed to be at fault if the accident occurs within a danger zone.

A. 750. (Stoddard.) Amending the Tax Law (Section 197), by making the lien of an unpaid corporation tax subject to all prior encumbrances on the corporate property. It is also provided that every unpaid transfer tax shall be a lien upon the property transferred until paid, subject to all prior encumbrances.

A. 753. (Jezewski.) Amending the Lien Law (Section 3), by making it the duty of the contractor before receiving any payments under his contract for the erection of a building on real property, to furnish the owner of the property with a written statement, under oath, of the names of all parties furnishing materials and labor, and of the amounts due or to become due to each. Merchants and dealers in materials are not required to make the above statement. All persons furnishing materials, apparatus, machinery or fixtures, or performing services for the contractor, are designated as sub-contractors, and are entitled to a lien on the property. There are other provisions.

Eye Glasses for School Children.

A. 764. (Scharlin.) Inserting in the Greater New York Charter a new section (1083-a), requiring the Board of Education to furnish, without charge, eye glasses or spectacles to any pupil of a public school who shall require them.

A. 698. (Thorn.) Authorizing the city of New York to change the terms of any city contract for public work, entered into prior to January 1, 1914, where the cost to the contractor of carrying out the contract was increased by premiums for workmen's compensation.

Senate Bills.

S. Int. No. 526. (Dunnigan.) Amending the Greater New York Charter (Section 226), by permitting the president of the Board of Aldermen, in the absence of the Mayor, to preside at meetings of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. The provision requiring the preparation of an annual budget for the city and for the counties of the city is made applicable to Bronx county. To Cities Committee.

S. 572. (Wagner.) Amending the Labor Law generally, and amending the Education Law, the General Corporations Law, and the Partnership Law, by transferring thereto certain sections of the Labor Law; amending the Penal Law in relation to penalties for violations of the Labor Law; and enacting a new chapter of the Consolidated Laws to be known as the "Employers' Liability Law."

CITY CHURCHES VALUED AT $188,921,725

When Taken Together With Other Exempt Realty, Total Reaches $1,873,895,243—Table Shows Holdings Worth More Than $500,000

HOLDINGS of churches and other religious institutions of New York City, exempt from taxation, are valued, tentatively, by the Department of Taxes and Assessments at $188,921,725. Although these classes of real estate ownership are not subject to taxation, the City has placed a value on their holdings for record purposes. In the last report of the Tax Department, exempt properties were held at $1,873,895,243. These include properties of the United States Government, $66,331,900; State of New York, $3,298,025; City of New York, $1,423,034,740, and of other owners, corporations, associations, etc., exempted by subdivisions 5, 7, 9, 10, 11, section four of the Tax Law, and in a few cases by special laws. In this group are included religious and educational institutions, asylums, hospitals, and the various public welfare and charitable organizations, the property of which is tentatively valued at $381,230,578. This includes the $188,921,725 mentioned above.

Since the total assessed valuation of taxable real estate in New York City is placed at $8,049,859,912, and since there is $1,873,895,243 worth of exempt properties, it will be seen that all the real estate of Greater New York of every description is valued at $9,923,755,155. These figures also show that about 18.8 per cent, or nearly one-fifth, of local realty is exempt from taxation.

As the accompanying table on this page indicates, there are forty churches of various denominations in Manhattan which are each tentatively valued at $500,000 or more. The total estimated value of the forty churches is $73,731,000, by itself constituting about 3.9 per cent. of all exempted property and more than 49 per cent. of all exempted property not under government ownership. Of the forty churches, eight are valued above $2,000,000; four between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000; four between $1,500,000 and $1,000,000; six between $1,000,000 and $750,000 and seventeen between $750,000 and $500,000.

Trinity Church and cemetery heads the list. The plot, 391.5 feet by 227.8 feet by irregular, is tentatively valued at $17,500,000; the church building at $200,000, for a total valuation, improved and unimproved, of $17,700,000. St. Patrick's Cathedral, occupying the entire block bounded by Fifth avenue, East 50th street, Madison avenue and East 51st street, ranks second, with an improved valuation of $8,050,000. No estimate of the value of the unimproved property is available from the records of the Tax Department.

St. Paul's Church and cemetery, at Broadway and Vesey street, on a plot 166.9 by 367.4 by irregular, is valued at $5,775,000, and with the structure thereon at $5,825,000. The Cathedral of St. John the Divine, now in course of construction on Morningside Heights, is valued at $5,050,000 in its present state. The land, which measures 715.6 feet by 782.1 by irregular, is, in the opinion of the Tax Department, worth $3,800,000.

The table will show that Fifth avenue churches are among the most valuable. There are eight, between 43rd street and 76th street, which are ranked above $1,000,000. One at 45th street is valued at $885,000; another at 11th street, $750,000, and a third at 29th street, $590,000. The property of St. Bartholomew's P. E. Church, at the southeast corner of Madison avenue and 44th street, is understood to be in the market for sale, if it has not already been sold, because the trustees bought last April the block front on the east side of Park avenue between East 50th to East 51st streets, from the F. & M. Schaefer Brewing Company. A new church will replace the present old structures, and the estimated cost, including the site, will be about $2,000,000. The plot is assessed at $500,000 and has a frontage of 200 feet on Park avenue.

The property of the Madison avenue Reformed Church at the northeast corner of Madison avenue and 57th street, on a plot 75 feet on Madison avenue, by 150 on 57th street, has also been placed on the market. The trustees voted, several weeks ago, to dispose of it on account of the diminished church activities, owing to deaths or removals of a great many of the congregation.

The Collegiate Reformed Dutch Church, at Fifth avenue and 48th street, the first ecclesiastical organization in New York City, is valued by the department at $1,615,000. It received a royal charter from King William III in 1696, and held its first services in a mill in what is now South William street.

South William Street.

"A melancholy street of monotonous warehouses," is how J. H. Innes described the present South William street in an article appearing some years ago in "Federation." Yet on this melancholy street was located the first house of worship in New York City. The street was in early Colonial days part of a lane leading from the fort and the cluster of houses in its vicinity to the eastern part of the common pasture where the cattle of the colonists were first kept.

It was on the north side of this lane, writes Mr. Innes, and upon the site now occupied by the structure at 32 to 34 South William street, with an "L" to Broad street, that the Bark Mill was erected in 1626. The building was designed for the grinding of bark for tanning purposes and the upper floor was so commodious that it was utilized as a place of worship by a large congregation. Pending the arrival of a pastor from Holland, the first religious services were regularly held, as there is every reason to believe, by two inferior ministerial officers.

In the spring of 1628 the first minister for the New Netherlands arrived in the person of the Rev. Jonas Jansen Michaelis. In 1633 with the advent of Director Van Twiller and Dominie Bogardus, a new church was built upon the East River shore and the Bark Mill ceased to be used for purposes of religious worship and confined itself to grinding bark. As time went on, the swamps in the immediate neighborhood were drained and there was an era of building activity which resulted in the improvement of a number of plots which had been granted to officials of the Dutch West Indies Company. Changes were wrought in the vicinity of the Bark Mill by the formal survey and mapping of the town and by the incidental work in this connection, in the year 1656.

On the site of the present building 20 and 22 South William street the first Jewish synagogue was established in 1700. According to the Real Estate Directory this property is now owned by the heirs of Alexander Brown.

The Bark Mill property remained under the control of the deacons of the Dutch church until January, 1663, when it was sold to a wealthy merchant. After that the property changed hands frequently until shortly before the Revolution, when it belonged to William Butler, whose family controlled it until 1831. In that year it passed into the hands of Harman Hendricks, and the property has remained in the ownership of this family up to the present time.

City's Realty $1,447,547,869.

Comptroller Prendergast, in his recent report to the Commissioner of the Sinking Fund, as published in the City Record, placed the assessed valuation of the city's real estate at $1,447,547,869, of which $1,429,491,360 represents realty within the city limits. Therefore the City of New York is the wealthiest land owner within the Greater City. The report show that land for park purposes aggregates $600,000,000.

If vocational training can really keep our boys from falling into "blind-alley" occupations, isn't it worth the price?

If statute law, city charters and ordinances and departmental regulations were rightly divided and untangled from each other, the great evil of over-legislation and its corollary, over-regulation, would not exist. The coming Constitutional Convention will have the power to root out this evil, if it will.

Mayor Mitchel and President McAneny are opposed to amending the City Charter by means of isolated bills. They hold that all such matters should be deferred and acted on in a general charter revision. Is the city likely to have any better luck in trying to revise the Charter in one act than it had during the long and fruitless struggle to revise the Building Code?

The Lockwood bill, to simplify building inspection, makes no exception for any department, be it either a State or municipal function which is exercised—all must come into the new organization, over which a central board of standards and a central board of examiners will preside. The Lockwood bill takes it out of the power of young lady inspectors from the State Factory Bureau to attempt to direct architectural and construction matters beyond their comprehension.

Drafting bills for introduction in the Legislature has become a considerable industry in this city. Several concerns make a specialty of it. Anyone on the payment of a fee can have a bill prepared in legal form, and without much difficulty he can find some Senator or Assemblyman willing to introduce it. In consequence, the dockets of the two houses are loaded with all manner of bills, mostly local, personal or trivial, upon which the legislators of a great State should not be asked to waste their time.

The Consequences of Reckless Capital Expenditures.

It looks at the present writing as if the proposed investigation of the finances of New York City by a committee of the Legislature would be abandoned. The Governor seems to be opposed to it and the Legislature cannot make up its mind whether it would be advantageous or not to the Republican party in the State to ventilate the financial condition of the city. From the point of view of the New York taxpayers such a public inquiry would be very useful. In all probability it would not bring to light any facts not already known, but its value as a means of publicity would be enormous. New York suffers tremendously from sheer ignorance on the part of the public in relation to the most essential facts concerning its finances and policy. Until recently this ignorance and the indifference associated with it was shown by the great majority of taxpayers. They allowed the financial mismanagement of the city to continue for many years without protest. In a sense they were themselves accomplices to the mismanagement because they were constantly pressing costly local improvements on the government and were often willing to subordinate the welfare of the whole city to the interest of their own locality. Of late years the unbearable increase in the burden of taxation has aroused them to the dangers of a continuation of reckless capital expenditure, and they have been showing an increasingly broad and intelligent interest in the financial policy of the city. But their interest has not been communicated to the vast majority of non-taxpaying voters. The latter wholly fail to realize the serious financial problems which have been created by past extravagance. They do not understand the need, which this extravagance has created, of tapping additional sources of taxation. A thoroughgoing inquiry into the financial condition of the city would have the advantage of bringing a good many disagreeable faults home to the voters of New York.

Such an investigation, despite its publicity value, would however possess two undesirable aspects. It would, in the first place, look like an attempt on the part of the Legislature to fasten responsibility for extravagance upon the local government, and it might result in undesirable legislation seeking to tie the hands of the responsible municipal officials. Now it is undoubtedly the case that the local government has not used very well the discretionary powers granted to it under the Charter; but the fact that it has made mistakes cannot be considered any sufficient reason for an increase of State control. On the contrary the only chance of ever obtaining an economical and efficient administration of New York City is by means of a relaxation of the restrictions now imposed by the State on the freedom of local action. At present whenever a local administration is criticised because of extravagance it always denies responsibility by insisting that the larger part of the city's expenditure is dictated by the Legislature. Thus, Albany blames New York, and New York blames Albany. Such will be the case as long as the existing system of divided responsibilities is continued. The duty of economical financial administration cannot be redeemed unless it is concentrated in one group of officials. Manifestly, it cannot be concentrated in Albany. If it is to be concentrated at all, the city administration must be made the only and the adequate instrument of economical finance. In any event it would be too absurd for a State Legislature of the most notoriously wasteful and extravagant State in the Union to talk about imposing economy on New York City. A committee of the Legislature might well know enough from their own experience to make an effective exposure of extravagance, but as any kind of positive economists they would be merely absurd.

Another objectionable aspect of a public investigation would be the implied criticism of Mayor Mitchel and the present Board of Estimate. Just because the Mayor and his subordinates would have to take the stand and testify about the financial condition of the city, it would look as if the administration were responsible for the ugly aspects of the testimony. Every well-informed person would know that they have tried loyally and intelligently to keep expenses down, and that, as a matter of fact, in spite of the adoption of more sound, but more costly, methods of meeting the city's obligations, they have, at least, checked the increase in the city budget. Many taxpayers are critical, because the Mayor and the Board of Estimate have refused to economize on the social work already being undertaken by the city government. But they should remember that the administration was elected on a platform which emphasized the desirability of just such expenditures. The administration is pledged to continue the protection and help which the city is now extending to its poorer population, and no humane person would like to have such help and protection diminished at a time when the poor are so much in need of assistance.

Dubious Charter Amendments.

Two very objectionable amendments to the Charter have recently been proposed at Albany. One of them changes the Mayor's power of appointment by making his selections subject to confirmation by the Board of Estimate. Such an amendment would impair the executive responsibility of the Mayor and would make it necessary for him to consult the Board of Estimate in reference to his administrative subordinates. It would be a step backward and would result in increasing, rather than diminishing, the danger of merely political selections. It may be admitted that the existing relationship between the Board of Estimate and the Mayor is unsatisfactory, but its improvement should be left to the committee which is now at work preparing a plan of Charter revision. In any event, the proposed change would not be an improvement. The power of confirmation exercised so frequently by the upper houses of American legislatures has always enabled the confirming power to insist upon subordinating administrative officials to the exigencies of party politics. The change now suggested would have precisely this effect, and no other.

The other dubious Charter amendment takes away from the Board of Estimate its existing power of regulating the height of buildings in New York City. Apparently this bill must have been introduced by some disgruntled property owners, who object to the very moderate plan of regulation now under consideration. If such is actually the case, it will exhibit at its worst the disposition which certain New York taxpayers have always shown to appeal to the State Legislature whenever they are dissatisfied with the city administration. New Yorkers have always loudly protested because the State Constitution and Legislature do not grant to the city a full measure of home rule, but when they have any axe to grind themselves they never hesitate to appeal to the State Legislature for help. In this particular case there is no excuse for any interference by the Legislature. The representatives of the voters of New York are the only proper officials to pass upon such a purely local question as the height of buildings; and among those representatives the Board of Estimate, rather than the Board of Aldermen, is obviously much better prepared to devise building regulations in the interest of the whole city. The Board of Aldermen has failed in many respects, but in none has it failed more flagrantly than in its attempts to regulate the building industry.

—President Kinnan of the Union Dime Savings Bank, says the principal factor which has discouraged real estate investment has been the high assessment of real estate for the purpose of taxation.

Making the Issue Clear.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

It is to be feared that the various methods taken to investigate the proper way to consolidate the various departments having jurisdiction over the construction and alteration of buildings have tended rather to befog the issue than clear it.

The real estate and allied interests have had but one platform to stand on, that the City of New York had building departments able to take care of this matter, and that six or seven other city departments and a State Department of Labor interfering and conflicting simply added to the cost of the work and practically confiscated real estate.

The State Factory Investigating Commission presented a tentative plan to cover this matter, but proposed changing the present borough management of the Building Department to a central head under the Mayor. While this might be an ideal way, yet it seemed too arbitrary a change from our present method of city government and aroused great opposition from the start.

The Mayor also appointed a committee to suggest a plan of consolidation, the majority report of which seems to suggest giving power to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to mix or unmix the various conflicting departments by next January, but giving no definite plan.

The Conference Committee of the Real Estate and Allied Organizations called to consider this consolidation idea and representing scores of organizations in all the Boroughs kept on, however, steadily working, and has finally had presented to the Legislature a bill to transfer to the Building Departments of each borough all the various existing provisions, rules and laws of every department or bureau of the city, and also the State Labor Departments relating strictly and only to the construction and alteration of buildings.

This bill is known and should be kept clearly in mind as Senate Introductory No. 424, and Assembly Introductory No. 612, and should be carefully followed and supported. Every one interested should write to or if possible see his Assemblyman and Senator and urge his support. Nothing should be allowed to interfere with the passage and signing of these bills.

ALFRED R. KIRKUS.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

In your edition of February 6, I outlined a program for real estate interests, including suggestions for legislation at Albany. I now advise the adoption or revival of the town meeting in Greater New York. I have asked the Borough President to grant the use of the Aldermanic Chamber in the City Hall for a freeholders' meeting, where the men who support the city government and suffer severely from the burden of over-taxation and over-regulation of buildings may meet and "petition the government for the redress of their grievances."

Such meetings have heretofore been held in the Real Estate Salesrooms on Vesey street, but the proper place for freeholders to assemble is in the building which they practically own and keep in order. All classes of citizens will be welcome, but each speaker must give his name and address and the location of the property he owns, and paternalists, socialists, rent-reducers, building-preventers, single-taxpayers, and Nihilists must take back seats.

The taxpayers should meet at least monthly—better weekly—during the session of the Legislature.

How many indirect and direct taxpayers know that Chapter 1, of the Laws of 1915, increases the salaries of the Judges of the Court of Claims, and that the bill was jammed through by two emergency messages from our new and worthy Governor?

How long will both classes of taxpayers stand the increase of salaries and the waste of public funds in these days of depression, with 600,000 idle persons walking the streets of New York and lengthening the bread lines daily on the Bowery, City Hall Park and elsewhere?

I often ask myself the question, Will the large estates ever learn which side of their bread is buttered and how many white "niggers" have we among the direct taxpayers of Manhattan? The people of the Bronx and Queens are not so bad, but it is very hard to find a property owner in Manhattan who will stand up for his rights or even attend a meeting of freeholders to state their grievances.

Now is the time to reorganize or revive the taxpayers' Congress, to prepare for the municipal campaign of 1918, for this administration is very disappointing and if a cast-iron freeholder becomes President of this Congress, the politicians can't use him and they must get up very early and work very late to control it, even in a majority of the wards.

I suggest that a congress be organized by wards and not Assembly districts, because a purely political division suggests politics and is almost a hint to the workers and "heelers" to get on the band wagon.

The Street Widening Orders.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

It is not alone the annual tax levy, excessive as everyone believes that to be, that makes the taxpayer's burden unbearable and discourages building, for there is added to this the many orders of the different departments, which entail expense and usually curtail rental availability.

If Mayor Mitchel would take a firm stand against these arbitrary and unjust orders, he could afford immediate relief to the stagnation in building and give work to the thousands who depend on the building industry for a living, for it is work and not charity that the working people of this city demand. Take, for instance, the orders to owners along certain arbitrarily selected streets to remove at their own expense stoops and areas placed there, not on their own initiative, but pursuant to corporation ordinances sanctioned by the courts and by centuries of usage, and under the signed permits of the city's duly constituted officers.

"Every time one of these orders is issued the property owner is subjected to an expense running from hundreds into thousands of dollars. It has been said that the expense forced on property owners under President McAneny aggregated five millions of dollars. Countless troubles, in addition to the heavy cost, follow these orders. Law suits ensue between landlord and tenant. Newsdealers, bootblacks and fruit stands are put out of business. The light and ventilation of buildings is diminished, and awkward and unsafe entrances are among the results, and all at the whim of the Borough Presidents.

"In the three centuries of New York's existence, none of its officials ever before thus took the law into their own hands, and the same laws and ordinances have been in force, practically since the Montgomerie charter, including the present City Charter, Section 50, of which specifically authorizes projecting stoops. At every hearing that I have attended the sentiment has been overwhelmingly against these orders, which have immediately thereafter been adopted, showing a disregard of public opinion that would have raised a howl under Tammany Hall.

The latest of these orders is to be issued by Borough President Marks, as he says, and will affect Lexington avenue from 41st to 61st street. I walked the mile of this avenue Tuesday afternoon and found not the remotest evidence of sidewalk congestion. For most of the distance the houses are three and four-story high-stoop residences, the hardest kind to remodel, because the first story is too high and the basement too low for a satisfactory entrance level with the street.

Every time one of these confiscatory orders is issued, it discourages building to just that extent; for people will not invest their money in buildings when, if they comply strictly with existing laws, they can be compelled to remodel them without there having been any change in the law, and solely to suit the hobby of a temporary official.

The theory of the City Charter is that street improvements should originate with the local boards having jurisdiction. As the Aldermen composing these are closer to the people than the Board of Estimate, they are less likely to defy public opinion.

I believe that the citizens and taxpayers of New York City should combine and ask relief from the Legislature through an enactment to the effect that when buildings have been erected in conformity with existing ordinances a condition precedent to their revocation should be a petition signed by taxpayers or their authorized agents representing 51% of the frontage of the street affected, and upon the initiative and by resolution of the local board having jurisdiction.

ALBERT E. DAVIS,
(Pres. Bronx Chamber of Commerce.)

Long-Term Mortgages Advocated.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

Twenty years ago the calling in of a first mortgage was a rarity. A first mortgage was considered a life investment, and there was no question as to its integrity or reliability. About a year ago first mortgages began to be called in on a great many properties, and a new danger, namely, the uncertainty of renewals, began to threaten property owners. There is no doubt that should this condition persist, a great many equities would be wiped out, and no class of owner, rich or poor, would be spared.

A remedy is in the creation of a State Bank, for the purpose of making long-term amortization loans, to be gradually reduced by yearly payments on the principal, until the entire debt is discharged. In conjunction with Harold N. Phillips, counsel of the Greater New York Taxpayers' Association, I looked up the Banking Law of 1908 and found that it placed certain limitations on real estate loans by banking institutions. Since this law went into effect the downward tendency in the value and marketability of real estate seems to have begun, and the results have become more manifest.

No business can thrive in the face of restriction, and real estate is no exception to the general rule. The field in general business lines is unlimited, so far as income is concerned, but in real estate it is more or less limited. A house that returns $10,000 a year to its owner cannot very well bring more, but the income has considerable stability. Why there should be a doubt as to the safety of a first mortgage on a well maintained house, with an assured earning capacity, or why such an investment should be considered hazardous, is more than I can understand.

The new trouble to be met and one which is rapidly reaching an acute stage is this question of the calling in of mortgages and the difficulty in obtaining renewals. The problem can, in my opinion, best be solved by a State institution that will issue long-term mortgages. The benefits to both principals are undoubted. The owner is relieved of the anxiety and heavy expense attendant upon each renewal of his mortgage. The lending institution has its money conservatively invested in a reliable product which practically guarantees an assured return on its money for many years.

BERNARD GOODMAN,
President Greater N. Y. Taxpayers Association.

—Notwithstanding the protestations of those who profit by the extension of the civil service, hard-headed business men still believe that the City of New York tries to do too much in the way of educating, doctoring, nursing and coddling transients, undesirable immigrants and other human debris that either drifts in here or is induced to journey hither by transatlantic transportation lines. When the house is full it is time to shut the door, even if New York City has been made a sort of international lodging house.

HEIGHT OF BUILDINGS.

An Important Conference Upon New Objections to Pending Ordinance.

Real estate owners in the downtown district of New York are giving particular attention at this time to the details of the proposed plan to limit the height of buildings. This measure is now before the Board of Aldermen and is known as Ordinance No. 1072.

The Real Estate Board of New York is on record before the Board of Estimate as having favored in its broader aspects the plan for limiting building heights. It took this position last year and again recently before the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, its representations being made through Joel S. DeSelding, chairman of the Real Estate Board's Special Committee on Limiting the Heights of Buildings. Its objections are now directed to certain details of the plan which apparently were not considered by the Board of Estimate's Advisory Committee.

In response to objections from its own members, as well as others, the Real Estate Board this week took up this phase of the matter with representatives of the Board of Estimate's Advisory Committee at a luncheon held at the Whitehall Building, on Monday last. At this conference there were present, representing the Board of Estimate's committee, George B. Ford, consulting engineer to the committee; Robert H. Whitten, secretary; Messrs. Joel S. DeSelding, Charles F. Noyes, Richard O. Chittick, representing the Real Estate Board; Cyrus C. Miller and Birch Helms, representing the Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests; Stewart Browne, representing the United Real Estate Owners' Association; Robert Anderson Pope, engineer; A. J. S. Holton, of Clinton & Russell, architects.

The point which the committee desired to impress upon Mr. Ford and his associates was that the application of the ordinance in its present form to the downtown section would so disturb values below Chambers street as to work very serious injustice to owners of property in that district. The committee proceeded on the assumption that in drawing the ordinance these details had not been given sufficient consideration, and they explained to Mr. Ford that to let these provisions stand in the ordinance would mean to invite the opposition of every property owner downtown.

The section of the ordinance to which the criticisms of the committee were directed is that which provides that buildings on certain narrow streets as for instance Wall street should be limited to a height of 100 feet or, in other words, to a height of eight stories, exclusive of the setback. The committee pointed out that the inevitable result of this would be a depreciation in values which it could hardly be believed the Board of Estimate had in mind when it inserted this provision. It was also pointed out that this shrinkage in value would necessarily be reflected in a corresponding reduction in taxable values. It is believed that these representations will be given serious consideration by the Board of Estimate's committee. In the meantime, a number of objections have been referred by the Real Estate Board's committee to President McAneny of the Board of Aldermen.

Bronx Filings.

Register Polak, of Bronx County, reports that for the month of January, 3,733 papers were filed and recorded, an increase of 659 instruments over the corresponding month in 1914. The fees collected in the General Administration Department totaled $3,920.25, which exceeds by more than $500 the amount shown the previous January. The Mortgage Tax Department receipts amounted to $8,433.02, making the total receipts $12,353.27. The value of the mortgage tax indebtedness was $1,709,771.05, while the consideration of conveyances up to February 4, footed up $798,805 and mortgage extensions $1,513,025.

For the convenience of the public, Register Polak has created a complaint department, where all disputed matters relating to the recording and filing of instruments are adjusted. The new department facilitates the handling of all technical papers, and has proven of inestimable value in the saving of time and expense to those having business with the Register's Office.

OPPOSED TO TAX BILL.

New York State Realty Interests Ask For Amendments.

M. Morgenthau, Jr., president of the Real Estate Association of the State of New York, in an address delivered before the Association of Deputy Tax Commissioners of New York city at the Astor Hotel on Monday night, explained the attitude of the real estate men throughout the State on the tax legislation which is pending at Albany:

"The Advisory Real Estate Council representing the leading New York city real estate organizations, and the Real Estate Association of the State of New York, representing organizations of real estate men throughout New York State, have combined to oppose the passage of the tax bill as now proposed.

"An examination of the bill revealed the fact that it is so drawn as to be inapplicable or of doubtful application as far as New York city is concerned. In the matter of reassessment, no provision is made for the practical working of the law such as is provided in the case of equalization. Why this omission? Reassessment is limited to the time between the application of the assessment rule and November 1 following. Under these circumstances, how can a reassessment within the city of New York take place? When we come to equalization, it has been very carefully provided that the commission shall only have power to review the equalization by a Board of Supervisors, of which New York City has none. The real estate men of the State of New York are thoroughly aroused to the need of a tax reform. They have no interest in political parties, but are concerned with a fair and just tax law and its proper administration. They will support any party which proposes such legislation."

The Syracuse Meeting.

President Morgenthau attended a meeting of the executive committee of the State Association at Syracuse on Tuesday night, and delivered an address at the annual dinner of the Syracuse Real Estate Dealers' Association. President Woodworth of the Rochester Association also spoke on the occasion.

Giles H. Stilwell, corporation counsel, delivered a speech of welcome on behalf of the city and other addresses were by Earl Clark, of Utica, W. J. Russell, of Ogdensburg, Charles F. Warner, of Buffalo, Ten Eyck T. Mosher, of Albany, H. L. Reed, of Amsterdam, S. T. Betts, of Syracuse, and Lachlan Macleay, secretary of the Syracuse Chamber of Commerce.

At the meeting of the Executive Committee of the State association Tuesday afternoon it was voted to oppose the proposed tax bill, and a telegram was sent to Albany, asking the Governor for a special hearing at which the real estate association might present arguments against the measure.

$2,000,000 SUIT SETTLED.

Cambridge Building at Fifth Avenue and 33d Street in Litigation for Twenty-four Years.

Following a long and protracted fight in the courts, which extended over a period of upwards of twenty years, a decision has been handed down affecting the old Cambridge Hotel property, at the southwest corner of Fifth avenue and 33d street, the fee of which is owned by the Astor family. It is estimated that the total amount involved was upwards of $2,000,000.

Lorenz Reich, many years ago, leased the property from the Astors, for five years, at $25,000 a year, one of the stipulations being that he could erect a hotel building, not to cost less than $500,000. If he did build the structure, then he was to have the privilege of a fifteen-year extension. It was also understood that during the succeeding twenty years he could turn back the lease for $100,000, to be paid by the Astors, or obtain another renewal, figured upon a five per cent. basis.

Mr. Reich lacked about $130,000 of the $500,000 necessary to carry on the improvement, and he obtained this amount from William F. Cochran, carpet manufacturer, of Yonkers. It was understood that Mr. Reich was to pay back $275,000, for the $130,000 borrowed, and, as security, he had to turn over to Mr. Cochran the lease on the property. Mr. Cochran sub-leased the property back to Mr. Reich, and as one of the considerations obtained a five-year lease of an apartment in the Cambridge, the charge for which would have been $5,000 a year.

Differences arose, and Mr. Reich sued to have the sub-lease, which was really a mortgage canceled, on an allegation of usury. He refused to make further payments, until dispossess proceedings were started.

Many complications ensued and suits and counter-suits were instituted, appeals won and lost, until in 1896, while the finish was still far distant, Mr. Cochran took advantage of a clause in the lease and sold out for $100,000 to the Astors, the hotel having been turned, in the meanwhile, into an office building. Mr. Reich figured that Mr. Cochran made a yearly profit of about $115,000 out of the hotel, and adding the $100,000 received from the Astors, together with compound interest, totaled about $500,000. Suit was brought to recover this amount.

Judge Miller, of the Court of Appeals, who handed down the verdict this week in favor of Mr. Reich, stated that the lease and sub-lease of the property must be considered as a mortgage, that they must be satisfied and that the executor of the Cochran estate, Mr. Cochran having died in 1901, must account to the plaintiff for all the profits enjoyed by the late Mr. Cochran. This the lawyers compute as being about $2,000,000.

Title Company for New Jersey.

The State Service & Title Company has been recently organized for the purpose of examining titles to lands throughout the State of New Jersey, and particularly in Mercer and Ocean Counties; also for furnishing abstracts of corporation records, legislative proceedings and judicial proceedings in both the State and Federal Courts. The company will also prepare abstracts of title, searches, etc., in connection with its examination of the records. Insurance of titles will be effected if desired.

If government by political parties, or even by a fusion of the best elements in all parties, is to continue hopelessly extravagant, not to say ruinous, to local interests, then let us try some other kind of government, at least one whose principal object will not be simply to make or perpetuate jobs for partisans.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

When compared with last week, which was a short one, the business shows considerable improvement. The greater number of small deals, particularly in the Bronx, involving no large expenditures, are the best indications of an apparent change in sentiment towards real estate for investment purposes. The return of the small investor, slowly but surely, to well located improved real property, is all that is lacking in the opinion of many to the restoration of a good market.

Nothing has injured it more than the persistent gossip in real estate circles and elsewhere that real estate is losing its hold on investors, and that they are turning to other fields of income. It does not take long for an idea once inculcated, especially in a conservative mind, to grow until it becomes a conviction, and the talk of real estate men and others who see only the dark side, has not helped to better conditions.

From many parts of the country came reports of increased commercial and industrial activity, and while conditions in this city may on the surface appear unchanged, it is evident that matters are shaping themselves toward satisfactory adjustment. In the real estate and building trades, which are usually the last to feel the benefits of a business revival, this new trend is already manifesting itself in a larger number of projected building operations. The return of the small buyer to the field, as indicated by the broadening tendencies of this week's trading, may be taken as a sign of renewed interest in real estate as an investment, for people of small capital who are not seeking fabulous returns, but rather prefer an assured income from a reliable source.

The total number of sales reported and not recorded in Manhattan this week was 30, as against 17 last week and 23 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 9, as compared with 7 last week and 7 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 21, as compared with 10 last week and 16 a year ago.

The total number of conveyances in Manhattan was 133, as against 110 last week, 24 having stated considerations totaling $1,123,800. Mortgages recorded this week number 61, involving $2,050,654, as against 79 last week, totalling $1,512,721.

From the Bronx 33 sales at private contract were recorded, as against 11 last week and 16 a year ago.

The amount involved in Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $1,461,995 compared with $142,473 last week, making a total for the year of $6,192,007. The figures for the corresponding week last year were $547,169 and the total from Jan. 1, 1914, to Feb. 21, 1914, was $6,785,763.

East Side-West Side Exchange.

William B. May & Company have sold for the Rexton Realty Company, the five-story apartment house at the southeast corner of Park avenue and 82d street, on plot 25.2x100 ft., to Edward M. James. The property immediately adjoins the new twelve-story apartment house recently erected by Bing & Bing at 953 to 955 Park avenue. The seller took in part payment the plot 126.1x91.7 on the west side of Broadway, 302.3 feet north of 122d street. The broker reports that this plot will be immediately improved.

Improvement for Heights.

Joseph Reiss has purchased the block front on the east side of Haven avenue between 178th and 179th streets, with a frontage of 185 feet and a depth of 147, which will be improved with five five-story apartment houses. The plot was recently sold by W. B. Sommerville to Meyer Solomon, who has since died, and Mr. Reiss has acquired it from the estate. The brokers in the deal were John R. and Oscar L. Foley and Harry Aronson.

REAL ESTATE APPRAISALS.

The following values were placed on real estate properties this week by the State appraisers in transfer tax proceedings, affecting Manhattan holdings. The amount specified does not in every case indicate the equity or interest of the decedent. It merely quotes the estimated market value of the realty, regardless of mortgages or other liens:

RACHEL EDELMUTH.—122 Charlton st, block 596, lot 70, 3-sty dwelling, 19x51.10, $6,700; 124 Charlton st, block 596, lot 69, 3-sty dwelling, 19x51.10, $6,700; 329 West 4th st, block 615, lot 39, 3-sty building, 22x55, $8,500; and 1621 2d av, block 1530, lot 22, 4-sty building, 25x81.8, $20,000.

MARY GEIGER.—37-37½ Jackson st, block 261, lot 34, 5-sty tenement, 31.4x99.11xirreg, $21,500.

MARY HALLAHAN.—342 East 118th st, block 1689, lot 33, 3-sty dwelling, 25x100.11, undivided one-half interest, $5,000.

COLUMBUS SCHWARZ.—10 West 133d st, block 1740, lot 43, 5-sty tenement, 25x99.11, $17,000, and 403 East 87th st, block 1567, lot 4½, 4-sty tenement, 26x100.8½, $14,000.

OBITUARY

CLARENCE L. FABRE, insurance broker and member of the firm of Clarence L. Fabre & Co., 95 William st, Manhattan, died on Tuesday, aged forty-six, at his home, 32 Pierrepont st, Brooklyn.

LAMBERT SUYDAM QUACKENBUSH, for forty years a leading real estate lawyer, died on Wednesday, at his home, 3 East 94th st, aged seventy-two.

REAL ESTATE NOTES.

PEASE & ELLIMAN have been appointed agents for the 12-sty apartment house, 960 Park av.

DUFF & BROWN CO. have obtained for Martin Wallace a mortgage of $24,000 at 5% for 5 years on 1710 Amsterdam av.

NEHRING CO. has been appointed agent for the two recently completed apartment houses 101 Audubon av and 515 West 170th st.

LEON S. ALTMAYER has negotiated a 1st mortgage of $11,000 at 5 per cent. on the 4-sty building 19 1st av; also $4,500 at 5 per cent. on the dwelling, 184 East 93d st.

PEASE & ELLIMAN have been appointed by H. Koopman & Son agents for their 5-sty building at 16 East 46th st, opposite the Ritz-Carlton Hotel.

ACHILLES R. SCHARSMITH & CO. negotiated a loan of $40,000 for 5 years on 523 West 146th st, occupied by the Hamilton Grange Postoffice Station.

GOODALE, PERRY & DWIGHT have been appointed agents for the 12-sty loft building, 118-124 West 22d st and for the 5-sty apartment house 376 West 127th st.

DOUGLAS L. ELLIMAN & CO. have been appointed agents for the 9-sty apartment house being erected at 122 East 76th st by Julius Tishman & Sons.

STERN BROTHERS, of West 42d st, are said to be negotiating for a lease of the 6-sty warehouse at 429-435 West 31st st, owned by Ferguson Brothers, of Hoboken, and now occupied by the Crocker Chair Co.

EGERTON L. WINTHROP and others, as trustees of the Knickerbocker Club, have obtained from the Union Trust Co. a loan of $650,000 for 5 years at 4¾ per cent. on the new club house at the south corner of 5th av and 62d st.

SMITH & PHELPS placed for the Hermax Realty Co. a loan of $32,000 on 429 East 156th st; for Edward Lenders, $6,000 on the vacant plot 100x125, on the west side of Park av, 101 ft north of 179th st; also several $1,500 loans on various Bronx properties.

J. ARTHUR FISCHER has been appointed agent for 1849 Broadway and 105-109 West 38th st. The same broker has sold the business and lease of the "Old Maria" restaurant at 107-109 West 38th st to "Hugo," who, until recently, was manager of Colaizzi's for the last eight years.

LEWIS H. MAY CO. and John H. Peel Co. were the brokers in the recently recorded sale of the 5-sty apartment house 21 West 58th st for the T. & S. Realty Co. to Mary L. Fraser, who gave in part payment the 5-sty loft building, 8 Gold st.

DEEDS have passed between the Madison Av. Reformed Church and the Central Presbyterian Church by which the structure at 57th st and Madison av becomes the property of the latter congregation. The amount paid is said to approximate $410,000.

A. D. ROCKWELL, JR., has opened an office at 182 East 122d st, for the transaction of a general real estate and insurance business. He is treasurer of the Reformed Church of Harlem, extensive real estate owner in Harlem and is manager of the church holdings.

WITTY BROTHERS, clothiers, have acquired title from Francis J. Kennedy, as executor, to the 5 and 6-sty flats at the southeast corner of Eldridge and Hester sts, on plot 62.8x66. The sale was made through the M. Morgenthau, Jr., Co. The buyers own and occupy adjoining property.

NEWARK FACTORY SITES, INC., has been organized with a capital of $1,000,000 to carry on a general real estate and building business. It is said that the company will take over the Hackensack Meadows which was purchased last autumn by Harry N. Durning, at a special master's sale for $1,000,000. The incorporators are Benjamin Tracy, Niel A. Weathers and Frederick W. Walz.

AUCTION SALES OF WEEK.

Except where otherwise stated, the properties offered were in foreclosure. Adjournments of legal sales to next week are noted under Advertised Legal Sales.

* Indicates that the property described was bid in for the plaintiff's account.

The Auction Market.

Evidence of the new interest in auction room offerings was furnished this week by the large crowd appearing at the scheduled partition sale by Joseph P. Day of the Yung Estate properties. Prospective bidders, however, were disappointed by the announcement that the sale had been adjourned to March 3, by order of the Court. Another East Side tenement found its way into the ownership of an outside bidder. Wolf Karnis paid $30,100 for the five-story building, at 177 Clinton street. The price was about $1,100 over the judgment that brought about the sale.

In another partition suit a large tract of land in the Bronx in the Hunt's Point section was bid in by Charles D. Dickey, a party in interest for $200,000. Other plaintiffs who obtained choice properties were the Altavista Holding Company which acquired the twelve-story loft building at 141 to 143 West 28th street on a bid of $171,000, only $1,000 over the existing first mortgage, and the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, which became the owner of the fine residence of John Pierce, builder, at 11 East 51st street facing the Cathedral, on a single bid of $200,000. The liens with accrued interest, etc., aggregated over $242,000.

Manhattan.

The following is the complete list of property sold, withdrawn or adjourned during the week ending Feb. 19, 1915, at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, 14 and 16 Vesey st.
